WE LIED ABOUT FORNEY, SAY 2

Alfred W. Forney, the alleged slot-machine racketeer, at last was placed on trial in Criminal Court today, and these developments ensued:

1—Two witnesses who were reported to have testified before the grand jury that Forney himself placed the slot-machines in his store, repudiated that testimony and said they had lied.

2—Prosecuting Attorney John Haggerty charged that Forney took 60 per cent of the quarters and half-dollars played into the slot-machines.

3—Judge Frank P. Patterson ordered that the jury be locked up over night during the trial, an unusual order, as the charges against Forney concern only misdemeanors.

The witness who repudiated his grand-jury testimony was Peter Bubanovich, who admitted having had one slot machine in his store, 1235 California avenue.

"I never saw Forney," Bubanovich insisted, after Haggerty, pleading surprise, had read the witness' testimony before the grand jury.

The second witness to repudiate his grand jury testimony, according to Haggerty, was Tony Lugioli, of 1341 Reedsdale street. He testified today he didn't know Forney, whereupon Haggerty read the previous testimony in which he had declared that Forney installed the machines.

Bubanovich's surprise testimony followed Haggerty's outline to the jury, in which he told of Forney taking 60 per cent of the receipts and giving 40 per cent to the pro-

COAL POLICE SHOULD GO —PINCHOT

Newly-Announced Candidate For Governor Favors Plan To Subsitute Watchmen

Former Gov. Pinchot's announcement of his candidacy for governor was followed today by these developments:

1.—Pinchot, who had declared against water, electric, bus and other monopolies, proposed abolition of company-supervised coal police.

2.—Francis Shunk Brown, factional candidate for governor; James J. Davis, out for senator, and W. S. Vare, leaving again for Florida, were to confer tonight in Philadelphia.

3.—Pittsburgh political leaders worry about supporting Brown-Davis ticket or Grundy-Lewis organization slate.

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—(AP.)—Less than 24 hours after he announced his candidacy, former Gov. Gifford Pinchot today fired another shot in the three-cornered battle for the Republican nomination for governor of Pennsylvania.

Last night the former governor said he wanted to "help break the strangle hold of the electric, gas, water, trolley, bus and other monopolies on the cost of living and the government of this state."

Today, Mr. Pinchot advocated the abolition of the so-called "coal and iron police now selected, paid and commanded by the employers," and substitute a system of watchmen paid by the state at the expense of the companies.

"FAVORS LABOR"

"Unemployment," said Mr. Pinchot in his statement today, "is one of the great problems before the people of Pennsylvania. I maintain the commonwealth has a large responsibility in this matter, and that it ought to act in times like the present. In fact, I believe the whole attitude of the state administration toward labor and labor problems must be changed.

"I believe in organized labor as my first term showed, and I believe especially in preventing labor troubles by removing their causes.

"For example, one of the worst disturbers of the peace between workers and employers in this state is the coal and iron police.

"When I took office in 1923, I found literally thousands of

Pittsburgh to Hear Byrd First Time in Two Years

A conversation between Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd at Dunedin, New Zealand, and Adolph S. Ochs, New York publisher, at Schnectady, N. Y., will be broadcast over KDKA and WCAE tomorrow morning at 7:30.

The conversation, carried on across 10,000 miles of space, will be picked up by WGY at Schnectady and relayed to stations of the National Broadcasting Company.

KDKA will use the short wave trailsmitter at East Pittsburgh to return the conversation to Admiral Byrd's men in New Zealand. It will be the first time Byrd's voice has been heard here since he departed for the South Pole two years ago.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, March 10.—(INS.)—Thousands accorded Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and the other members of his Antarctic expedition a vociferous welcome when they arrived in Dunedin today aboard the bark City of New York and the Eleanor Bolling, according to dispatches received here.

Most of the men in the expedition lost considerable weight in their year and a half in the isolated wastes at the bottom of the world, but some came back stouter. All were happy to return to civilization and were in good physical condition.

Scores of small craft met the two returning vessels in the outer harbor, with whistles blowing and flags waving in a hearty greeting. The City of New York appeared to have been badly battered in getting out of the ice-pack.

Admiral Byrd said he will remain in Dunedin a fortnight, then return to the United States. He said the scientific results of the expedition would prove of "incalculable value."

He said his flight over the South Pole was of secondary importance to the discovery of 1,000 miles of new territory.

Public to Pay Homage to Taft At Capitol Bier

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Thousands will file by the bier of William Howard Taft in a final tribute as his body lies in state for three hours in the rotunda of the national capitol tomorrow.

Today the nation and the world beat a pathway to the door of the former President's modest brick house in Wyoming avenue with expressions of sorrow at his passing.

A never-ending stream of messenger boys and visitors to the Taft home bore expressions of condolences and floral offerings were received from everywhere.

All the members of the Taft family, the sons, Robert A. and Charles P., and the daughter, Mrs. Helen Taft Manning; the brothers, Horace and Henry, were gathered at the home.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS

Both branches of Congress, after adopting resolutions of sorrow, adjourned until after the funeral. The Supreme Court also was adjourned.

President Hoover personally directed that the executive branch of the government should show every fitting honor to the only man in history who had been both president and Chief Justice.

WOUNDED TECH TEACHER DIES

Newell Gibson, 24, Carnegie Institute of Technology chemistry instructor, shot early Saturday morning following a house party, died at 8:30 o'clock this morning in Homeopathic Hospital.

Gibson was shot at the home of Walter O. Krebs, 10 Dunmoyle place. Krebs, a student of metallurgy at the Bureau of Mines, and E. H. Bane, senior law student at the University of Pittsburgh, were arrested following the shooting, but were released on $250 bail when Gibson said that the shooting was accidental. They were rearrested today and turned over to the coroner.

Two of the three girls who attended the party in Krebs' home Friday night before the shooting occurred confirmed statements that no enmity existed between Krebs and Gibson. Krebs admitted that the shot wounding Gibson was fired accidentally while he was attempting to wrest a gun from Gibson for fear that he did not know it was loaded.

Parents of Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Gibson, of Green Forest, Ark., arrived today to claim his body. A brother, U. S. Midshipman W. C. Gibson, of Annapolis, also reached Pittsburgh.

Gibson's body will be on view at the Freyvogel Funeral Chapel, at 3406 Fifth avenue, tonight, after which a private service, to be attended by only Carnegie Tech faculty members, will be held.

Tomorrow morning the body will be shipped to Gibson's home.

NEW TAXICAB LINE WAITS PERMIT

Architect Announces Firm Ready to Restore Service As Strike Foes See Mayor

While representatives of both sides of the taxicab strike were conferring today with Mayor Charles H. Kline, U. J. L. Peoples, one of the city's leading architects, announced that he has met with the strikers and is ready to start a taxicab company in Pittsburgh with full recognition of the drivers' union and a straight 40 per cent commission.

These are the terms that the striking drivers have held to since the strike started.

In a statement issued today, Peoples said:

DEPENDS ON PERMIT

"At a meeting yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, I met with the striking drivers' committeemen in the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union headquarters' Building, Fourth avenue.

"I told them that if I am able to secure a charter from the Public Service Commission or if Mayor Charles H. Kline will grant the privileges within his legal rights as Mayor of Pittsburgh we can have taxicab service restored at once.

"The Public Service Commission was just ready to grant a charter to the Red Cab Company in February when former Mayor William A. Magee, who was representing us before the commission, resigned. 'All he said was that he had quit. He offered no explanation why.

"Magee's action stopped the proceedings before the commission. About a week later I got notice that the charter had been refused."

Keyes Drops Fight To Escape Prison

LOS ANGELES, March 10.—(AP.)—Asa Keyes, former district attorney of Los Angeles County, who will be taken to San Quentin Penitentiary tomorrow to serve a 1-to-14-year sentence for bribery, has, at least temporarily, abandoned plans for an appeal of his conviction to the United States Supreme Court.

Keyes, who was convicted of accepting bribes from defendants in prosecutions growing out of the Julian Petroleum Corporation stock over issues still is undecided whether he will resume his battle for freedom.

Forbes, Favorite Stock Actor Here, Dies

The man who was the favorite actor of Pittsburghe stock company audiences is dead.

He was Gus Forbes, likeable character actor of the George Sharp Players. Since September, 1927, with few interruptions, he has been playing on the stage of the Pitt Theater. He played more consecutive weeks on a Pittsburgh stage than any other actor.

Mr. Forbes died last night in St. Joseph's Hospital after an illness of two months.

His entrance on the stage of the Pitt was invariably the cue for an enthusiastic reception. Women especially liked his acting, but he was also a favorite with the men.

Mr. Forbes, born in England 54 years ago, leaves his wife, Helen Brinsfield Forbes; two brothers, George Forbes, of Edmonton, Can., and James Forbes, of Toronto, Can.; a sister, Mrs. Edwin Irvin, of San Francisco.

On the stage 35 years ago, he was associated with William Farnum, Dustin Farnum, Wilton Lackaye, Ernest Truex.

Funeral services will be held at St. Paul's Cathedral at 10:30 tomorrow morning. The pallbearers will be George Sharp, Robert Fiske, Harland Tucker, Harry Manners, J. M. Hazlett, H. B. Laufman, K. B. Conway and F. G. Conley. The body will be taken to New York tomorrow night, where burial will take place under the auspices of the Actors' Equity Association.

WOMEN JAM COURTROOM FOR TRIAL

Blonde Trembles Slightly as Battle for Life Begins; Jury Selection Under Way

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 10.—Irene Schroeder began her fight for life today as she went on trial charged with the slaying of Corp. Brady Paul, of the State Highway Patrol.

Her raised, right hand trembling slightly, the blonde former waitress, pleaded "not guilty" when arraigned in Lawrence County Criminal Court before Judge R. Lawrence Hildebrand.

Joseph D. Kelley, a cement mill worker of Wayne Township, who testified he read "only the headlines of the newspapers," was the first juror accepted.

Seven other men and one woman were rejected. The Commonwealth was questioning all closely as to their attitude toward a first degree verdict against an accomplice to a murder.

COURTROOM JAMMED

Defense plans suffered their first telling blow just before the trial opened, when five physicians representing the Commonwealth reported that the accused woman is not an expectant mother, flatly contradicting a statement given out last night by Irene's counsel.

Before a throng including many women that jammed the courtroom, the blonde answered the customary questions put by Prothonotary Ralph M. Campbell hesitantly, prompted by her chief counsel, Kedgwin Powell.

GIRL FLIER HITS ALTITUDE MARK

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., March 10.—(AP.)—Elinor Smith, 18-year-old pilot, today attained an apparent altitude of 32,000 feet in an attempt to set a new altitude record for women. The previous record, set by the late Marvel Crosson, was 24,600 feet.

Miss Smith carried on her flight a sealed baragraph, which will be sent to Washington to be read. On landing she said that one of the two altimeters in her airplane showed at one point in her flight 32,000 feet, and the other 30,000.

At this altitude, she said, the super-charger regulating the flow of gas and oxygen to her motor apparently froze.

The physical effort of adjusting the motor made her dizzy, she said, then everything went black, and she fainted.

When she regained consciousness, she had dropped to 27,000 feet, and the airplane was in a smooth, gentle glide.

STEEL ORDERS INCREASED

NEW YORK, March 10.—(INS.)—Unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation showed an increase of 11,036 tons or a total of 4,479,748 tons, on February 28, according to the monthly report issued today.

The February report reflects a slight lag in incoming business after the brisk upturn in late January.

The present unfilled tonnage, however, totaling 4,479,748, is far ahead of the figure of 4,144,310 reported for February 28, 1929, and slightly in advance of the peak for 1929 of 4,427,763, reported for April 30.

Candy Treat Unites Lost Child and Mother

Three years old, she was standing outside the candy store at 48 South Twenty-seventh street today, crying.

She was wearing her brother's vest, a pink dress and an infant's socks, which drooped about her slippers. In the pocket of the vest was a broken string of rosary beads.

She said she was cold, so Annabelle Riebel, 16, daughter of the candy store owner, took her into the warm store and gave her a big piece of candy, and her tears dried.

She had dressed herself and strolled away from home at 7 a. m. while her mother was busy getting her four brothers and sisters ready for school.

BLONDE PLEADS 'NOT GUILTY' AS MURDER TRIAL OPENS

WOMEN RUSH FOR SEATS IN COURT

JURY BATTLE BEGUN

Selection of the jury was begun at once with the prospect that today and probably most of tomorrow would be consumed in selecting the 12 persons to decide the accused woman's fate.

Howard Forbes, farmer, of Slippery Rock, was the first prospective juror called. He was asked by District Attorney John Powers whether he would render a verdict against an accomplice, and this raised an objection by the defense. After a wrangle, Forbes was peremptorily challenged by the defense and was dismissed.

Lewis R. Nickum, a clerk, of Ellwood City, the next called, also was challenged by the defense. Mrs. Daisy Bright, housekeeper, of Ellwood City, was challenged by Special Prosecutor Charles Margiotti, for cause.

Kelley was then accepted. He took his seat as foreman, which position he will hold unless another is selected after the jury is chosen.

DOCTORS MAKE REPORT

Announcement of the physicians' finding was made by commonwealth counsel. The physicians were Drs. Loyal W. Wilson, Paul Wilson, W. C. Campbell and Joseph D. Crawford, of New Castle, and Dr. W. J. Gotli, of Punxsutawney.

Special Prosecutor Margiotti and Attorney Thomas W. Dickey for the defense came to sharp words over the report in an anteroom just before the case was called.

Irene was led from her cell shortly after 10 o'clock this morning. She seemed in better condition than at any time since her capture with her sweetheart, W. Glenn Dague, in the Arizona desert two months ago.

POSES FOR PICTURES

She tarried, willingly, in a areaway between the jail and courthouse to give a dozen photographers an opportunity to make snapshots of her.

Women stormed the courthouse doors here two hours before the time set for the trial to begin. At 9:30 o'clock the guards flung the front doors open and the crowd hastened to Criminal Court room No. 10 and began a skirmish for ...ty heavens, they almost ...d me," one woman gasped ...e reached the entrance of ... courtroom in general disarray.

Jurors, witnesses and newspapermen were admitted by identification cards.

Irene is charged with murder, manslaughter, felonious shooting and highway robbery as a result of the killing of Paul, who was shot down on the New Castle-Butler road December 27. She was indicted on all four charges last week with her sweetheart, Dague, who occupies a cell in the Lawrence County Jail alongside the courthouse where Irene faced her accusers today. His trial will follow.

VISITS COURTROOM

The state's case rests in the hands of District Attorney Powers and Special State Prosecutor Margiotti. Irene's staff of attorneys, which last week dwindled from five to three, includes Powell, Benjamin J. Jarrett, former state senator of Sharon, and Thomas W. Dickel, ex-district attorney of Lawrence County. Powell is chief counsel.

Irene was permitted a few minutes out of the jail yesterday afternoon, the first since her return here a month ago with Dague. There was no Dague with her for an exhibition of ardent love-making which has marked her every other public appearance. She was in the custody of Sheriff Frank N. Johnston and his wife. With her were two of her attorneys—Powell and Dickey.

They visited the courtroom where Irene today faced her accusers. She walked into the court house maintaining the same show of defiance which has marked every move since her capture. She "wise-cracked" about the trial—the accusations of murder and anything that happened to catch her fancy for the moment.

"Is that where I'll sit when they put me on the witness stand?" she inquired of Attorney Dickey, indicating the witness chair.

TRIES WITNESS CHAIR

With his reply in the affirmative, she looked at the sheriff and his wife.

"Mind if I try it?" she asked.

No objection was made, so she stalked across the room, settling herself comfortably and remarked.

"Not bad—not bad at all."

Then, as if pretending it was a real session of court and not merely an incidental visit, she made a mock curtsy to the judge's bench and spread her arms before the spectators' seats, but her attorney beckoned caution.

"Well, I guess it's all right," she remarked, shrugging her plump shoulders. "I'll be back." she said, and sauntered out.

TELEPHONE IS LINK

Haggerty indicated that the prosecution will be based partly on proving that a private telephone in Forney's Perrysville avenue mansion was the means of communication between Forney and the shop-proprietors who used his machines. When the machines needed repairs, as they frequently did, the calls were received over this telephone, Haggerty contended.

The first important witness, Joseph McBurney, who formerly conducted a store at 1320 Reedsdale street, said he couldn't remember this telephone number, although he admitted having had two machines in his store for a year.

WITNESSES MISSING

He said "the three McCarty brothers," now missing, repaired the gambling devices and collected the profits, which were abundant.

The McCarty brothers — Dale, Lawrence and Mack—still were missing today, along with three or more other prosecution witnesses.

Four of the first five witnesses called failed to respond. They were W. S. Turner, said to be of 900 James street; Martin Simon, John Weitz and J. J. Hudjak.

Before the prosecution opened, Attorney Hiram Hirsh, counsel for Forney, moved that the charges be dropped on the ground that Forney possibly had testified against himself before the grand jury, but Judge Patterson refused the motion.

Two women and 10 men were selected for the jury.

Forney reached court with four admirers who, at the noon recess, took on the appearance of a bodyguard. They whisked their charge from the courthouse by a devious route.

COLORFUL ATTIRE

Forney was a sartorial attraction as he sat stolidly at his counsel's table. His suit was gray, his necktie purple, his shirt mauve and his vest was trimmed in white. Court rules did not permit him to smoke the cigar that he usually enjoys.

The case went to trial with admission from the prosecutor, Assistant District Attorney John F.

MANY DELAYS

Forney was indicted 16 months ago. One year ago today he disappeared and was declared a fugitive from justice—after he had served a six-months' federal sentence for admitted violation of the liquor laws.

The County Commissioners offered a $5,000 reward for his return to Allegheny County. But, last November, he came back voluntarily. Since then numerous delays have set the trial back.

Following a conference today with Attorneys C. K. Robinson, W. Watson Smith and Frank B. Ingersoll, counsel for the Parmelee Transportation Company, to whom the strikers' peace proposal was given last week, Mayor Kline said he had no comment to make. Another conference is scheduled for this afternoon.

After the morning conference Miss Emmilinne Pitt, federal conciliator, talked with the Mayor.

PEACE TERMS SECRET

There has been much speculation and some unauthorized statements as to what is contained in the proposal. Neither the men nor the company officials would comment on the terms. Only one copy of it is said to be in existence. That is the copy that was handed to Mayor Kline Friday by the men. In turn it was given to Attorneys Robinson and Ingersoll, counsel for the company.

If the proposal contains a demand for recognition of the union it is believed almost a certainty that it will be rejected. The company never has indicated any deviation from its stand against unionism. The men have never wavered in their official statements from their slogan "40 per cent and a closed shop.

thugs, crooks and criminals among them. We sifted them out and when it was done we had 2,000 left out of about 6,000.

"Recent events have proved that was not enough. I believe the best remedy for the abuse, incitement to disorder, and killings for which those men are responsible is to abolish the coal and iron police entirely.

SUBSTITUTE "WATCHMEN"

"One plan would be to substitute for the coal and iron police now selected, paid and commanded by the employers, a system of watchmen chosen, trained and commanded by the commonwealth and paid by the commonwealth at the expense of the companies. That would cost the taxpayers nothing, would protect the property of the companies from irresponsible mischiefmakers and would remove at once one of the worst causes of labor troubles in the state."

With the former governor's statement same the statement that S. Davis Wilson, deputy controller of Philadelphia, would be city manager of the Pinchot campaign committee on a platform of public utilities regulation including the abolishment of the Public Service Commission as at present constituted.

Davis, Vare, Brown Make Slate Tonight

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—(INS.)—William S. Vare, James J. Davis, secretary of labor, and Francis Shunk Brown, former attorney general and gubernatorial candidate, will hold an important political conference here tonight in Vare's suite at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, it was learned this afternoon.

The conference is believed to be called to complete arrangements for the slate to be backed by the Vare Republican organization in the coming primary campaign.

Vare is expected to leave for Florida tomorrow or by Wednesday at the latest. Before he goes, it is reported, he will announce his withdrawal from the senatorial race. Davis is expected to follow with an announcement of his candidacy. Both Brown and Davis are understood to have pledged Vare they will fight to the finish.

Pittsburgh Leaders Upset by Pinchot

Local leaders of the state Republican organization today face a crisis that may determine future political supremacy as a result of former Gov. Gifford Pinchot's announcement of his candidacy for governor. The announcement was made yesterday in Philadelphia.

Stephen Stahlnecker, Pinchot's secretary, announced last night in Philadelphia that Pittsburgh headquarters would be opened before the end of this week. Stahlnecker will be Pinchot's campaign manager, it was said.

Pinchot said in his announcement:

The problem of local leaders is to decide whether to support a ticket headed by Joseph R. Grundy for senator, and Samuel S. Lewis for governor, or an almost assured ticket headed by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, of Pittsburgh, for senator, and Francis Shunk Brown, of Philadelphia, for governor.

HARMONY HOPE DIM

Grundy, Lewis and Brown have announced their candidacies, and Davis, according to reports, will compared with about 72,000 for Kline, who had the support of Armstrong.

The problem of local leaders is to decide whether to support a ticket headed by Joseph R. Grundy for senator and Samuel S. Lewis for governor, or an almost assured ticket headed by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, of Pittsburgh, for senator, and Francis Shunk Brown, of Philadelphia, for governor.

HARMONY HOPE DIM

Grundy, Lewis and Brown have announced their candidacies and Davis, according to reports, will visit Pittsburgh within the week to formally declare his intention to run.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Republican county chairman, has not publicly indicated which ticket he would support, but some observers think he is inclined toward Davis on account of a life-time friendship during which they enjoyed mutual political and fraternal honors.

DAVIS SEES ARMSTRONG

Others argue that if the Mellons are seriously supporting Grundy and Lewis, it would place Armstrong in an awkward position, as he has been W. L. Mellon's political field general for years.

Davis called Saturday at Armstrong's office and talked for an hour and a half, but neither would admit that politics was discussed.

Davis was asked if Armstrong had promised to support him and replied:

"I did not ask him."

Davis explained gravely, and Armstrong jocularly, that they reviewed a future $75,000 appropriation that the Pittsburgh Moose Lodge was expected to make toward a building program at Mooseheart, Ill.

Mayor Charles H. Kline, who is said to be ambitious to expand his leadership, has repeated in the last few days that he was not committed to any state candidate.

Malone Is Expected To Decide Shortly

Many speculate on where former President of Council James F. Malone and followers of the late Judge Richard W. Martin would cast their lot in the coming fight.

Malone and Judge Martin ran for mayor last fall and received a total of about 100,000 votes, as compared with about 72,000 for Kline, who had the support of Armstrong.

Most of Malone's chief supporters, including Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, but excepting Senator M. G. Leslie, had supported the Vare-Beidleman ticket four years ago, whereas Armstrong and Kline we... for the Pepper-Fisher ticket.

Malone—himself—supported the Pepper-Fisher slate and his ward, the Fifth, responded with a majority of about 2,200, the largest of any ward in the state.

Malone has entered the life insurance business, but his friends declare he has his ear to the ground, and soon will take a positive stand in the coming state primary fight.

City and county employes take no pains to conceal anxiety at being asked by the bosses to solicit votes for Grundy and Lewis, having already found, they said, crystalized sentiment against Grundy and favoring Davis.

Pinchot's Chance Thought Favorable

Summing up, observers say Pinchot enters the contest when the situation is more favorable than when he was elected eight years ago, for the reason that in 1922 the state organization finally centered, after bitter wrangling, on George E. Alter, whereas in the present situation the organization will be divided between two candidates.

The Allegheny County organization was split in 1922 by the Oliver, Magee and Leslie factions, each occupying separate headquarters, and as a result, shared with Philadelphia County in getting a bare majority for Alter that Pinchot easily overcame in other sections of the state.

Pinchot 'Out to Break' Utilities' Strangle Hold

Pinchot issued the following statement in Philadelphia:

"I am a candidate for governor in the coming Republican primary. I want to help break the strangle hold of the electric, gas, water, trolley, bus and other monopolies on the cost of living and the government of this State.

"Two factions of the Republican machine are striving for control, each for its own advantage. The people of Pennsylvania ought to have some one to vote for who is not for any faction, but for them."

Pinchot said his platform would be announced within a week or 10 days.

LEWIS URGES U. S. AID FOR MINERS

400,000 Are Suffering Under Barbaric Mismanagement, He States at Convention

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 10.—Asserting that there is a "growing disparity and widening inequality of earning as between bituminous coal and the industries which consume coal as a basic source of energy," John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, today proposed federal legislation to "emancipate bituminous coal miners from barbaric mismanagement" in his report to more than 1,000 delegates attending the opening of the thirty-first consecutive convention of the organization.

Lewis described in part the present condition of the bituminous coal industry as "this deplorable state of profitless operation, pauperized wages, and resulting misery" by estimating that 400,000 coal miners employed in non-union mines are attempting to live on a half-time employment, and less, at day wage rates which, if calculated on the basis of full-time employment, would permit but a pauperized existence.

SAYS BUSINESS HIT HARD

The merchants and entire business communities in bituminous coal mining regions are being bankrupted along with the victimized coal miners, he said.

The report was prepared jointly by Lewis and the two other international officers, Phil Murray, Pittsburgh, vice president, and Thomas Kennedy, secretary and treasurer.

The convention unanimously adopted a resolution legalizing and ratifying the constitution and the procedure taken two years ago in extending the constitution by a referendum vote.

The resolution was the significant action of the opening session, refuting the contention on which factional elements called a rump convention to meet in Springfield, Ill., today. The rump convention miners held that the constitution expired March 31, 1929, when no convention was called to renew it, and that the international organization is without power.

Through today's resolution, the international convention goes on record as indorsing the overwhelming majority accorded in the referendum of two years ago, extending the constitution until it is renewed.

CITES 'RUINOUS' RIVALRY

Looking again within the bituminous field situation, Lewis said ruinous competition within coal fields, and as between coal fields, is constantly growing worse. Wages are being hammered down below recognized levels of bare subsistence in many fields, as sales realizations continue to decrease.

The "deplorable state," he pictured, has practically driven "out of the ranks of consumers 2,500,000 American citizens who are barely existing and are not even counted as prospective consumers and buyers of the necessary food and clothing to maintain American families."

The anthracite industry, however, in many respects presents a more wholesome economic aspect than is true of the bituminous industry.

Long-Term Convict Stabs Prison Guard

FOLSOM STATE PRISON, Cal., March 10.—(INS.)—C. E. Chappel, a guard, was wounded here today in the second stabbing affray in Folsom Prison in the last 48 hours.

Julio Guillen, 33, serving 20 years for robbery, broke ranks from a file of prisoners marching to breakfast and stabbed the guard three times before he was overpowered, prison officials said. The knife had been fashioned from a piece of wire.

Asher Bennet, convictor leader of the prison band, was stabbed Saturday and is near death.

Mellon, 75 on March 24, Will Be Feted Here

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Close friends and business associates in Pittsburgh of Andrew W. Mellon have arranged a pretentious party in his honor on the occasion of his seventy-fifth birthday, March 24, it was learned here.

The birthday party will be held at the Pittsburgh Golf Club and invitations are being sent out to 186 guests, all of whom will be from Pittsburgh. Arrangements are being made by H. C. McElrowney, president of the Union Trust Company, of Pittsburgh.

When news of the forthcoming party first leaked out in Washington, it was reported that President Hoover and former President Coolidge were to be invited, but associates of Mr. Mellon in the Treasury Department explained that the guest list will be confined to Pittsburghers who have been business or personal friends of the Treasury head for a number of years.

Secretary Mellon is scheduled to leave Washington for Pittsburgh over the week end of March 22 in preparation for the party.

Despite his advanced age, Mr. Mellon, who has served at his present post under the administration of three Presidents, was enjoying full health today and still puts in eight hours a day at his office.

Amundsen May Be Alive, Dr. Cook Asserts

CHICAGO, March 10.—(INS.)—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Arctic explorer, arrived here today following his release from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

The explorer, who served a five-year prison term, said he would remain here while planning his future.

Dr. Cook was imprisoned for oil stock promotion ventures which followed failure of the world to accept his claim that he had discovered the North Pole.

At the age of 65, Dr. Cook is beginning life anew with a capital of $60. When interviewed, he said:

"The world presents a changed face. Through a perfected radio the South Pole has spoken to the North. On wings of his own devising, man has floated in glory around the earth. Einstein and his associates have rewritten the book of human knowledge. Astronomers have extended the boundaries of the universe. The moving shapes of the silver screen have been endowed with a living voice.

"And poor Amundsen is dead. I doubt, it seriously. A man can live for years in those Arctic snows. It's too early to bury the old rover yet."

He said he would not engage in further exploration, and might devote himself to the relief of drug addicts.

ERLANGER WILL IGNORES 'WIDOW,' LEAVES KIN MILLIONS

UNMARRIED, INSTRUMENT DECLARES

Estate Estimated at Between 10 and 75 Million Dollars; Woman Not at Funeral

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—His brother and two sisters were named residuary legatees in the will of Abraham Lincoln Erlanger, filed in Surrogates Court today.

No provision was made for the woman who describes herself as his widow.

The will, dated October 18, 1927, described Mr. Erlanger as unmarried.

Former Supreme Court Justice Mitchell L. Erlanger, Miss May Erlanger and Mrs. Caroline Bergman are the three legatees. They divide the residue equally.

MAY BE $75,000,000

Mr. Erlanger's estate is variously estimated at from $10,000,000 to $75,000,000.

WIDOW NOT AT FUNERAL

The possibility of Erlanger having been married at the time of his death became known Saturday, the day he died, when Max D. Steuer announced that he had been retained by "the widow," whom he described as Mrs. Charlotte Fiscal Erlanger, to protect her interests in the estate.

Informed of Steuer's statement, Erlanger's brother and other relatives replied:

"There is no Mrs. Erlanger."

"There certainly is a Mrs. Erlanger," was the lawyer's retort, "and there is not a court in the land that will not sustain her claim."

Although it was said that she would attend the funeral yesterday in a Fifth avenue synagogue, and that a pew had been reserved for her, she did not appear. Her attorney said she was ill.

Erlanger's relatives said Saturday that the only wife he had ever had was Adelaide Louise Erlanger, who divorced him in 1911.

CONGRESS AIDS PLAN TO SPUR EMPLOYMENT

Leaders Survey Lamont's $7,000,000,000 Program To Provide Employment

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP.)—Congressional leaders today scanned the plans by Secretary Lamont for "speeding up" a $7,000,000,000 program for public and private construction in 1930 as a means of lessening unemployment.

Within two days a senatorial committee will investigate these unemployment conditions in hearings on bills to establish federal employment agencies and to set up an advance employment planning program.

The Commerce Secretary last night detailed a gigantic expansion of work by the federal, state, municipal and private industrial organizations, and reported a proposed expenditure of more than one billion dollars for public works in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio alone.

UTILITIES TO HELP

Public utilities will spend $3,500,000,000, he said, and have already pushed their program "to such an extent that construction expenditures for the first quarter of the present year represent a 12 per cent increase over the same period of 1929.

The call sent out for an acceleration of Federal construction expenditures has already been acted upon, the Secretary continued, adding that bids on 10 of the larger public building projects, involving an outlay of $7,000,000, would be opened this month, and that the Army and Navy program of housing, flood control and dock construction likewise was advancing.

PUSH HIGHWAY WORK

He asserted highway work also was "being speeded up throughout the country in order that there may be no avoidable delays in pushing operations as soon as weather conditions permit."

Listing steps taken by Federal custodians in speeding alterations and repairs on government structures, Secretary Lamont added:

"Should this example be followed by more private owners of dwellings, commercial buildings and industrial plants, it would provide employment for several weeks to tens of thousands of workers on needed repairs to structures that should be preserved."

Explaining that both his figures and his assurances of "prompt decisive action" were based on "complete reports from the governors of two-thirds of the states," the secretary listed new reports of state construction programs as follows:

Pennsylvania, $305,988,118; Michigan, $93,000,000; Iowa, $70,000,000; Kentucky, $51,670,000; Maryland, $48,860,000; Rhode Island, $20,000,000; Utah, $8,800,000; Nevada, $3,250,000.

BRITISH HIT AT TONNAGE OF FRENCH

Conference Reaches Crisis; New Conclave Set With U. S. in Mediatory Role

By HARRY R. FLORY
International News Service.

LONDON, March 10.—A fateful week for the London naval conference, which will determine once and for all whether a five-power agreement is possible, opened here today with continuation of the negotiations which proceeded at a feverish pace over the week-end.

The eighth week of the conference found the British and French attempting to get down to bedrock consideration of the French tonnage figures, now standing at 725,000 tons.

At the same time, the delegates were discussing the political pact which France demands. It was admitted frankly that little progress was made in this matter over the week-end.

PARLEY AT CRUX

After seven weeks of negotiations, sometimes hectic, sometimes dull to the point of boredom, the conference has finally reached the crux of the situation, namely the French demands.

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Ambassador Dwight Morrow and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, representing the United States, met the French and British delegates at St. James' Palace at 10 o'clock this morning. Their attempts to get down to a detailed discussion of the French tonnage figures temporarily fell flat, the British refusing to accept the French figures of 725,000 tons as revealed by Premier Andre Tardieu a month ago.

NEW CONCLAVE SET

In an effort to patch up this situation, the British First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander, and French Minister of Marine Dumesnil, were ordered into an immediate conclave with their technical advisers. They will try to agree upon a new set of actual figures. American observers will be present, ready to fill mediatory roles if necessary.

The British, French and American delegations will meet again Wednesday, or earlier, if M. Dumesnil and Alexander are able to agree upon the figures. Meanwhile, a meeting of the heads of all five delegations scheduled for this afternoon was put off until tomorrow.

The British objection to Tardieu's figures, although not expressed publicly, is that they were considerably padded by inclusion of too much obsolete tonnage.

5 IN JAIL DASH, ONE ESCAPES

JACKSON, Mich., March 10.—(AP.)—An attempt by five men to scale the front wall of the Michigan state prison by using a 20-foot improvised pipe ladder resulted in the getaway of one man and the capture of the other four at 3 o'clock this morning.

Frank Shinn, Detroit, slipped down the ladder, raced across the prison yard and is believed to have dived into a tunnel beneath the plant of the American Fork and Hoe Company nearby.

F. E. Chisholm, a guard, first sighted the five coming over the roof of the front cell block. He sounded an alarm and held the four men at the point of a rifle as they stood in the glare of a searchlight.

Prison officials were summoned and the four men on the roof took off their shoes and slid down the pipe ladder into captivity.

Weather Conditions.

There is a rather weak high pressure area over the Southeast and another high covers the Rocky Mountain states and the Pacific Coast states with its crest over Washington and Oregon. A trough of low barometer stretches from north of the Lakes southwestward to Texas, its principal center over Illinois. This distribution of pressure is causing some cloudiness over the interior of the country, but little precipitation. It is also responsible for mild temperatures everywhere east of the Rocky Mountains. Over the Rockies the weather is cold, and the tendency is towards falling temperatures. There is no cold weather indicated for this section for the next several days.

FAMOUS DIET AUTHOR DIES

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—Eugene Christian, 69, author of a number of books in dietetics, among them "Eat and Be Well" and "How to Live 100 Years," died last night at San Diego, Cal., of pneumonia.

He was born in McMinnville, Tenn., and after engaging in business for a time in Atlanta, Ga., and Binghamton, N. Y., came to New York City in 1900 and began teaching and practicing as a dietitian. He was prosecuted by the Medical Society of New York City, and by a decision of the Supreme Court of New York established the right of a food scientist to diagnose and prescribe diet as a remedy for disease.

Christian founded the American Vitamin Food Company, of Westfield, Mass., and was president of the Christian-Boice Corporation and Hotel Company, St. Petersburg, Fla.; head of the Christian Foundation and chairman of the board of Canada Health Foods, Inc., of Toronto.

4 SAVED, 1 LOST AS BOAT BURNS

Charles Pitchik, 17, of 175 Cass avenue, is believed to have drowned when a motor launch in which he and five others were crossing the Ohio River near the site of the new McKees Rocks-Woods Run bridge, caught fire last night. His body has not been recovered.

Pitchik's five companions put on life preservers and leaped into the icy stream. They were picked up by rescuers in skiffs.

John Cuprik, 20, of Superior avenue, North Side, one of those rescued, said when the launch was in midstream the engine stalled. When the caruberator was flooded in an attempt to start the motor, a spark caused an explosion, he said.

"Within a few seconds," Cuprik related, "the flames shot several feet into the air. We all put on life preservers and removed our coats and trousers. Then we leaped into the stream.

"I don't know the names of the others. A man in a skiff saved us. One youth swam to the shore, while I saw the sixth disappear beneath the water. I'm sure he was drowned." Police dragged the river for the body, but without success.

CRISIS ON COAL FACES BRITISH

LONDON, March 10.—(AP.)—The possibility that the government might be defeated on amendments to the Coal Mines Bill, coming before the House of Commons tomorrow night, was a topic of discussion in Commons circles today.

Political observers do not believe, however, that this would mean that the government either would abandon the bill or resign, as the amendments whereon they might be defeated do not concern vital sections of the measure.

The Liberals will meet late tonight to determine their attitude toward further amendments. It is considered likely that there will be a number of close divisions, as Conservative support of some Liberal amendments to the bill is believed certain.

Drys, Antis Claim G. O. P. Club Aid

NEW YORK, March 10.—(INS.)—Both sides today predicted victory in the battle between anti-prohibitionists and drys to determine whether the National Republican Club will go on record against the Eighteenth Amendment. A meeting of the club tonight members will vote on whether a resolution against the prohibition law shall be adopted.

Former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, of New York, will be the principal speaker for the forces against the amendment. Speakers for the drys were not announced.

Student Killed In 20-Story Fall

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—Louis Finkelstein, 22, a student, yesterday jumped or fell to his death from a twentieth-story window of the Hotel Commodore. Detectives learned that Finkelstein had had a breakdown recently as a result of overstudy. Finkelstein came to this country from London.

FLEETS STEAM INTO 'BATTLE'

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, March 10.—(AP.)—Scouting airplanes were scanning the sea today as two great battle fleets steamed toward each other for the mock "Battle of the Caribbean" in United States Navy maneuvers.

The "Blue" fleet, under the command of Admiral L. M. Nulton, on his flagship California, put out from Cristobal to meet the "Black" under Admiral W. C. Cole, beginning a five-day training test.

The "Black" force is led by its flagship, Wyoming, and is supported by the dreadnaughts, Arkansas, Utah, Florida, New York, Oklahoma and Nevada.

In the "Blue" armada, five other first-line dreadnaughts—the West Virginia, Tennessee, Maryland, New Mexico and Mississippi—will help the California.

The aircraft carriers Saratoga and Langley are attached to the "Blue" fleet. The Lexington, sister ship of the Saratoga, will operate with the "Blacks."

DOHENY BRIBE TRIAL DELAYED

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP.)—Out of respect to the memory of William Howard Taft and Justice Edward Terry Sanford, who died Saturday, the bribery trial of Edward L. Doheny, millionaire oil operator, today was postponed until Wednesday.

Doheny, accompanied by his wife, was in court as the announcement of the recess was made. He is charged with giving a bribe of $100,000 to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior. Fall was convicted of receiving the bribe and is at liberty pending an appeal.

A conference between counsel and Justice William Hitz, at the District of Columbia Supreme Court, followed the recess and after it ended counsel for Doheny filed a plea contending that to place Doheny on trial for bribery would have the effect of putting him in double jeopardy because of the fact he was tried for conspiring with Fall to defraud the government of the Elk Hills lease three years ago and was acquitted.

REPORT FAVORS THACHER

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP.)—The nomination of Judge Thomas Day Thacher, of New York, to be solicitor general, was reported favorably to the Senate today by its judiciary committee without opposition.

Responding to a written request from the committee, Judge Thacher informed the Senate that he had sold his stock in four power companies.

On the basis of that action, the threatened opposition to his confirmation disappeared. Chairman Norris, of the committee, said he believed Thacher's nomination would be confirmed by the Senate at an early date.

2 Memphis Women Burned to Death

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 10.—(AP.)—Miss Faith Carlton, 30, and another woman known as "Myrtle" were burned to death in an apartment house fire here early today. Mrs. A. S. Martin was rescued by her husband who fought his way through the flames and carried her to safety. In a futile attempt to save the two other women he was burned.

Woman, 2 Men Held In Counterfeiting

GREENSBURG, March 10.—A Pittsburgh woman and two Ellwood City men were in the Westmoreland County Jail today, accused of passing counterfeit money.

The three—Dora Kinsley, 39, who said she lived in Brownsville road, Pittsburgh; M. A. Ruscille, 46; J. E. Esozolo, 36—were arrested on the William Penn Highway by a Delmont constable.

CHINESE BAND KILLS 3 WOMEN

SHANGHAI, March 10.—(AP.)—Three Finnish women missionaries of the China-England Mission have died at the hands of bandits who captured them more than a month ago as they traveled by boat from Changshu to Kianfu.

One of the three, Miss Cajander, died after three days privation and exposure. The two others, Misses Ingman and Dhedengren, were killed by their captors.

A few weeks prior to their death the last two named were saved temporarily from capture by Chinese friends who bricked them up in a wall while brigands looted the house.

Coste, Doolittle Given Aviation Trophies

PARIS, March 10.—(AP.)—The International League of Aviators, whose headquarters are here, has awarded its international trophy for 1929 to Dieudonne Coste, French ace of the air, for the finest series of aviation performances during the year.

The national trophy for the United States was given to James H. Doolittle, formerly a noted Army flier and now working for a civil aviation company.

Coste, in addition to holding the world's record for long-distance flights in a straight line, set up several new records for closed-circuit flights.

TELLEGEN WEDS FOURTH TIME

ASBURY PARK, N. J., March 10.—(AP.)—Lou Tellegen, stage and screen actor, and Eve Casanova, an actress, of New York, were married here late yesterday by the Rev. Martin L. Ferris, a retired Baptist minister. Three witnesses, Mr. Ferris said, accompanied the couple, but he declined to give their names or any further information.

The marriage is Tellegen's fourth. In turn, his previous wives were Countess Jeanne de Brouchere, Geraldine Farrar, opera star, and Nina Romano, motion pic ure actress.

Tellegen and Miss Romano recently were divorced. Last spring the marriage of Miss Casanova and Minor McClain, actor, also ended in divorce.

Friends said that Tellegen and Miss Casanova had planned to marry for some time, but the actor's accident in Atlantic City, N. J., when he suffered severe burns while smoking in bed, caused delay.

Philippine Schools Shut to End Strike

MANILA, March 10.—(AP.)—Luther B. Bewley, director of education, brought Manila's student strike to an abrupt climax today by ordering the East, West, North and South High schools and the Philippine School of Commerce closed, beginning tomorrow. The school term would have ended regularly the latter part of this month.

Approximately 10,000 students joined the walkout, which began as the result of a controversy over Miss Mabel Brummitt, American teacher, accused of having insulted the Filipino race in reprimanding some of her students. She was dismissed.

County Asks Higher Board For U. S. Prisoners

Allegheny County wants better pay from the government for boarding federal prisoners in its jail, where, for 40 years such have been kept for 50 cents a day.

The Allegheny County Prison Board has suggested to the government that the board be raised to $1 a day. The government has demurred, but a compromise is predicted.

The high cost of jail maintenance and the greatly increased number of government prisoners was the subject of much correspondence between county jail authorities and the Department of Justice.

A representative of the latter recently spent several days in Pittsburgh studying the situation.

The many jail sentences imposed in Federal Court have crowded the jail to such an extent that Warden John McNeil has requested prisoners be sent elsewhere.

In 1929 there were 848 government prisoners sent to the county jail and 230 have been sent there since the first of the year.

Cancer Expert Away, Wife Carries on Treatments

LOS ANGELES, March 10.—(Universal.)—Calmly and competently, Mrs. Agnes Humber—wife of Dr. John D. Humber of cancer-treatment fame—gave injections of sheep-gland extract to 360 Los Angeles sufferers from the scourge.

Dr. Humber and his associate, Dr. Walter Coffey, are on their way to Washington, D. C., to report the results of their experiments to Congress.

All manner of cancer victims, from a boy four years old to a woman of 90, were treated by the good-looking, cheerful young woman, who worked under the supervision of Dr. R. W. Starr.

Mrs. Humber is a doctor herself in everything but the degree. She was star nurse of American Red Cross Hospital No. 1 in France during the war, and has been closely allied with her husband and Dr. Coffey throughout the cancer experiments.

There are now 750 persons undergoing the Coffey-Humber treatment in and about Los Angeles. Of these, more than 80 per cent have reported, and displayed, marked improvement.

INDIAN WOMAN DRONES FATAL LOVE STORY

By DOROTHY ROE.
Universal Service

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 10.—"I love him. He loves me."

A darkly mystic story of primitive love, ancient witchcraft and black magic came from the lips of an Indian woman accused of using a Ouija board to direct the murder of the wife of the man she adored.

Lila Jimerson, 35-year-old Seneca tribeswoman, crouched on a chair in her cell and talked in a stoic monotone as she told how the spirit of a dead Indian chief spoke through her to instill thoughts in the mind of Nancy Bowen, 66-year-old Cayuga squaw. Both women face indictments for the murder of Mrs. Clothilde Marchand, wife of Henri Marchand, famous artist and curator of the Buffalo Museum of Science, who was beaten and choked to death in her home here Thursday afternoon.

The two squaws were arraigned today before County Judge F. Bret Thorne and entered pleas of not guilty.

Trial will take place as soon as possible, probably within two weeks, it was indicated at the office of District Attorney G. B. Moore.

'THE OUIJA BOARD'

"Nancy Bowen she hate Mrs. Marchand because she cast spell that kill Charlie Bowen, her husband," said Lida in her cell. "Always we fool with Ouija board. With tea cups. With cards. Always the message comes the same: Kill this evil spirit.

"I no tell it. The Ouija board tell it. But Nancy can't read, can't spell the words, so I tell her what they mean.

"The spirits say—go find this witchwoman. She little. She have bobbed hair, black, mixed with gray. She live in stone house. She must die."

"I go with Nancy to the ten-cent store Thursday," she said. "We buy hammer. I show her the way to the house. Then I leave her and go to the pay station on the corner, where I call Mr. Marchand. He come, he take me riding. I no tell him that his wife will be dead when he get home."

TELLS OF MEETING

According to Lila, many meetings have been arranged between the artist-scientist and herself.

"He write me letters," she said. "He come to see me, sometimes alone, sometimes with his wife. When he come alone, he bring me. I no can stop him."

Marchand insists that he was aware of his model's infatuation.

Marchand has admitted. Police Commissioner Roach says, that he made love to Lila Jimerson in order to induce her to pose for him. They had frequent love trysts in the Marchand cabin on the Seneca reservation, it is said.

U.S. HIGH COURT ADJOURNS

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(INS.)—With Oliver Wendell Holmes, 89-year-old senior associate, presiding, four justices of the Supreme Court mounted the bench today long enough to announce the deaths of former Chief Justice Taft and Associate Justice Sanford and adjourn.

To comply with the law, the court also must meet tomorrow, but it will then adjourn until Wednesday when its business will be resumed.

Justice Holmes said:

"On Saturday last, just as we were expecting him at a conference of the justices, we were informed that our brother, Mr. Justice Sanford, had become unconscious pending a slight operation. Five minutes later we received word that he was dead.

"Thus suddenly the life of a faithful worker, who was born also to charm, went out.

"Afterwards came the news that the late chief justice had found relief from his hopeless illness in death.

"Such events must be accepted in silent awe."

Justices Van Devanter, Brandeis and Sutherland also were on the bench.

PUBLIC TO PAY TAFT HOMAGE

Corps area at Baltimore, was selected to command the military procession that will act as a formal escort at the funeral.

A battalion of infantry, a battalion of field artillery, a battalion of Marines and a company of Blue Jackets and a squadron of cavalry will comprise the escort. At Arlington Cemetery another military detachment will await arrival of the funeral party and join the funeral procession.

BAR TO PAY HOMAGE

The American Bar Association appointed a committee to represent it at the funeral. Taft was a member of the association for more than a half century and was its president in 1913 and 1914.

Tomorrow this simple, genial man, whose ruling passion was peace and who once confessed he was glad to relinquish the presidency because he hated the turmoil of it, will be given a soldier's burial.

Probably the most peace-loving of all the presidents, he will rest at last on an oak-covered knoll in Arlington Cemetery, where lie the soldier dead of all the wars America has engaged in. Soldiers will march to the grave, and soldiers will sleep all about him, this jovial, kindly man to whom war was abhorrent and who gave the years of his later life to furthering the cause of peace.

CHOOSES ARLINGTON

Oddly enough, it was his own choice of a final resting place. A few days before he died he informed members of his family that he wanted to be buried in Arlington. No President has ever been buried there.

Flags at half mast on the White House and all federal buildings and the almost complete cessation of government business today attested formally to the national grief over the death of the former President and Chief Justice.

At Army and Navy posts around the world, from Alaska to Haiti and from New York to the Philippines and Shanghai, the slow booming of cannon at half-hour intervals gave emphasis to it.

The funeral of Justice Taft, while accompanied by the pomp and display of the military, will be comparatively simple otherwise. That, too, is in keeping with his wishes.

Early tomorrow morning, a flag-draped caisson will roll up to the brick house in Wyoming avenue and on it will be placed the casket containing his body.

A troop of cavalry will escort it to the Capitol.

CHURCH SERVICES

At noon the caisson will return, and again accompanied by the military, will take the body to the All Souls Unitarian Church in Sixteenth street, where for nearly a quarter of a century the former President was a regular attendant.

The President and Mrs. Hoover will go directly from the White House to the church for the funeral and do not expect to attend the ceremonies in the capitol.

From the church Mr. and Mrs. Hoover will go to Arlington for the service at the grave.

The services will be conducted by the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, who has been for 30 years the pastor. There will be no eulogy of the former President, although his was a career that lends itself to eulogy. No other man in American history ever occupied so many high offices—President, Chief Justice, Cabinet officer, Federal judge, Governor of both the Philippines and of Cuba; Solicitor General—truly a career that could be eulogized. But there will be none. And that, too, is in keeping with his final wishes.

Two poems, also favorites of the former President's, will conclude the brief services at the church—Wordsworth's "Happy Warrior," and selections from Tennyson's "Ode on the Death of the Duke of Wellington."

For the first time in the history of funerals for Presidents or ex-Presidents, the services will be broadcast.

Besides President Hoover, the Justices of the Supreme Court, the Cabinet, the diplomatic corps and large representations from both Senate and House will attend.

Broadcast Taft Service Coast To Coast

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Funeral services for William Howard Taft, to be held Tuesday afternoon in All Souls Unitarian Church, will be broadcast from coast to coast, the National Broadcasting Company announced.

The broadcast will be as follows:

1:40—Introduction by announcer.

1:45—Musical numbers.

1:50—Tolling of the church bell as the cortege nears church.

2:00—Services begin. Processional and sentences by Dr. Pierce.

Lord's prayer.

Prayer by Dr. Pierce.

"Abide With Me," organ and chimes.

Reading of two poems by Dr. Pierce, "The Happy Warrior," by William Wordsworth, and selections from "Ode on Death of Duke Wellington," by Alfred Tennyson.

Closing sentences.

'Pleasure Man' Gets Court Test in Week

NEW YORK, March 10.—(INS.)—The trial of Mae West and 54 members of the cast of "Pleasure Man," charged with producing and participating in an indecent performance, was postponed again today.

Trial was set for next Monday and counsel and prosecutor agreed that no further adjournment would be asked.

Somerset Farmers Visit Local Markets

Fifty farmers from Somerset County were to arrive in Pittsburgh late today to begin investigation of marketing conditions under auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. They will be headed by C. C. McDowell, farm agent, of Somerset County. Tonight they will be guests at a banquet in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Congress Pauses to Honor Taft and Sanford

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(INS.)—Congress laid aside its legislative battles and partisan warfare today to join in paying tribute to William Howard Taft and Supreme Court Justice Edward T. Sanford.

Both Senate and House recessed until Wednesday after adopting resolutions of "profound sorrow and deep regret" at the passing of the former President and his former associate on the Supreme Court bench.

Announcement of Taft's death was made formally by Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader.

2 GIRLS STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Two sisters were in the Braddock General Hospital today, one in a serious condition and the other for observation, after having been knocked down by a hit and run driver, police said, near their home in Linhart road, near Turtle Creek, yesterday.

Marie Decesare, 12, sustained fractures of both legs and internal injuries, while her younger sister, Elizabeth, 7, suffered bruises of the body and legs.

The driver of the car swerved into a concrete abutment to avoid hitting another machine, the automobile skidding across the road and striking the girls.

ARMY MOURNS FOR TAFT

All regular and reserve officers in uniform have been directed by the War Department to wear mourning for a period of 30 days in respect to the memory of Former President William Howard Taft.

Col. T. M. Anderson, chief of staff of the Ninety-ninth Division, whose offices are in the Westinghouse Building, received a telegram this morning from Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley conveying the order.

Each officer will wear a four-inch band of crepe on the left arm. The colors also are to be dressed in mourning.

Benefit Arranged By Hospital Aid

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Ohio Valley General Hospital has arranged another card party to be held at Fraternal Hall, McKees Rocks, Thursday night, March 20.

Hoover to Attend Scout Dinner as Taft Tribute

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(INS.)—President Hoover will attend a dinner tonight celebrating the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scouts of America because the late William Howard Taft was greatly interested in the movement.

Although the President has canceled all engagements in respect for the former chief justice, he feels Mr. Taft would have wanted him to be present at tonight's dinner.

Mr. Hoover does not consider the dinner a social function but one that requires his presence.

Services for Taft In London, March 17

LONDON, March 10.—(AP.)—A memorial service for William Howard Taft will be held at St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, on March 17. The entire American naval delegation, consular and embassy staffs will attend.

JUDGES HONOR SANFORD

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 10.—(INS.)—Simplicity marked the funeral here today of Edward T. Sanford, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, who died in Washington Saturday.

The train bearing the remains of the late justice from the national capital arrived in Knoxville at 1:45 this afternoon, accompanied by several of his associates.

From the train the body was taken directly to Greenwood Cemetery, where the Episcopal services were read by the Rev. Dr. Walter C. Whitaker, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Justices Stone, Butler and McReynolds were honorary pallbearers.

Knoxville attorneys and business men associated with Justice Sanford while he was attorney and federal district judge here were the active pallbearers.

AD RESTORES LOST PIN

Boys and girls may well follow the example of J. Melvin Rogow, 2323 Eldridge street, Squirrel Hill.

J. Melvin Rogow

Melvin found a valuable diamond and platinum pin on the sidewalk. The next day he read the "Lost and Found" ads in the Sun-Telegraph and saw where such a pin had been lost by Miss E. Clinton.

A telephone call identified Miss Clinton as the loser of the particular pin in question. All of which earned Melvin a generous reward and made Miss Clinton very happy to recover her valued pin.

HOOVER ACTS ON HAITI SURVEY

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(INS.)—The investigation of conditions in Haiti, where, for 15 years, American marines and an American high commissioner have virtually run the country, began to bear fruit today.

It was announced at the White House that President Hoover has approved initial recommendations of the Forbes commission, which was sent to Haiti several weeks ago to probe the administration of the country.

It is understood the recommendations call for removal of Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, through the abolition of his office of American high commissioner, and the sending of a civilian diplomatic American minister to Port-Au-Prince.

President Louis Borno, whose term of office expires soon, will be replaced, if the recommendations are carried out, by a provisional president acceptable to both the government and anti-government forces, pending elections.

LAUNCH DRIVE TO AID JEWS

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP.)—A nation-wide campaign to raise $6,000,000 "for relief and reconstruction in Eastern Europe, and for the upbuilding of Palestine" was started here by the national conference of the Allied Jewish Campaign.

The move was toward unified action by Jews of America in aiding Jews in Eastern Europe and Russia and for the upbuilding of Palestine as a Jewish homeland.

A letter from President Hoover to Felix M. Warburg, a New York banker, honorary chairman of the Allied Jewish Campaign, was read in which the executive characterized the work of the delegates as "a large contribution to the cause of goodwill betwen peoples."

County Home Inmate Ends Life With Rope

Joseph Cain, 30, of Maple avenue, East Pittsburgh, was found hanging today from a rafter in the basement of the county home at Woodville. He went to the basement supposedly to render janitor service.

Goff Backs Hoge For Postmaster

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP.)—Senator Goff, of West Virginia, has recommended to Postmaster General Brown the appointment of Lucius D. Hoge, Jr., as postmaster at Clarksburg, W. Va., to succeed John A. Denham, whose term has expired. It was expected the postmaster general would submit Hoge's name to President Hoover soon to obtain his nomination.

For Normal Girlhood

"My daughter Magdalen did not seem to develop as she should. At times she had no pep at all and couldn't get her school work very easily. For four years we doctored her off and on. Then a friend told us how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her years ago, so I got a bottle for Magdalen. Her nerves are quieting, her general health is better and she is now as normal as other girls."—Mrs. J. Bartholdi, Thompson's Addition, The Dalles, Oregon.

15 ARRESTED AS KIDNAP RING

CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP.)—Caught in a trap laid by the state's attorney's office, 14 men and a woman were arrested yesterday, six of them accused as leaders of a ring which authorities said they believed had extorted $600,000 altogether from Cook County victims within a year by kidnaping and torture.

One of those arrested, Michael Rosenberg, has confessed, according to Chief Investigator Patrick Roche, that his home was used as a prison for Theodore Kopelman who helped capture six of the prisoners early yesterday as they sought to extort $25,000 from him in the exclusive Michigan boulevard gown shop of his sister. Rosenberg said, according to Roche, that one of the ring's leaders told him he had made $75,000 in the last year as his share. Since there are two other principals besides the six in custody, Roche figures the extortion must have amounted to $600,000 and possibly more, to cover minor hangers on.

Investigators said they learned that the woman arrested, Myrtle Christine Larson Thorne, was Kopelman's divorced wife and that she lately lived with Frank Gusenberg, one of the seven men slain in the Valentine Day massacre of 1929. They said she has recently been living with Norman Resnick, one of the six ring leaders and described by Roche as the "brains" of the gang.

HOLLYWOOD TAX EXPERT HELD

LOS ANGELES, March 10.—(AP.)—J. Ira Angus, Hollywood tax counsellor, was arrested yesterday on a charge of aiding the falsification of an income tax report. The arrest was made after Angus had been indicted secretly by a Federal grand jury. Federal officers found Angus at his apartment and subdued him after a stiff tussle. He was handcuffed and taken to jail. Bond was fixed at $7,500 but he was unable to obtain it.

The indictment charged that Angus prepared a false income tax report for Earl Foxe, motion picture actor. Officers said the counsellor also had represented Nils Astor, film actor; the Duncan Sisters, Rosetta and Vivien, actresses. At one time he was secretary for Victor McLaglen.

The indictment against Angus followed by several months the return of similar indictments against J. Marjorie Berger and Edward H. Hayden, tax counsellors, and criminal informations against a large group of film celebrities. Miss Berger and Hayden are serving prison terms.

Thugs Hold Up Gas Station, Get $18

Frankness Costs Bootlegger $100 Fine

Victor Nitonki, 48, restaurant proprietor of 2715 Jane street, talked himself into a $100 fine in South Side Police Court today.

About to discharge Nitonki upon failure to police to prove he sold liquor, Magistrate John J. Sweeney decided to ask him a final question.

"What do you do with this liquor?" he asked, referring to some seized in a raid on his restaurant Saturday night.

FLOODED AREAS FACE NEW RAIN

AGEN, France, March 10.—(AP.)—Torrential rains after five days of magnificent weather again descended upon the flood regions of Southern France today at Agen, Moissac and Montauban, greatly hampering the search for bodies.

The homeless of Moissac were sheltered in army barracks while those of Agen are being taken care of at the artillery school.

Running water is now practically normal here. All wreckage has been cleared and the total loss of life fixed at nine, all women and children. In Moissac the bodies recovered numbered 131.

Estimates of the total number of dead ranged between 400 and 500.

PATIENTS FLEE ASYLUM FIRE

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., March 10.—(AP.)—Fire destroyed part of the six-story administration building at the State Hospital for the Insane today. It was occupied by Dr. C. St. Clair Drake and staff as offices and quarters. Employes escaped and kept inmates at a safe distance.

The blaze broke out on the top floor and required the combined fire fighting forces of Jacksonville and Springfield to control the flames.

Archie Bowen, state superintendent of charities, said extreme measures were adopted to keep patients from getting too near the flames or from escaping in the confusion.

Four False Alarms Sounded in 2 Hours

Firemen responded to four false alarms within two hours last night. The first was sounded from Sacramento and Minton streets, Sheraden, shortly after 7 p. m. Others came from Grandview avenue and Hallock street, Mt. Washington; Bayridge and Stebbins streets, Brookline, and Eureka and Millbridge streets, Allentown.

Ladies' Aid to Hold Bellevue Luncheon

OFFICIALS SENT PARK REPORT

To increase interest in the Squaw Run county park projects the recreation committee of the Chamber of Commerce resolved today to present 100 copies of its report on the plan to municipal authorities in that part of the county. The report is a 100-page document illustrated with photographs and charts.

A campaign of publicity was also decided upon with a view to educating the people as to the desirability of having a park especially devoted to aquatic sports.

BEFORE COUNTY OFFICIALS

The plan has already been laid before the County Commissioners with the report of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce recommending it.

The plan is for the county to acquire the Squaw Run valley for a distance of 3,800 feet upstream from the point where the run empties into the Allegheny River and build a boat harbor, swimming pool, lake and wading pool.

It is estimated that the land for the park can be acquired for $507,000, and that the entire project can be carried through at a cost not to exceed $1,388,651.

WOULD ACCOMMODATE 17,000

At its meeting today the recreation committee decided to direct attention to Pittsburgh's lack of facilities for water sports, and the important part that aquatics play in municipal recreation systems in other cities.

The proposed swimming pool at Squaw Run would accommodate 17,000 persons. The plans call for pure water constantly changed. At the mouth of the creek there is to be an elliptical boat harbor 500 feet wide.

E. T. Whiter, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is chairman of the chamber's recreation committee, and John M. Rice, consulting engineer, is chairman of the sub-committee that drew up plans for the Squaw Run Park.

ILLNESS DELAYS VOTE HEARING

Illness of Defense Counsel John D. Meyer today resulted in the postponement of a court hearing on the outcome of which may hinge the political supremacy of Wilmerding borough.

The postponement hearing involves a contest over the election of Councilmen James Volpe and Charles H. Ray, Tax Collector C. R. Shiring and Justice of the Peace Harry Biggs.

Opponents of the Volpe faction attacked the legality of 258 votes cast in the election, maintaining that if these questioned votes were thrown out the successful candidates would have been Joseph R. Dick and J. M. Battenhouse as councilmen; James F. Richards as tax collector and W. C. Shubert as justice of the peace.

Thieves Steal Bus Company's Change

Thieves who forced a rear door of the station of the Colonial Stages bus line, 927 Liberty avenue, between midnight and 6 a. m. today broke open a cash drawer and took between $45 and $60 in small change. The robbery was discovered by John McCall, manager, when he opened the station.

A small safe in the front office was dragged into a rear room, but bore no evidence of having been tampered with.

Purdue Football Player Is Shot

CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP.)—Herbert Galletch, 23, of La Grange, a suburb, identified by police as a Purdue University football player, was shot in the hip today when he and a companion attempted to force their way into a westside rooming house. The companion, Thomas Klein, of Chicago, was arrested. Joseph Terrese, owner of the rooming house, shot at them.

MARKET STREET at McCann's DIAMOND SQUARE

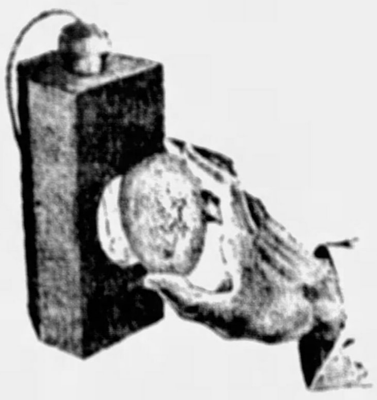
MONDAY AND TUESDAY

McCann's Eggs Are Tested for Freshness



Even at this time of the year when eggs are flooding the market, we do not take any chances. Every McCann egg is candled by an expert egg candler before it goes to our counters. Most stores do not take this precaution when eggs are plentiful, but nothing is too much trouble for us when it comes to giving satisfaction to our patrons. We buy nothing but top quality eggs; then, we test them to make sure. There's not one chance in a hundred of getting an undesirable egg at McCann's.

Every McCann egg is held before an egg candling lamp, as in the above illustration, to determine whether it is absolutely fresh. When you consider the thousands of eggs sold here every week the magnitude of this work is apparent... but nothing is too much trouble for McCann's.

JUDGES' POWER IN CONTEMPT FACES CURB

Senator, Stirred by Ohio Reversal, to Push for Pending Bill's Passage

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—A new drive in Congress to shear federal judges of some of their powers in contempt proceedings has been launched.

It was a direct result of the action of the Appellate Court of Cuyahoga County, Ohio, in overruling Judge Frederick P. Walther, of the County Common Pleas Court, in attempting to punish two Cleveland editors for criticizing his official conduct.

Senator Vandenberg, (Rep.), of Michigan, who has had a bill pending in the Senate since last September to throw greater safeguards around the freedom of the press, declared he will press for action by Congress.

Senator Allen, (Rep.), of Kansas, who like Vandenberg has been a newspaper publisher and editor for years, also declared himself in favor of the Vandenberg bill.

FINED TWO EDITORS

Judge Walther cited for contempt and ordered fines of $500 and 30 days in jail for the editors of the Cleveland Press for printing an editorial criticizing him for issuing an injunction restraining the sheriff from interfering with the so-called "contribution" system of gambling at a race track.

The three judges comprising the Court of Appeals in upholding "freedom of the press and freedom of speech for a free people," declared the ends of justice will be better served if judges refer matters of contempt, other than those committed in their immediate presence, to another judge for trial.

That is the object of the Vandenberg bill.

Senator Vandenberg said:

FAIR PLAY OUTRAGED

"The Cleveland case was my inspiration for introducing the bill. I filed it shortly after Judge Walther cited the editors for contempt. His action was an outrage upon the American people's sense of fair play. It smacked of tyranny.

"I am glad the Appellate Court has corrected this situation. Their decision, indicating a broad conception of the American principle of freedom of the press, should have a salutary effect upon other courts.

"But this was a state court matter. My bill applies to the federal courts. It seems to me to be very indiscreet for a judge to hold the writer of an editorial in contempt and then sit as judge in the case affecting his judicial dignity."

ALLEN JOINS PROTEST

Senator Allen said:

"I am for Senator Vandenberg's bill. It is not designed to give license to the press, but to write into a law a principle which is generally recognized as fair.

"Such a bill should not be necessary. We expect fair play from our courts. But so that the sacred right of a free press, subject of course to the laws of libel or slander, may be protected against tyrannical whims that may seize an occasional judge, I believe the Vandenberg bill should be passed."

KILLS FAITHFUL WIFE, SELF

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., March 10.—(AP.)—Because she refused to leave her husband for him, Thomas Meyers, 23, of Lewiston, married and the father of two children, killed Mrs. Agnes Jones, 19, and himself in her home yesterday. Meyers sent a bullet from an automatic pistol through the brain of the woman, and then turned the weapon on himself. Both died instantly.

Coroner W. L. Draper said he would issue certificates of death by murder and suicide.

Frank Jones, 23, the woman's husband, broke a leg in a fall on a slippery sidewalk six weeks ago. While he was laid up his wife took a job as a waitress in a social club. There she met Meyers. He became infatuated and urged her to run away with him.

Meyers went to the club and threatened Mrs. Jones. She called a cab and went home. Meyers followed her and walked in the unlocked front door.

Other persons in the house heard Mrs. Jones cry out "Please don't." The cry was followed by two shots. Jones, able to hobble about on crutches, went to the kitchen, where he found his wife and Meyers dead on the floor. The pistol was clutched in the dead man's hand.

Brooklyn Bullfighter Returns to Arena

VALENCIA, Spain, March 10.—(AP.)—Sidney Franklin, bullfighter, of Brooklyn, N. Y., made his reappearance in the arena yesterday, the opening of the season.

He dispatched four young bulls of the Concha Sierra herd and was cheered by a big crowd for his expert handling of the cape and sword.

New Trial Refused 2 Women Convicted

WAYNESBURG, Pa., March 10.—A new trial was refused Mrs. Annie Kasale and her husband, John Kasale, of Bobtown, convicted here last week of a liquor charge by a jury composed of women. Judge A. H. Sayers refused the appeal.

DEATH OF TAFT STIRS VATICAN

ROME, March 10.—(AP)—The news of former President Taft's death produced a profound impression here, especially at the Vatican where his name is still recalled with respect although most of those dealing with the 1903 regarding the settlement of religious questions in the Philippines are dead long ago.

First among them to go were Pope Leo XIII, his secretary of State, Cardinal Rampolla, and his Assistant Secretary of State who later became Pope Benedict XV. The last among them to die was Cardinal Merry del Val who was then 38 years old, a relatively young prelate.

There are still some old Vatican ecclesiastics who remember with pleasure Mr. Taft's jovial frank dignified personality and the charming manner which enabled him after three months of patient negotiations to settle one of the most important problems which arose from the Spanish-American War.

Among those in Rome, Pietro Gasparri, who then was not a cardinal but a simple titular bishop.

Morning Frock to Make at Home

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Isn't this an adorable frock to wear about the home? And so very easy to make, too. The gathered skirt with additional ruffle placed low in the new manner, the deep collar and the short set-in sleeves are interesting fashion notes.

Pattern 1852 is charming made of printed gingham percale, dimity or cotton broadcloth and trimmed with white pique collar. The binding may be braid purchased ready for use or self material.

Designed only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3⅛ yards of 36-inch printed material and ½ yard contrasting for collar.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our PATTERN BOOK of NEW SPRING and SUMMER STYLES is FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

English Girl Shuns Big Fortune to Aid Gandhi

NEW DELHI, India, March 10.—(AP)—When Mahatma Gandhi starts his march of civil disobedience with his 50 volunteers during the coming week an English girl will be left in charge of his College of Devotees. She is Miss Madeline Slade, daughter of the late Admiral Sir Edward Slade who has abandoned a private fortune to espouse the cause of Gandhi. She lives the life of an ascetic in a hilly veil.

Apartment Building Damaged by Fire

Fire last night damaged the drug store of J. Y. Crawford, 472 North State street, Clairton, to the extent of $5,000, according to Fire Chief Fred Batchelor who estimated the damage. The fire started in the cellar, due to an overheated furnace and spread to the store, damaging the stock. The building, a three-story apartment, is occupied by the Crawford family on the second floor and another family on the third.

REDS ARRESTED AT SERVICES

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—While several thousand persons listened here last night to addresses of sympathy for co-religionists in Russia, representatives of the Communist party outside the building distributed leaflets upholding the program of the Soviet government.

Six of the Communists were arrested and later released on $10 bail for appearance on a charge of distributing leaflets without permission.

Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, vice-president of Georgetown University, was the principal speaker and the Right Reverend James E. Freeman, the Episcopal bishop of Washington, the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Rabbi Abram Simon of the Washington Hebrew congregation and the Rev. Frederick C. Reynolds, pastor of the Wesley Methodist Church, took part in the service.

Boat Overturns, Boy Drowns, 2 Rescued

SHARON, Pa., March 10.—(AP)—Rosson Bonaquest, 10, drowned in the Shenango River near Sharpsville when a boat overturned late yesterday. Coroner W. J. McGrath was informed today. The boy was riding with two others in a boat they had made themselves. His companions jumped from the craft capsizing it and throwing Bonaquest into the water. The other boys reached the river bank and Sharpsville firemen were summoned. The body was not recovered.

Health Officer Will Visit Restaurants

Health Officer William Westwood, McKees Rocks, has announced that he will begin an inspection of all restaurants in the borough this week. State laws require that employes of restaurants must be qualified with certificates of medical inspection and the officer proposes to see that this regulation is complied with.

Club Will Elect At Edgewood Acres

The Community Club of Edgewood Acres will hold its annual election of officers at the next meeting of the body to be held Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. M. E. Reagan, Mrs. George Hogg, Mrs. H. I. Norton and Mrs. L. E. Clark as hostesses. The program will consist of a play and the giving of current events.

Three Sisters Killed By Oil-Kindled Fire

NEWARK, O., March 10.—(AP)—An explosion and fire at the farm home of Lawrence Thompson, 15 miles north of here, today had resulted in the death of Pauline Thompson, 11; and her sisters, Mabel, 9, and Mary, 8. The accident occurred last evening when Pauline attempted to rekindle a fire with kerosene.

You will like Kotex
because of its rounded, tapered corners

And you will like the assurance that 85% of America's leading hospitals use this very same absorbent.

YOU'LL discover, once you use Kotex, any number of things about it which distinguish it from any ordinary sanitary pad. One of these is the fact that it's shaped to fit. That means you have increased protection. You can wear any kind of frock under the most difficult circumstances and you're entirely free of self-consciousness. You can feel immaculate and dainty, for Kotex deodorizes by a special process, which is most effective.

Then, too, Kotex is hygienically safe. It protects health at a time when vitality is low. Over 85% of our leading hospitals have chosen the very same material of which Kotex is made, because of its remarkable efficiency and surgical purity. What a comfort to know you are using the same sanitary protection hospitals find best.

Superior Absorbent

Kotex, you know, is made of Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding . . . a cellulose substance which performs the same sanitary function as cotton, with five times the absorbency.

Then, of course, there is the reason most women first began to use Kotex. It is disposable. Just think what that fact alone has meant to the women of America and women all over the world. You will want to try Kotex if you haven't already. Kotex Company, Chicago, Ill.

IN HOSPITALS . . .
1—Kotex absorbent is used in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.
2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much!

The New Graybar Washer

It washes and dries clothes at the same time..one switch controls all operations.

It requires only 20 minutes of your time to wash, rinse and dry an entire load of clothes.

It does away with heavy lifting of clothes...it rinses mechanically...a great saving of the operator's strength.

It washes clothes thoroughly clean with absolutely no preliminary soaking. What a saving of time and labor.

It has arrived. It's right here in town. It's the new Graybar washer. The first time we have been able to offer a wringerless washer for less than $100. This washer doesn't stop at doing a good job of washing. It also does an A-1 job of mechanical rinsing and spin-drying. Which means an absolute minimum of effort on your part.

What's more, it washes and dries at same time. Picture the minutes saved. Graybar requires just 20 minutes' help from you to wash, rinse and dry a full load. It's thorough with heavy soiled things. Gentle with dainty things. Sturdy. Dependable. Easy to operate. Easy to clean. Does away with all soaking of clothes. Eliminates all heavy lifting.

DOPE CURB BILL EXPECTED TO PASS

Porter Forecasts Early Creation by Congress of New Narcotics Bureau

By KENNETH CLARK,
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Belief that the bill creating an independent narcotics bureau will be expedited through Congress to effect an early strengthening and reorganization of the federal narcotics enforcement system has been expressed by Representative Porter (Rep.), of Pennsylvania.

Hearings have been concluded before the House Ways and Means Committee. An executive session is to be held shortly to draft a report.

As no witnesses appear to oppose the legislation, Porter is hopeful of a favorable report.

LICENSES PROPOSED

Porter's next attack on the dope traffic will be through the companion bill he has introduced to require all drug dispensers to have federal licenses. The purpose is to remove addicts and convicts from the ranks of persons entitled to prescribe or sell narcotics.

As the American Medical Association has indicated opposition to the proposal, Porter has suggested that a committee of physicians be summoned to Washington to iron out differences. The group would meet with a subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which has the bill in charge. In a letter to Dr. William Gerry Morgan, president-elect of the American Medical Association, Porter said:

ASKS CONFERENCE

"I desire to assure you that I will ask the committee to consider the bill in its present form only after I have exhausted every effort to reach an agreement on a new draft which will be satisfactory to the medical and pharmaceutical professions.

"I shall be only too pleased to meet with you immediately after the passage of the bill creating a Bureau of Narcotics in the Treasury Department."

The President's National Enforcement Commission next Tuesday will take up for the first time a study of the dope traffic. Through the intercession of Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, the commission will hear a New York delegation headed by Capt. Richmond P. Hobson, Spanish-American War hero.

Autoists Appeal Fine by Squire

WAYNESBURG, Pa., March 10.—The jurisdiction of Justice of the Peace E. R. Patterson, of Waynesburg, has been challenged in an appeal from a summary conviction taken by E. Dundas and E. W. Thompson, of Washington County, who were fined $25 and $10 for motor code violations. The two claim they were arrested in Amity, Washington County, and were not given a hearing before the nearest justice of the peace from where the alleged infraction is claimed to have occurred.

Consul From Mexico Will Address Club

The annual election of officers will be held at the regular meeting of the Thursday Club Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. C. Rogers, East End avenue, Wilkinsburg. The speaker of the afternoon will be F. U. Arrera Guerra, consul of Mexico, who will speak on "Mexico."

Local Scout Officials At National Dinner

Allegheny County Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be represented at the twentieth anniversary dinner of the national organization in Washington, tonight. John M. Phillips, the only Pittsburgh member of the national executive board, and Edwin C. May will be present.

4 SIOUX KILLED BY ANTI-FREEZE

DEVILS LAKE, N. D., March 10 —(AP.)—Four Sioux Indians are dead, three others are in a serious condition, as the result of drinking what officials said they believed was an anti-freeze automobile radiator solution at a dance near Tokio, N. D., on the Fort Totten Indian reservation last night.

The dead are Francis Razett, 28, Elbow Woods, S. D.; Jerome Onehouse, 26, Fort Totten; Jerome Albert, 38, Fort Totten; Mike Goodhouse, 24, Fort Totten.

Those in a hospital here and who may die are George Ross, 20; William Wanata, 20, and Francis Demars.

James Jackson, a member of the party, is missing and it is feared he may have succumbed while en route to his home following the dance.

Jackson left the A. O. Coates place, near Tokio, where the dance was held, and mounted his pony, evidently intending to ride to his home, several miles away, and his condition, according to witnesses, was such as to indicate that he could not have been able to reach his home.

The first intimation which C. O. Gray, superintendent of the Indian reservation, received of the tragedy was late last night when word came from the Coates home that a doctor was needed to treat sick Indians.

Dr. B. edlacek, of Oberon, reached the Coates home several hours later with Superintendent Gray. Three Indians were dead, and the fourth, Mike Goodhouse, died a short time later.

Matthia, Taylor, a Sioux Indian, was held by the authorities for questioning. He is accused of stealing a quantity of anti-freeze compound from a store in Tokio and which it is believed the Indians drank.

Victim of Collision Taken to Altoona

STEUBENVILLE, O., March 10.—The body of James Reisinger, 72, merchant tailor, victim of an auto crash here last night, was claimed by his niece, Mrs. Joseph Bair, of Altoona, Pa. The body was taken to that city. Reisinger was killed when a car crashed into a machine driven by Probate Judge Emmett Morrow, this city, who was injured.

Man Sues for $2,000 After Auto Accident

BEAVER, Pa., March 10.—Jacob Moran, Ambridge, has filed suit for $2,000 damages against Anton and Anna Breck, Ambridge, for injuries alleged to have been received when run down by an automobile driven by Anton Breck.

No One Wants Job To Run Spanish Town

MADRID, March 10.—(AP.)—If Don Quixote were in Spain now, he might be able to keep his promise to make his faithful squire, Sancho Panza, ruler of a town. Because for the first time in Spanish history, a hamlet has been found where no one wants office.

In the town of Torrelaguna, citizens have declined to accept offices. In an effort to find officials, the governor of the province sent a herald through the streets announcing that any citizen wishing to become mayor, judge or solicitor, should present his application in the usual form.

FOULC BRONZES GIVEN MUSEUM

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—(AP.)—Fiske Kimball, director of the Pennsylvania Museum of Art, announced last night that George D. Widener, of Philadelphia, has given to the museum a group of three of the bronze masterpieces of the Edmond Foulc collection of Gothic and Renaissance art. The pieces represent a gift of $100,000.

The pieces are part of the Foulc collection of 191 objects valued at more than $1,000,000, which have been reserved for purchase for Philadelphia. Announcement of the gift was made at a private showing in the museum of the entire collection.

The bronzes given by Widener, Kimball said, are three of the most famous of the Italian renaissance. One piece, the "Lion Hunt," by Bertoldo di Giovanni, is regarded as the most important and beautiful Renaissance bronze in existence. Another piece, "David," by Bartolommeo Bellano, is a statuette depicting David, with sword in hand, standing alongside the head of Goliath. The third piece, one of the few signed bronzes of the fifteenth century, is a statuette of Venus by Adriano Fiorentino.

The entire Foulc collection will be placed on public display Sunday, March 16.

Ford Due in Turkey, Plans Tractor Plant

ISTANBUL, March 10.—(AP.)—Henry Ford is expected to arrive in Angora, Turkish capital, in April to arrange for the building of a tractor factory there. He will also negotiate with the Turkish government for a concession in the rich, exploited iron deposits of Prinkipo and Princess Islands, near Istanbul.

CANAL SOUND AFTER QUAKE

PANAMA CITY, March 10.—(AP.)—Except for cracks in the walls of seeral buildings, the inhabitants of Panama and of the Canal zone had nothing to remind them that there had been earthquake shocks within the past two days.

Col. Julian Schley, maintenance engineer of the Panama Canal, said he had received no reports of any damage to the canal, and ships were passing from ocean to ocean on schedule.

Insurance Man Kills Himself

EVANSVILLE, Ind., March 10.—(AP.)—Aquilla P. Dorris, 57, an insurance agent who came here recently from Huntington, W. Va., shot and killed himself at his home late Saturday.

ARREST WOMAN IN THEFTS

MEADVILLE, Pa., March 10.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Bigenhoe, 50, was arrested yesterday at her home in Little Cooley on charges of receiving stolen goods, breaking and entering and larceny. A week ago, her son, Shelvey Arthurs, 23, was arrested on charges of larceny.

The arrests, according to county authorities, are a culmination of the finding of a quantity of allegedly stolen household goods in the Bigenhoe home.

Mrs. Bigenhoe, District Attorney Stuart A. Culbertson said, had been married five times and formerly resided at Glenfield, Allegheny County. Her five small children were brought to Meadville last week and placed in a home, he said.

MOTOR TAXES DEDUCTIBLE

If you are anxious not to pay a single cent more in Federal income tax than you have to, you may include the cost of your automobile license and your operator's license in your taxes.

They are deductible, it was stated today at the office of D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue. The gasoline tax, of course, is deductible, too. And "plenty" of Pittsburghers, it was stated, deduct these items in computing income tax.

It has been calculated that if one spent $10 for license plates last year, and $1 for operator's license, and $19 for gasoline tax, the amount that could be saved by deducting these items from the taxable income would be eleven and one-fourth cents.

MOONEY PLANS BOMBER HUNT

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., March 10.—(AP.)—If and when Thomas J. Mooney gets out of San Quentin Prison he intends to devote the remainder of his life in helping to clear up the mystery of the preparedness parade bombing outrage in San Francisco in 1916, for which he and Warren K. Billings were sentenced to prison for life. Ten persons were killed and 40 injured in the bombing.

Mooney told the Associated Press at the prison here today that the 14 years he has spent there have burnt out of him the fiercier passions of his youth and removed from his soul all bitterness toward those responsible for his being there. He said he holds no enmity for any of the officers connected with his prosecution. Most of these, he said, have become convinced of his innocense and are working for his release.

In addition to trying to solve the bombing mystery and vindicate himself Mooney said he would do what he could for the laboring classes.

TAKE SALTS IF RHEUMATISM IS BOTHERING YOU

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat no sweets for awhile, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid or body waste matter, and is often generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this toxic acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove waste and stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

HOOVER TALK TO BOY SCOUTS FEATURE ON TWO STATIONS HERE TONIGHT

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

AN ADDRESS by President Herbert Hoover before a gathering of Boy Scouts in the New Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C., will be brought to Pittsburgh at 9 o'clock tonight by WCAE and WJAS. The occasion is the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scouts of America.

Polly Moran and Bob Montgomery, screen stars will entertain on the Filmland program, WJAS at 7:30.

Polly Moran

A program ranging from the Prologue to "Pagliacci" to the Spanish ballad "Estrellita" will be sung by Marico Basiola, young baritone of the Metropolitan, during the 7:30 Family Party over WCAE.

The Maytag program, KDKA at 9, will have P. L. Maytag, chairman of the board of directors of the Maytag Company, as a speaker.

Fred Rodgers, who was the only man allowed in the KDKA studio when Amos and Andy broadcast here, says the boys act very much "in character" before the "mike."

They scowl frown, laugh as the continuity directs, even though some of their gestures do not register on the air. To avoid crackling noises as the pages are turned, the continuity is written on tissue paper.

NOT HIGH HAT

Correll (Andy) and Gosden (Amos) are very fine chaps and the halo of "high-hattedness" laid upon them is part of an NBC promotion scheme. The boys are very democratic.

They laughed and joked with persons who sought their autographs. Checkbooks, envelopes, hatbands served as writing paper.

WISE, BY HECK!

Jimmy Heck, 13, a pupil of Thaddeus Stevens School and nephew of Gertrude Heck, hostess at KayDee, was on the job. He has the largest collection of radio autographs in Pittsburgh. He told Amos he hoped to be an architect when he grew up and Amos replied humorously that he hoped some day to have enough money to engage a good architect for a house he's thinking of building. "Maybe I can wait for you to grow up?" Amos queried. "Don't you get $50,000 a year?" asked Jimmy, with an eye to business.

After being chased to three parts of the William Penn Hotel, Amos and Andy were finally enbounced in 868.

When Amos jokingly put over a Chicago call for Ruby Taylor he told the operator the number was PLAZA 007. When she replied later that there was no such number, Amos pulled his partner's gag, "Oh, Oh!" and hung up the receiver. He also "resisted" that the girl call up the Mayor. She did, and Amos put to His Honor a "propolition" for settling the taxi strike.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA
Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membrane and inhibits germ growth.
Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

RADIO MAN GETS GOOD COUGH ADVICE

MR. W. M. PERKINS
Customer suggests REM
Mr. W. M. Perkins of 1914 Perrysville Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa., is a radiotrician, and giving service to his customers means a lot of travelling around in bad weather. "Last winter I happened to get a pretty bad cough-and-cold," says Mr. Perkins. "It bothered me quite a bit at night. My throat was sore and I had a tight feeling in the chest. I was repairing a radio at a lady's house, and she heard me coughing. She told me to try REM, for her little daughter had used it with very good results. I got a bottle at Krey's Drug Store, Perrysville Ave. and Charles St., and I noticed in a few minutes that my throat felt easier. In a day or so the cough left me." REM's a great remedy for coughs, as thousands who have used it testify. Profit by their experience—and ask your druggist for REM.
REM is quicker. Clings to the throat. Starts relief immediatel, REM
REM'S easy to take, too. Children and parents can both appreciate that REM

The COLONIAL TELLER

Published by THE COLONIAL TRUST COMPANY in the belief that the news of a great banking institution is of wide public interest. . . . . . .

SAVINGS CAN HELP TO EARN MORE THAN 4%

Intelligent Use Of Time Accounts Is Productive.

EXAMPLES ARE QUOTED

That a savings account can be the means of earning much more than four per cent interest was pointed out by A. D. Roth, vice-president of The Colonial Trust Company. Many persons are making their savings accounts earn as much as 25 per cent for them.

Man Depreciates Auto.

This is done by paying for purchases on the installment plan . . . and paying the installments in advance. One man who buys a new automobile each three years begins putting regular monthly deposits in his savings account for his NEXT car the minute he has bought a new one. In reality, he is depreciating his car month by month as he rides and when the time has come to trade it in he has saved enough to pay for the new one. He saves the financing charge, he frequently gets a better price by paying for cash, and, having the cash ready, he can buy at an opportune moment. His savings account helps him to earn much more than 4 per cent.

Women Save on Clothes.

Some women do the same thing to prepare for the purchase of expensive articles of clothing, like coats and furs. Others use their savings accounts to accumulate funds in advance for heavy expenditures like coal, furniture, radios and Oriental rugs. Penalties on taxes can often be avoided by prompt payments, and the way for that is paved by an adequate savings account.

MAN IN CHILE OPENS ACCOUNT

Selects The Colonial To Handle His Savings Fund.

The newest customer of The Colonial Trust Company is living on the Tropic of Capricorn. He is employed with an exploration company in the back country of Chile, at a town called Chuquicamata, up the river from Antofazasta.

A letter was received from him by the Savings Department. It contained a sight draft for the initial deposit.

He wrote that he expects to come in and visit the bank in July of 1932.

The Colonial has a number of other depositors in South America. Most of them opened their accounts here after they arrived in the South.

PAY INSURANCE ON EASIER PLAN

More than $5,000,000 of life insurance is being carried in the Life Insurance Premium Payment Plan at The Colonial Trust Company.

The premiums on that insurance are being paid monthly, instead of quarterly and semi-annually. In that way, the insured individuals are able to meet their premiums more easily.

Officers of the Trust Department or the Savings Department at The Colonial will be glad to tell you how you can pay your insurance premiums on these easy-payment terms. A small booklet describing the plan will be sent on request.

Colonial President Heads Council

JAMES C. CHAPLIN.

Mr. Chaplin, president of The Colonial Trust Company, has been elected to the presidency of the Council of Sewickley.

Colonial Is Located On Three Streets

The banking rooms of The Colonial Trust Company are located in the center of the business district, and have entrances on Wood street, Diamond street and Fourth avenue. The location is one of the most convenient in the downtown district.

Save $20 Month —Receive $1,000

Small Regular Deposits Quickly Amount to Large Totals.

Regular deposits of $19.50 a month amount to $1,015.89 in four years, if deposited at The Colonial at 4 per cent interest, compounded semi-annually.

Almost $80 of that total will be the interest added by The Colonial.

TELLS HOW TO SAVE GIVEN SUM

Booklet Shows How Much to Deposit and How Long.

Various methods by which an individual can save any sum from $100 to $10,000 are described in a booklet distributed by The Colonial Trust Company.

This booklet tells how much money can be deposited each week or each month in order to achieve a given amount in from one to 10 years. Interest at four per cent, compounded semi-annually is figured into the computation.

As an example, to save $1,000 in one year it is necessary to deposit $19 a week; to save it in two years, it is necessary to save only $9.50 a week; to save it in three years, $6.50 a month; to save it in four years, $19.50 a month; in five years, $15.50 a month.

Copies of this booklet will be sent on request to any person who is interested in them.

Twice as Many Wills Now Name Trust Companies

Estates Settled More Efficiently and At Less Cost.

The rapidity with which the public is abandoning the old custom of naming friends and relatives as executors under wills and is turning this work over to trust companies and banks is shown in some figures made public at the recent midwinter conference of trust officials in New York.

Number of Wills Naming Banks or Trust Companies as Executors Or Trustees

1929	60,026

Many reasons were given for the growing custom. For one thing, trust companies have much more experience in the work of settling estates and can frequently do it more rapidly, more efficiently or more economically. If an individual is appointed as executor or trustee, he may die before the work is completed, whereas a trust company has perpetual existence. An individual may be unable to act at times because of absence or illness, but a trust company is always present.

The Trust Department at The Colonial Trust Company will be glad to serve as executor under your will. Officers of the Trust Department will meet with you and your attorney for a discussion of your will.

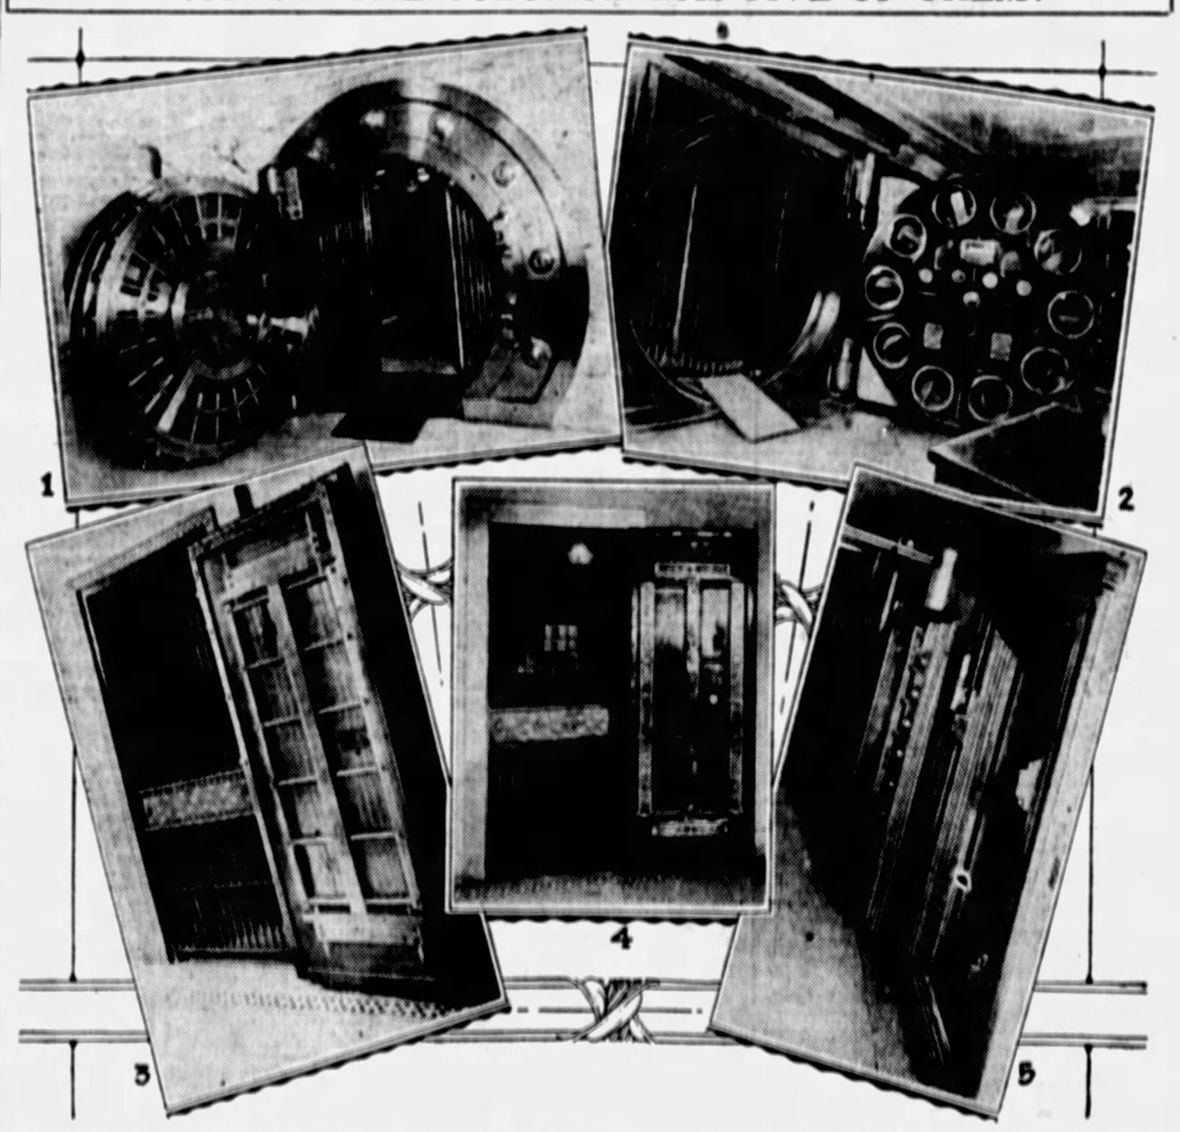
Attorney On Colonial Board

DON ROSE.

Mr. Rose, a member of the law firm of Rose and Eichenauer, is a director of The Colonial Trust Company.

Mr. Rose is also general counsel for the Pittsburgh Coal Company and a director of the Rose and McGregor Coal Company.

VAULTS? THE COLONIAL HAS FIVE OF THEM!



If you walk through the corridors of The Colonial Trust Company you will notice a large vault in the center of the building. It is an imposing-looking affair (and, as far as burglars are concerned, it is even more imposing than it looks) . . . yet it is only one of five vaults scattered around through The Colonial's building and it is not even the most important of the five. The five vaults and their different functions are:

1. The main vault, for the exclusive use of customers. It is below stairs.

2. The first-floor vault contains the many millions of value in securities held by the company in a trust capacity; and the bank's securities and specie.

3. The vault for safekeeping of silver, rugs and other bulky valuables. Used largely by people who are going away from home and who do not wish to allow valuable possessions exposed to theft.

4. Vault for storage of old bank records and other important papers.

5. Vault for records held by the transfer department, including corporation stocks, etc.

Baldwin to Install Boy Scout Troop

Installation of the Boy Scout troop 211 Baldwin Township, will be held Friday night in the McGibney School. The troop consists of 12 boys and is sponsored by the Baldwin Comunity Club, a woman's organization, the first similar body to take such steps in Allegheny County.

WINE PARTY IN SCHOOL NETS 5

Five youths today were held over for further hearing in Morals Court as an aftermath of a wine party held clandestinely in the boiler room of the Springfield school, Thirtieth and Smallman streets, last night. Police attention was given them when one began shooting a pistol.

The boys were arrested with the remnants of three gallons of wine. Adam Palley, 16, of 3035 Mulberry way, said a 14-year-old boy had stolen the wine and the revolver from his father.

The others gave the following names: Mike Paulokin, 17, and his brother, John Paulokin, 19, of 42 Thirtieth street; Robert Carter, 17, Negro, of 3015 Smallman street, alleged to have been shooting the revolver, and James Arrington, 18, Negro, of 3031 Mulberry way. A sixth—the 14-year-old boy, whose name the Sun-Telegraph omits because of his youth—was turned over to Juvenile Court.

Engineers Here Win Match At Bridge

Pittsburgh engineers were successful over a team of Cleveland engineers in a duplicate auction bridge match in the local headquarters of Engineering Society of Western Pennsylvania in William Penn Hotel Saturday night. The local engineers were victors by a margin of two games. Harley L. Freeman, W. L. Havens, T. H. Sweet and J. B. Clough, of Cleveland, were opposed to W. C. Buell, Jr., M. D. Moeller, J. S. Robertson and K. P. Treschow, of Pittsburgh.

TRAIN HITS CAR KILLING SIX

FLORIN, Pa., March 10.—(AP)—Six persons were killed last night when a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train struck their automobile at a grade crossing.

The victims, all of whom were from Lancaster, were Mr. and Mrs. George H. Frey, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hooten.

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 10.—Two women and a man were injured and another man escaped hurts when their automobile was in collision with an eastbound New York express of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Larimer crossing, 15 miles from here, last night.

The injured are Minnie Meir, 28; her sister, Elizabeth, 21, both of 206 West Ninth street, Homestead, and Orbison Lynn, 26, of 249 Braddock avenue, Turtle Creek. They were taken to Westmoreland Hospital, where it was said today they would recover.

Frank Gangware, 40, of Larimer, driver of the machine, escaped injury.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 10.—When the machine in which they were riding left the highway near Perryopolis early this morning one man was killed, another believed fatally hurt and a third slightly injured. The machine rolled over several times, throwing the victims one hundred feet away. Leonard Laatu of Monessen, driver, was arrested.

Matt Pisual, 19, of Monessen, was so badly injured that he died on the way to the Uniontown Hospital. Herman Waxman, also of Monessen, is in a critical condition.

POISON BLAMED IN 'JAKE' ILLS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 10.—Cause of the strange paralysis which has stricken nearly 300 persons here after drinking Jamaica ginger will not be known until laboratory analyses are completed today by city and state chemists.

State and federal officials have stopped all shipments of Jamaica ginger into the city.

Belief is general that poison liquor has been mixed with the regular supply of Jamaica ginger, known commonly here as "jake." City Health Director Walter H. Miles concurred in this opinion.

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., March 10.—(AP.)—A total of 96 cases of a strange paralysis had been reported to county physicians in three East Tennessee counties today, 68 cases being reported in Washington County, 24 in Carter County and four from Unico County.

FLOOD-CONTROL PLANS READY

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP.)—The War Department is virtually ready to proceed with flood control construction on the main stem of the Mississippi River at an expenditure of $35,000,000.

Secretary Hurley announced today that Army engineers had virtually completed plans for the work which would be made possible by the amount included in the pending appropriation bill.

The War Department announced that Attorney General Mitchell had instructed the United States Attorney for Eastern Louisiana to institute condemnation proceedings in the Bonnet Carre floodway of railroad and highway rights of way.

Officer at Vitale Dinner Loses Pay

NEW YORK, March 10.—(INS.)—Patrolman Arthur C. Johnson, whose pistol was stolen at the welcome home dinner of Magistrate Vitale on December 7, went to work today for a month without pay. He was found guilty of charges made against him following the dinner by Police Commissioner Whalen, who previously had demoted Johnson from rank of detective and fined him 30 days' pay.

Whalen said Johnson was guilty of attending a function where known criminals were present.

Original Floradora Girl Returns to N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—Returning from England for a visit to Broadway, where first she became known as one of the beauties of the famous Floradora sextet, is Lady Ashburton, the former Francis Belmont, who after the New York success of the musical comedy went to London and there became acquainted with Lord Ashburton.

Heavy Homestead Blasts Protested

Forty residents of Maple street, Homestead, today complained to police against the heavy charges of dynamite set off by contractors excavating the street for a sewer. The explosions are so violent that windows have been broken and dishes rattled on tables, the complaints charged. Police are investigating.

'Dead' Plane Drops Slower Than 'Chute

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—A stalled plane can drift more slowly than a parachute, Clarence Chamberlin proved it at Roosevelt Field. Fifteen hundred feet up a passenger leaped with a parachute and Chamberlin mushed the plane down, landing 63 seconds after the parachuter.

Eynon, commissioner of motor vehicles, Harrisburg, will speak at the annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Association of Boroughs, which will be held here June 11, 12 and 13.

Bandits Take $1,200 From Theater Safe

SHARON, Pa., March 10.—Burglars cracked the safe in the office of the Columbia Theater, Sharon's largest playhouse, and escaped with more than $1,200. The theft was discovered when a patrolman saw that the office blinds were drawn and the lights were out. The yeggs evidently hid in the theater after the last show.

Foundry Head Dies On Eve of Journey

STEUBENVILLE, O., March 10.—Word was received here today of the death of A. B. Sharp, 55, president of the Ohio Foundry Company, of Steubenville, at a hospital in New York, where he was stricken while preparing to leave with his wife for a trip around the world. He was prominent in industrial and financial circles here. The body will be brought here for interment.

Exonerate Driver In Death of Boy

ALIQUIPPA, Pa., March 10.—Krist Stanisich, taxicab driver, was exonerated by a coroner's jury of blame in connection with death of George, 4, son of John C. Nazdam, West Aliquippa. The boy was crushed between a rear wheel and a fender. Stanisich, the only eye-witness, said the boy ran from the curb against the side of the cab.

Farmers File Suit Over Slag Damage

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 10.—Claiming that fumes and ashes from the slag dump of the American Steel and Wire Company, of Donora, had destroyed practically all vegetation, Mr. and Mrs. George Trojner, of Carroll Township, have filed suit claiming $25,000 damages.

OBITUARY

Nathan Patterson Hyndman.

Nathan Patterson Hyndman, 81, for many years identified with the coal industry in this state, died today after a prolonged illness at the home of his son, T. Malcolm Hyndman, of 5637 Beacon street, Squirrel Hill. Mr. Hyndman was sales agent of the Washington Coal and Coke Company, of Dawson. He was a member of the Church of the Ascension, Ellsworth avenue. He was a vestryman for 25 years and secretary and treasurer of that church for 13 years; he was a member of the Episcopal diocese standing committee for 17 years, the diocese board of trustees for 19 years, director of the Clergymen's Life Insurance Association for 25 years and one of the organizers of the Laymen's Missionary League, being president of the latter organization for 31 years. He was born in Mauch Chunk, May 10, 1849. He leaves two sons, Hugh R. and T. Malcolm, of Pittsburgh, and a daughter, Mrs. Lulu H. Stedman, of Mauch Chunk.

Wilson Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hannah W. Wilson, 81, will be held in St. John's Episcopal Church at 1 p. m., tomorrow. She died Saturday at her home, 4124 Butler street. She was born in England and came to the United States when she was 17 years old. She had been a resident of the Lawrenceville district 50 years. She attended St. John's Church, and was a member of Sumner Sisterhood No. 78, Dames of Malta, and Greater Pittsburgh Temple No. 2, Ladies of the Golden Eagle. Besides her husband, John Wilson, she leaves four sons, John, of Steubenville; Frederick, of Follansbee, W. Va.; Thomas H., of Pittsburgh, and Robert A. Wilson, of Etna, and a daughter, Mrs. Ellen Johnson, of Follansbee.

Mrs. Margaret B. Daschbach.

Mrs. Margaret Boland Daschbach, widow of Edward J. Daschbach, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John H. Wallace, of 410 Duncan avenue, Washington, Pa. She was a daughter of Capt. Edward and Susan Donnelly Boland. Besides Mrs. Wallace, she leaves another daughter, Margaret; a son, Frank A. Daschbach, of Sharon, Pa.; a grandson, Andrew B. Daschbach, of Cleveland; two sisters, Miss Julia Boland and Mrs. Thomas McEachren, of Coraopolis, and a brother, Bert Boland, of Ellsworth, Pa. Funeral services will be at 10 a. m. tomorrow in St. Basil's Church, Carrick, with burial in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Brown Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sydney H. Brown, 71, who died yesterday, will be held at the home, 265 North Dithridge street, at 2 p. m. tomorrow. She was born in Wheeling, August 16, 1863 and had made her home in Pittsburgh since her marriage in 1881. She was a member of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church and was active in missionary work and the Presbytery of Pittsburgh, and was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She leaves her husband, Attorney Thomas S. Brown; a son, Attorney Oliver W. Brown, of Pittsburgh, and a daughter, Mrs. John Jacob Paull, of Wellsburg, W. Va.; two sisters and a brother.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Grinstead.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Grinstead, 88, widow of the Rev. J. J. Grinstead, of Homestead, died at her home, 225 East Seventeenth avenue, Homestead, yesterday. She was born in Doncaster, England. For 30 years she has resided in the Homestead district. She is survived by three sons, Oliver C., Homestead; Stanley, of London, and Herbert Grinstead, of Palmerston, New Zealand; two daughters, Mrs. G. S. Cotterell, of Homestead, and Mrs. W. S. Dowadee, of London; 16 grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

McCance Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Nancy H. McCance, former Pittsburgher, who died Friday at her home in New Haven, Conn., were to be held at the home of Miss Mary L. McCance, of 526 Aiken avenue, a sister-in-law, at 3 p. m. today. She leaves her husband, William J. McCance; four sons, Pressly, of Pittsburgh; William, of Ahmednagar, India; Thomas, of New York, and Joseph McCance, of Hartford; a daughter, Mrs. C. G. Shephard, of Hartford, and a sister, Miss Margaret T. Hodge, of Pittsburgh.

Todd Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Gwennie Todd, 74, widow of Robert Todd, and a lifelong resident of McKeesport, were to be held today from the home of a daughter, Mrs. A. B. Crawford, of 112 Sixth avenue, McKeesport. She died Friday at the home of another daughter, Mrs. Walter Triplett, of Wilmerding.

William H. Thompson.

After over half a century of service on Pittsburgh newspapers, William H. Thompson, 75, died today in his home, 1517 Irwin avenue, North Side. He had been ill a week. He was a member of a family all engaged in the printing trade, and he is reputed to have had the longest record of service in his field of any man now living in Pittsburgh. For the last 20 years he has been a proofreader on the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and its predecessors. He was a member of several Masonic bodies. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary Thompson, a son, William H. Thompson, Jr., and a daughter living in Colorado; a brother, R. R. Thompson, Bellevue, and two sisters, Mrs. Allen Rudolph, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Jessie Dorsey, of Columbus, O.

Frank Kocher.

Frank Kocher, 65, died yesterday at his home, 157 Vista street, Etna. He was born in Germany, but had resided in the Sharpsburg-Millvale districts more than 40 years. He was a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church, of Sharpsburg. He leaves his widow, five sons, Joseph, Frank, Edward Peter and Charles; two daughters, Mrs. Marie Makoby and Mrs. Theresa Lang, all of Pittsburgh; two stepsons, Joseph and George Schisler; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Marie Luta, and 17 grandchildren.

Roberts Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Roberts, 77, who died yesterday, will be held at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Colen Nichols, of 99 Courtland street, Hazelwood, at 2 p. m., tomorrow. AMUSEMENT FACTS REFLECTED IN REVIEW, STAGE CHAT AND FILM GOSSIP

Mexican Armida Wanted To Replace La Damita In 'Sons-of-Guns'

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright 1930, by Premier Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 10.

IT SEEMS that Mrs. Rudolph Schildkraut, wife of the W. K. actor, decided to become an American citizen. To the proper destination traipsed she and her husband. Among the questions asked her was: "Who is the governor of California?"

Paragraph here to a necessary detour. Mrs. Schildkraut, prior to a few weeks ago, has traded at Young's market. Now, however, she markets at the Hacienda.

Paragraph back to the verbal citizenship quiz: "Who is the Governor of California?"

Mrs. Schildkraut's eyes strayed. For the life of her, she couldn't recollect the Governor's name. Her husband could stand the suspense no longer.

"Der name of der market, mamma," he is reported as crying. "Der name of der market!"

Mrs. Schildkraut beamed and replied: "Hacienda!"

Young, however, had it. Wherein there may be an advertising moral....

ARMIDA FOR STAGE

MARCH 18 sees the departure of Gus Edwards, Armida and several other dancers and singers for New York. Gus has contracted to play four weeks of voodvil, hitting Chicago, Cleveland, Milwaukee and Manhattan. Armida, I presume, will share honors with him in the two-a-day act.

Lili Damiti

Whether or not the little Mexican returns to Hollywood with Edwards et al is doubtful. This department is told that Armida is wanted to succeed Lili Damiti in the Jack Donohue musical comedy, "Sons-of-Guns." While the voodvil act is playing New York, Armida, between shows, will rehearse the Damiti role.

Lili is supposed to hit back to the Gild Coast and make a flick. Her stage leave was extended but the extension nears a close. So here's a histrionic inst. of ye W. K. Paul Jones.

POLLARD WITH M. G. M.

A TELEPHONE message says: "Mr. Harry Pollard has signed a long term directorial contract with M. G. M." Pollard has been with Universal for years, handling the megaphone for the major share of that concern's heavy do-re-me flicks. But Universal closes shop for six or more weeks pretty soon. Hence, most of the directors and players, in an effort to avoid the wolf, meander elsewhere.

NINETY-NINE out of a hundred get hurt bad. Raoul Walsh is certainly the hundredth. Raoul, whose trade is putting plot onto celluloid, upped and purchased a nag yclept Greyola for $15,000. Greyola won his hers, or its initial race for Raoul last Sunday when he, she, or it romped home at the Agua Caliente race track to cop a $30,000 purse. The horse paid three to one on the boards. The betters who had him, her, or it on "the nose" pocketed happy dollars. William Collier, Sr., and Raoul were among these. If Greyola keeps up his, hers, or its good work, Mr. Walsh will be spared the ouch of a horse laugh.

PLAN DANCE ACT

WITHOUT ballyhoo, Julanne Johnstone and partner Danny Darling have been rehearsing these past few weeks every A. M. at the Montmartre. Rehearsing a dance act, which they plan to terpsichore into voodvil. Tother eve, at ye Montmartre, Julanne was guest-of-honor. She and Darling gave an exhibition dance and had to oblige with two encores.

Julanne started her career as a dancer, if my memory is accurate. She and Marian Nixon were in the same dance act. They hit Los Angeles, were snared by the Klieg lure and remained. Wouldn't surprise me if Julanne and Dr. Darling eventually landed in a Broadway production. Flick-ites, who fail to get their breaks in these talky days, have a way of gaining attention by making good on the legit.

Girl Dies, Sisters Hurt in Explosion

NEWARK, O., March 10.—(AP)—Pauline Thompson, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Thompson, died yesterday and her sisters, Mabel, 9, and Mary, 8, were near death from burns suffered in an explosion that resulted from using kerosene to stimulate a fire at the Thompson home. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and two other children, Roy, 5, and Bertram, 13, suffered less severe burns trying to rescue the three daughters.

MURDER DONE ON ROOF IN NEW TALKIE IN HARRIS

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Old Man Crime goes elevator riding and lands in a cabaret atop one of these New York skyscrapers in "The Murder on the Roof," a new talkie in the Harris. And, like the elevator, the picture has its ups and downs. It starts out with a pretty good punch, but flounders around a little in some of its later reels.

The murder comes right early in the action and an attorney is charged with it and convicted of it. But he's not the guilty fellow—no sir. However, before the guilty one is found, the romantic angle and the musical sequence get a break. This is done by introducing the attorney's daughter, who, in the guise of an entertainer, invades the cabaret. There is a millionaire lad who is in love with her. But, for the sake of complications, the cabaret proprietor thinks she's his girl.

This triangle, however, has no monopoly on the plot. There is a newspaper reporter in it and he is the gentleman who solves the mystery. And of course, the movies have gotten him drunk.

As this reporter, Raymond Hatton is the best the cast has to offer. Other players include Margaret Livingston, Dorothy Revier, William V. Mong and Paul Porcasi. Paul is the actor who played the night club owner in the successful stage drama, "Broadway."

Victor Graff sings several numbers on the stage. Other entertainers in the Graff revue include three dancing boys and an actor named Ross, who is quite a funny fellow.

OFFICER SLAIN, TWO CAUGHT

AKRON, O., March 10.—(AP)—Patrolman Harlan F. Manes, 33, whose injuries in a fight with gangsters Saturday preceded the capture of two gangsters and an arsenal, died yesterday while Chief of Detectives Ed McDonnell sought to identify the two captives.

One of the men, who was wounded by the patrolman and who gave his name as Frankie Schultz, 35, of Chicago and St. Louis, was believed to be a member of "Egan's Rats," a St. Louis gang, of which Fred Burke, who is sought over the nation as a participant in the Chicago St. Valentine's Day massacre, was a member. The other gangster gave his name as Bob Randall, alias Bert Walker, 28, of St. Louis.

The men were captured when the chief, at the head of a squad, smashed the door of a cottage and found it strongly fortified. Wresting a sub-machine gun from a middle-aged woman who stood guard at the door, he entered the house and found Randall and Schultz. Neither resisted. The woman also was held.

In the house were half a dozen large automatic pistols, many rounds of ammunition, nitroglycerine, two sawed-off shotguns and a long-range rifle.

SHARP ADDS HOUSE IN PROPOSED CHAIN OF THEATERS

George Sharp, producing head of the George Sharp Players, will open another theater, Easter Monday, April 22, in Philadelphia. The theater is the famous Chestnut Street Opera House. It is announced to be part of a theater chain Mr. Sharp contemplates. Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Boston are other cities in view.

Mr. Sharp returned Sunday night from New York, where he completed plans with the Messrs. Shubert for the various theaters comprising the chains. The Pitt Theater here will be the base from which all operations will be conducted.

TO TRY OUT NEW PLAYS

The Chestnut Street Theater is to be used almost exclusively for the production of new plays and when productions warrant it, a tieup with the Messrs. Shubert will make it possible to take it into New York and if it proves successful there, it will tour the principal key cities of the country.

The rotating guest star system is to be used exclusively in the Sharp theaters, including the Pitt here. Players have been contracted for include Lionel Atwill, Dorothy Gish, Irene Bordoni, Greta Niesen, Fay Bainter, Basil Sydney, Mary Ellis, Walker Whiteside, Margaret Anglin, Sylvia Breamer, Mary Nash, Pauline Lord, Elsie Ferguson, Alan Dinehart, Janet Beecher, Tom Douglas, June Walker, Blanche Yurka, Helen McKellar, Burton Churchill, James Rennie, Henrietta Crossman and Mary Young.

PLAYS UNDER OPTION

At the same time Mr. Sharp completed plans for the opening of the Philadelphia Theater, he made contracts with the New York play brokers for options on the late New York plays for stock presentation and for new plays which will be tried out in Philadelphia.

Donn Wermuth who last season was publicity director for the Shuberts in Pittsburgh, and manager this season for Schwab and Mandel's musical comedy, "Follow Through," will be associated with Mr. Sharp in the new enterprise.

Congregation Holds Services in Theater

SCOTTDALE, Pa., March 10.—The First Christian congregation, whose church and parsonage were destroyed by fire, conducted services at the Arcade Theater and will continue until arrangements are made for another place.

Wilmerding Keeps Old Tax Millage

The Wilmerding Borough Council at its regular meeting set the millage for the coming year at 13 mills, the same as last year. The budget, calling for an expenditure of approximately $78,630, also was adopted.

Fashions, Racing Are Features of News Reel

The current issue of Hearst Metrotone News contains an interesting racing and fashion picture of the opening of the French spring racing season at Auteuil. Another subject shows the visit to American shores of a ship whose name was once dreaded by all sea-goers—the Emden, famous wartime raider. Today the Emden is a German cruiser and when she put into New Orleans her sailors were greeted by the gobs of the U. S. S. Texas, and everybody had a good time.

The carnival at Nice; native Arab workmen excavating about the feet of the Sphinx, famous Egyptian landmark; Helene Madison, holder of the 220-yard swimming title, giving a word of advice to young women, and a remarkable picture of a new device which enables airmen in flight to drop and also to pick up bags of mail in one operation, are among the other interesting subjects in this issue of Hearst Metrotone News.

MUSIC AND MYSTERY IN STAGE PLAYS OF NEW WEEK

Some of the outstanding hits of "Follow Thru," coming to the Alvin tonight, are "Button Up Your Overcoat," "I Want to Be Bad," "Lucky Star," "You Wouldn't Fool Me, Would You," "I Could Give Up Anything But You" and "If There Were No More You." Desylva, Brown and Henderson wrote the score. They were the composers of "Good News."

Opening this evening in the Nixon, the "Vanity Fair of 1930," with Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield and the English Tiller Girls will be presented. One of the features is the "Shadowgraph," "third dimension" illusion.

The play to be presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt this week, opening tonight, is "The Cat and the Canary," a mystery melodrama that was immensely popular a few seasons ago.

With Walter Winchell On Broadway

MAN ABOUT TOWN

HE was one of the few chorus boys we ever heard of who had ambition to progress in the profession. Instead of cutting capers between performances he aspired to cut coupons—so his old rich aunt, who considered him her favorite nephew, decided to help him. Even before she told him that she was going to will him all her coin and properties, the lad was attentive and nice to her. He made living worth while and when she was in the mood, he took her to this gay place or that one and make her feel like a girl again.

Walter Winchell

His mother, naturally, was irked over his neglect, and despised the aunt, but the boy, whose voice culture and dance tuition was being financed by the old woman, was only trying to repay her in the only way he knew—with companionship. The aunt thought matters over one day, and concluded that it would give the fellow greater confidence if she turned over her money and valuables while she was alive, trusting to his honor to take care of her if she needed anything.

A few months after she transferred everything to him he was killed in a motor crash. His inheritance, of course, went to his nearest kin, his mother, who gives the old aunt but $10 a week—her revenge for "alienating her son's affections." The destitute and heart-broken aunt, however, still has her pride. She has applied to the state to take care of her in some institution rather than continue accepting the measly allowance.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS

WHAT appears to be the newest diversion for Wall street bankers and other middle-aged gentlemen of means is the dance place on One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, where the coin-a-dance lassies are less expensive and more sociable than their sisters of the Broadway ensembles. Rarely will you find the tough element of the sector in the majority up there, the tireless fox-trotters being the gents from the "best families," who are liberal tippers, and who receive the most fervent embraces and the longest kisses right there on the floor. It is a scene to be seen and more startling than a Mae West pash play.

ANYTHING TO OBLIGE

THE swanky party over on Beekman Place, where the building elevator is marked "Lifht" . . . To which David Hutcheson, a Britisher, now in the "Sons o' Guns" hit, was invited. He noticed that the men were seated on one side of the large room and the women were bunched on the other side. . . . Between champagne cocktails Hutcheson heard the stiff-shirted fellows talk shop: "So I sold my 5,000 shares of General Motors yesterday." . . . "Yes, my yacht is laid up for the month." . . . "Polo isn't as exciting, is it?" and other tony talk. . . . Hutcheson grew restless. . . . In his show he has more fun taking off his trousers in a crap game scene with Jack Donahue. . . . But being a gentleman, he took his wine glass and went over to join the ladies, where he heard such drivel as "She wore a lovely gown of velvet, cape effect." . . . "He's left her for that blond actress and she is going to Reno," etc. . . . Whereupon David took a few more drinks. Finally, after indulging in two bottles of the joy juice to relieve his boredom, he began to take his departure. . . . His hostess stiffly said she was sorry to see him go, then added as an afterthought: "By the way, Mr. Hutcheson, before you leave would you be so kind as to do something you do in 'Sons o' Guns'?"

FEMME INTEREST

ELSIE ROBINSON, one of the most widely syndicated of the femme columnists. . .Among her other features is a bureau called "Tell It to Elsie," and concrete proof that American women are better behaved is that Elsie's daily mail from women all over the nation testifies that they are more interested in religion than sex . . Samson, one of the better known Broadway waiters, who now juggles trays at the Silver Slipper . . .He found a man's pocketbook containing $400. . .And returned it to him, only to be accused by the man's woman companion of thefting the rest "of that $600" . . .Samson, however, got a $5 tip with which he later lit the man's cigar. . .The gesture swell!

LATE BUT ARRIVES

LITERARY NOTE: Joseph Hilton Smyth, whose "Back to Broadway" fable in a recent Saturday Evepost won him local attention, has finally been identified. He isn't an advertising man at all . . . .But a New Englander, who has been floating around Yurrup, Central America and Boston—writing, but not selling. . .About a year ago he buried himself down on Cape Cod and bombarded the magazines. . .His high mark was a Boston Globe contribution which brought him $28. . . . Eventually he tried a nationally known weekly. . .They didn't return the story for a month, so he thought they might be reading it. . . .Smyth sent them a second. . .The next day he got the first one back.

Three days later he got a check for $2,000 from the weekly, with a nice note asking him if he had ever written anything before . . . So he sent back the first story, which had just been returned to him . . . And got another two "grand" . . . Then the game began—talkies, weeklies, monthlies and everything else . . . A portrait of how authors are discovered in America!

RUDY STILL LIVES

BECAUSE a cinema mag reported that the London Times on August 23 contained several memorial notices for Rudolph Valentino we looked them up and there they were. One of them read: "To the memory of Rudolph Valentino, who died August 23, 1926, at the age of 31. He being made perfect in a short time, fulfilled a long time: For his soul pleased the Lord."

Well, maybe—maybe not. Certainly much should be forgiven him both here and hereafter, for he did, indeed, "enlighten human hearts," whether or not he had any such intention. But from this source it is touching—this faith that he was spiritually beautiful as he could look to be. A faith all the stronger perhaps because he could also suggest subtly and most alluringly a young man not too remotely allied with the devil—and there was never a more engaging, repentant sinner. A spirit-and-flesh combination possessed by Valentino of all screen stars.

There's nothing touching, however, in the prevailing rage for immortalizing Valentino as a sort of saint . . . In a mag last fall, a femme movie writer, for example . . . Fishy, very fishy . . . She was always gunning for him in his lifetime, so why these sudden tears?

Last of Thirty Fires Nearly Wipes Out Village

KITTANNING, Pa., March 10.—Another disastrous fire raged in the remnant of the once thriving village of Beyer, located between Rural Valley and Plumville on the Home Road Saturday, before the flames were finally extinguished the hamlet had been further reduced in size until it is now rapidly nearing the vanishing point. The blaze originated in a large frame building.

Three families were tenants on the premises. The building stood on the lower side of the public highway. The blaze then leaped across the road and wiped out two dwellings entirely on the upper side of the road, besides burning out the end of a third.

Residents of the community said the Beyer neighborhood has been the scene of upwards of thirty fires within recent years, the result of which the vicinity now bears little semblance of its former self.

N. Y. Federal Agents Raid Fashionable Inn

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—Resuming with spectacular effect his drive against the sale of liquor in New York hotels, Major Maurice Campbell, prohibition administrator, yesterday directed 200 prohibition agents in a raid on the fashionable Forest Hills Inn in Queens Borough.

The agents reported a seizure of a dozen bottles of assorted liquors and as many kegs of beer. About 200 patrons were allowed to depart unmolested.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

WE TALKED with Amos and Andy for an hour when they were in Pittsburgh the other day. We wanted to settle, above all, which was the taller. Ask any of their listeners this question and the answer is Andy. Amos, because of his voice, is supposed to be the harassed, under-sized taxicab driver, Andy the giant, if lazy, gentleman. As a matter of fact there is only a few inches difference in their size, and this in favor of Amos.

They are both in their thirties, and likeable. Neither attempts to pose as the important notable, although the National Broadcasting Company's representatives try to protect them as a mother shields her young. Both of them seem to be having a good time, especially Amos, who slips into his voice of the air frequently. Amos writes most of the stuff they broadcast and writes it in dialogue, even to the apostrophes.

Amos likes to josh everybody. He kidded the hotel's telephone operators, the bellhops and the maids. When he saw a Negro maid making up an adjoining room, he shouted at her, "Has yo' seen my gal Ruby Taylor in heah?" and the maid answered seriously, "Nawsir, Ruby ain't been heah, suh."

They reached the KDKA studio 20 minutes before they were scheduled to broadcast and Amos utilized the time by cutting up like a youngster at a birthday party.

Several musical instruments were in the room. Amos rushed to the drummer's traps, banged out unmelodious noise, bounced the drumstick on the floor and tried to catch it on the rebound, grabbed a cornet and gave vent to noises which were supposed to be Taps but weren't, moved to the xylophone and mastered that instrument physically but not musically, called upon the comparatively restrained Andy to join him in bouncing half-dollars off the heels of their shoes. Ten minutes before they were to face the microphone Andy seemed somewhat nervous and reminded the two or three persons in the room that no one was to watch them broadcast. The visitors took leave.

If any evidence of the pair's popularity is needed it was furnished by their visit to the Union Trust Company, where Amos and Andy chatted for a half hour with Harry Bovard, well-known cool operator, and John McKirdy, clerk of the state Senate. A crowd of hundreds followed the comedians and watched their every action.

IT IS WITH heavy heart that we report the change in estate of that Second avenue eating place which was once Mr. Dutch Henry's. Today it is a mission house, its mission to feed the hungry free. It goes without saying that this is a worthy cause, but the Dutch Henry flavor is missing.

Dutch Henry was, as the saying goes, a Dutchman, medium-sized, slightly paunchy and usually smiling through the cigar smoke that he puffed into the air. I' gave good meals of substantial food for 10, 15 and 25 cents. At the bar on the first floor gentlemen o. limited means lined the counter for the Henry bargains. Upstairs lawyers, politicians and men of means enjoyed the Henry fare. Coffee was three cents the cup—and, as Dutch used to advertise, with cream!

Dutch became rich as one year of prosperity followed another, but not from the profit of his kitchen. No, sir! Dutch discovered early that if he lost a few pennies on each meal he retrieved his losses on the half-dozen schooners of beer that each of his hungry patrons tossed away. When times were bad he gave meals free.

Of foreign extraction, Dutch was a patriotic American. When the war broke out he promptly changed his name. No longer was he to be Mr. Dutch Henry. Now and forever henceforth, Yankee Henry!

They say that Yankee Henry has returned to Germany, enjoying his last years quietly and contentedly. His return would be welcome.

Roosevelt Apologizes for Son's Misbehavior

Theodore Roosevelt, when President of the United States, started the adventurous, rollicking, joyous career of the White House Gang by sending his youngest son, Quentin, to the Force Public School in Washington. Here the gang was recruited. The accredited members are Charles (Taffy) Taft, "Brom" Seeley, Dick (Sailor) Chew, Edward (Slats) Stead, also called "Bedstead," Walker White, "T. R." the most active member of the gang; Quentin, the leader, and Earle Looker, the author of this story.

Each day, after school, the gang went into a huddle to confound all rules of deportment in high places, mingle in the lives of presidents and policemen, win victories, taste honor, suffer punishments and engage in escapades which were swept along the wires to national publicity. Many exploits of the gang, however, either remain unknown or were known only to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Some there were securely hidden even from them.

CHAPTER V.

Q OBSERVED, and was observed. Gradually, the stares and the casually careful meetings became more or less friendly; Q and several of us gradually assumed a position which, eventually, might develop into acquaintanceship, if not friendship, were the opportunity—which none had any idea of making for himself—to occur.

When the gongs of liberty rang through the dusty, foot-worn corridors of the Force School, Q invariably shot out into the yard, with the explosive propulsion of a small bomb. So, rather than by gravitation—a comparatively slow force—the Gang was brought into a series of violent personal collisions with Q, at one time or another. I can only give my own initial experience—the breath was nearly knocked out of me. My recollection of this incident is quite distinct, because Q, then as always, was marked as TR's son by all the school; and it happened at a time of life when all our impressions are freshest; when incidents, happenings, expressions, conversations, even words, are photographed upon the sensitive negative of the mind.

"Oh, golly!" said Q, seated heavily in the mud by his impact with me. "Why don't you look where you're going?"

"Oh, shut up!" I replied, gasping for breath, and holding my stomach. "You ran into me . . ."

"What's your name?" Q asked abruptly.

"None of your darn business," I answered angrily.

Quentin Suggests Better Name for Boy

"Oh, yes'it is," Q said quickly, "very much. I want to ask you to my house—the White House. But I've got to know your name first. It's a rule none of us like; it's all mixed up with father being President, you see, and neither mother nor father can help it—" He grinned apologetically, and then persuasively,

"My name's Looker," I admitted, softening.

"Looker?" laughed Quentin; "that's wonderful! But not looking where you were going, any more than I was! Look Looker! 'Look,' that's a better name still—"

I looked at him with offended dignity.

"Don't be so ombliferous," he said.

My jaw dropped. The word was new; I was not sure but that it might not be some sort of a fighting word.

Q concentrated his gaze upon me, and then quoted rapidly:

"There was an Old Person of Hurst,
Who drank when he was not athirst;
When they said, 'You'll grow fatter!'
He answered, 'What matter?'
That globular Person of Hurst."

New Words
President's Son Puzzles His New Friend

Well, globular was another new one, and I was interested. Thus Q, in an amazing manner, had succeeded in holding my attention and turning my anger. The verse we learned by heart, and later, quite often repeated along with half-a-dozen others, written by Edward Lear, in his Book of Nonsense.

While the quaint Q had been quoting, he had been fishing in his bulging pockets for the stump of a pencil, and an extremely soiled piece of White House paper.

"Look here, Look," he said, confirming, for all time, the familiar nickname I still bear, and thrusting the pencil and paper into my hands—another strategic move, for my fists were now occupied, and I was helpless—"write down the name of your mother and father, your grandmother and grandfather——"

"My father was a captain of infantry, my grandfather was an admiral in the navy," I said, with pardonable pride.

"Army-navy!" Q cried, glowing with pleasure. "You belong; I should have known that, by the way you rammed me! So don't write anything at all. And I can always remember a queer name like that. Mother will just ask father to ask the Secretary of the Navy all about Admiral Looker, and we won't have to bother about anything else. . . . That's kismet!"

"That's what?" I asked, confused by another new word.

"I mean, that's f-a-t-e," Q said solemnly, nodding his big head which—now knowing the word—I can call globular.

Can't Tell Much About President Grant

Whereupon the bell rang, announcing the end of recess, and we rushed back to the boys' entrance. Perhaps it was in the afternoon session of that same day—if not, certainly soon after—when Q quoted again. The class was discussing the presidents, and the teacher, Miss Wallace, said: "Quentin Roosevelt, can you tell us what sort of a President Gen. Grant was?"

"Well, that's rather difficult," Q said, moving uneasily from one foot to another. "I've forgotten whether he was a Democrat or a Republican—"

"That doesn't make any difference," Miss Wallace said with commendable political fairness. "Can you describe Gen. Grant to us?"

"But it makes a big difference," replied Q, quickly, and with great earnestness. "The Republican presidents have been most u-n-i-f-o-r-m-l-y good—but the Democrats have been, without e-x-c-e-p-t-i-o-n, terrible. If Grant was a Republican, I would simply say he was a fine-looking man; but, unfortunately, his beard almost completely hides his face from view. Now, if he was a Democrat, I'd say, and I'm sure I'd be right:

'There was an Old Man with a beard,
Who said, "It is just as I feared!
Two owls and a hen, four larks and a wren
Have all built their nests in my beard!"'

Mischief
President Apologizes for Son's Bad Behavior

It was hardly to be wondered at that, the teaching of our grade reverted, as quickly as order could be restored, to the more usual and less dangerous methods of formal recitation. . . Quentin, although outwardly calm, busied himself with making a spitball when Miss Wallace was not in a position to observe him, but maintaining the stillest of jaws and the gravest of faces when her glance fell in his direction.

Q put the spitball in a sling-shot, made of a thick rubber band drawn across his fingers, and waited for a suitable target. Just then Walker White stood up to recite; aimed at the back of his head and let fly; but Q's aim was poor, and the spitball went appallingly on, and caught Miss Wallace full in the face.

Now the good lady was auburn-haired. She rose from her seat, bore down directly on Q, caught him by the ear and marched him off to the cloak-room. On his way thither, he was making prayerful gestures with his hands, to the class; somehow, he must have imag-

Quilt Girl Scouts Will Give to Mrs. Hoover

MRS. HOOVER TO GET QUILT

A multi-colored quilt made by Girl Scouts of Rosslyn Farms Troop No. 40 will be presented to Mrs. Hoover when the troop visits her in the White House March 23.

Mrs. Hoover will present the quilt to the Girl Scouts "little house," where it will grace a bed in the master bedroom. The "little house," only a short distance from the White House, is owned by the scouts' national organization and furnished by the various troops.

A few years ago the house won a better homes contest. Mrs. Hoover has contributed much of the present furnishing since taking up her residence in Washington.

The Rosslyn Farms troop is not worried about from what source the money for their journey to the capital will come. The girls have already made sufficient by bake sales, entertainments and candy sales to see them to Washington and back with enough remaining for a few parties.

Mrs. C. G. Thornburg, leader of the troop, will accompany the girls. The presentation speech will be made by Woina Holmes.

Trade Board Meets At Brookline Tonight

The Brookline Board of Trade will hold its monthly business meeting in the auditorium of the Brookline Public School, Woodbourne avenue, tonight. William J. Blakley, president, will be in charge.

Phone Bells Silent When Boy's Kite Touches Wire

A wire in the tail of a boy's kite played havoc with telephone service for numerous residents of the Kennywood Park district yesterday and today. The tail wire touched high tension wires of the Duquesne Light Company, and made a circuit with a nearby Bell Telephone Company cable, causing a short circuit.

BOND ELECTION AT MT. OLIVER

An ordinance submitting a bond issue of $35,000 to the people, has been passed by the Mt. Oliver borough council. The special election has been set for May 20 and the funds thus derived will be used to pay the borough's share of the costs of the Beck's Run sewer.

Legion at Carnegie Changes Fair Week

The American Legion Post at Carnegie has changed the date of its street carnival so as not to interfere with the convention to be held by Western Pennsylvania Firemen. The firemen will meet in August and the Legion has advanced its fair date to the week of July 7.

ARRANGE PLANS FOR MEMORIAL

The South Hills already has plans well under way for the annual Memorial Day exercises on May 30. The exercises will be held in Mt. Lebanon Cemetery and will be preceded by a parade.

The program will be under the auspices of the South Hills Memorial Day Association. South Hills Post No. 156 covering Dormont, Mt. Lebanon, Brookline and Beechview, and Kenneth Newman Post No. 200, American Legion, covering Mt. Washington, are members of the association.

Westminster Circle Arranges Luncheon

The Westminster Service Circle, Bellevue Presbyterian Church, will hold a luncheon at 6:30 p. m. today in the church rooms.

TAFT HONORED IN SERMON

"Another great American has fallen—William H. Taft, without doubt one of the greatest jurors America has produced, is dead," said the Rev. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan in his sermon in Emory Methodist Episcopal Church last night. He said in part:

"His service to the people of America and to the people of the Philippine Islands was of a very high order. At least one thing came out of it which is not widely known—it converted him to the cause of foreign missions.

"His attitude on prohibition was an example to Americans who do not favor the Eighteenth Amendment. Taft did not favor it, but when prohibition came he called on the people to obey the law since it was the law, whether they liked it or not.

"A great man, possessed of unusual ability, pre-eminently qualified for the high judicial functions of the greatest legal tribunal in the world, he lived a life of stainless personal integrity, and by word and example promoted respect for law and the peace of a universal brotherhood."

Students at Pitt Open 'Y' Sessions

Students of the University of Pittsburgh at a general assembly in Memorial Hall today were to formally ope . the Christian World Education Conference to be held this week under auspices of the Young Men's and Women's Christian Associations of the university. The principal speaker was to be Dr. Fletcher . . Brockman, an authority on Chinese affairs. This afternoon delegates and guests were to be entertained at the Heinz House.

McKeesport Ready To Use Dial Phones

The new dial equipment which has been installed in the McKeesport central office of the Bell Telephone Company has been put into operation. All telephones of the Glassport, McKeesport and Duquesne district are now operated on a dial basis. A supplementary telephone directory containing all the numbers which were changed has been distributed to the subscribers in the three communities.

Woods Run Asks New Library Building

A proposal for a new building for the Woods Run branch Carnegie Library will be discussed tomorrow night at the monthly meeting of the Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade. Alderman George A. Young, president, and the Women's Community Association of the ward are backing the project.

Ice Convention Will Hear Leaders of Industry

More than 300 delegates will attend a two-day session of the Pennsylvania Ice Producers' Association in the William Penn Hotel tomorrow and Wednesday. At the opening session speakers will be Robert McKnight, president of the National Association of Ice Industries, who will speak on advertising, and A. J. Autenreith, vice president of the Middle West Utilities Company, who will speak on "Unifying the Ice Industry."

The delegates will be welcomed to Pittsburgh at a luncheon at noon, when the speaker will be James Rae, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

A banquet will be held tomorrow night. Speakers will be Leslie C. Smith, secretary of the National Association of Ice Industries, and William Simpio, manufacturer of Duquesne.

Manager, Customer See Trio Loot Safe of $300; Air Show Employe Routs Man

Bandits who obtained $500 in holdups of five stores and three pedestrians over the week-end were being sought by police today.

Two armed men robbed Harry Schullion, of 4422 Liberty avenue, of $27 in Schenley Park, near the tourists' camp, last night, he reported to police.

Charles Kamm, 23, of 268 Fisk street, routed a highwayman who attempted to hold him up near his home early yesterday. Kamm, employed at the aircraft show office in Motor Square Garden, battled the thug and saved his week's pay.

CHAIN STORE HELD UP

Entering a chain grocery at 6100 Marie street, three bandits ordered R. J. Gracey, the manager, and M. J. Helms, of 821 North Sheridan avenue, a customer, to throw up their hands, while they looted the cash register of $300 Saturday night.

From a register in a chain grocery at 424 Suismon street, two armed men obtained $9 after holding Joseph Walsh, the manager at bay, police said. It was the second holdup of the store within a week.

CLERK ROBBED

Twenty-one dollars was stolen from a clerk by an armed man who entered the retail store of the Rieck-McJunkin Dairy Company, at Thirtieth street and Liberty avenue, Saturday night.

S. Zelezniak, proprietor of a shoe store at 3505 Butler street, was robbed of $146 by three bandits in his store late Saturday night.

Three bandits who entered the grocery of Sam Greenberg, at 2404 Webster avenue, became frightened and fled without loot. Center Avenue police searched the neighborhood, but found no trace of the thugs, they reported.

Lottery Operators Held for Court

William Stewart, of Metcalf street, and J. R. Wilkinson, of Brighton road, said by police to be operators of a clearing house pool with headquarters at 525 South avenue, were held for court by Magistrate Ray Schneider in the North Side Police Court yesterday.

In a raid on the headquarters Saturday police testified they confiscated six adding machines, clearing house stubs and books. Mike Murray, 23, of 223 Cremo street, arrested after the raid, was discharged.

Veterans Guests At Aviation Show

World War veterans from the Marine Hospital yesterday attended the aviation show in Motor Squre Garden as guests of the Aero Club of Pittsburgh. They were escorted to the Garden by Mrs. Charles Goldsmith, of Beacon street, being transported by a Red Cross bus. They were conducted through the show by Ray Krimm, director.

Will Rogers Says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 10.

Say, this glider contraption of Lindbergh's looks like a pretty good racket. He went up and competed with a buzzard, and the fowl got second money. The competition was going along about even till Lindy lost a wing and didn't even stop to pick it up, just kept right on. When the old bird saw that, he got disgusted and withdrew, and went back to his original trade.

Lindy was telling me the other night about these things. He thinks they have a great future in training men to fly. The cost is only three or four hundred dollars. No engine, no gasoline. All you need is a high hill and a strong wind, and a few old boys to yank you out into space. All sounds marvelous, but when I try it it's going to be inside a room, with the floor lined with feather beds.

Yours,

WILL.

SLEUTH LEAPS OFF AUTO TO SAVE LIFE

Guard Fires Five Shots As Cracksman Flees in Car; Ruse Gains Liberty

Trapped in an attempt to loot the safe of the Western Auto Supply Company, 911 Liberty avenue, a cracksman escaped after attempting to kill a detective by crushing him between an automobile and a building. Police today were searching for him.

The detective, W. A. Doench, employed by the W. J. Burns agency, leaped in time to save his life. He fired five shots as the cracksman sped away in the auto and escaped.

Guarding the auto supply company's store during alterations to its building, Doench entered the front door about 9 o'clock last night. He walked to the rear and there spotted the cracksman hiding. The robber fled into Exchange way, where he had an auto parked, but was overtaken by Doench before he could start the car. The cracksman volunteered to drive Doench to Central Police Station and Doench climbed onto the running board, but at Garrison way the robber steered the auto onto the sidewalk in an attempt to crush the detective between the car and a building. Doench's leap was just in time to save his life.

TECH STUDENT STIRS SCIENCE

W. Ray Malhotra, student of physics in Carnegie Tech's engineering school has startled the electrical world with his daring explorations.

No African jungle or Arctic waste has been his field. He has confined expeditions to a far more dangerous one—the electrical field surrounding high tension lines up to 2,000,000 volts.

Working on a thesis by wich he hopes to get his masters degree in June, Malhotra devised this ingenious arrangement.

ENDANGERS LIFE

In a large room in the high voltage laboratories of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company, North Trafford, where lines carry 600,000 volts, or for special tests, spurts of 2,000,000 volts, he rigged up a line of thread like a clothes-line, hanging on it a little neon tube.

From a ladder, he manipulated the tube in the area surrounding the power line. By the varied changes in the light he was able to measure the intensity of the electricity in the field surrounding the current, the losses of power from the line, the grades of loss.

To his arm he attached a piece of rope, the other end tied to the electric switch. In the event he was shocked, his body pull on the rope provided for the switch's release and the disconnection of the current.

TESTS HIGH VOLTAGE

The value of his experiments are in their application to high voltage equipment, he explained yesterday.

Malhotra expects to gets his bachelor of science as well as his master of science in physics degrees in June. He teaches in the Carnegie Tech Engineering School at night.

Pair Falls 40 Feet Hunting Birds, One Jailed

Two men hunting pigeons fell 40 feet from a cliff on Mt. Washington yesterday, landing on a rock above the North entrance of the Liberty tubes. They were rescued by police and firemen.

William Knapp, 21, of 1336 Oakland street, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, suffering from cuts and bruises. His companion, Elmer Letz, 21, of 328 Fingal street, was arrested by South Side police and arraigned before Magistrate John J. Sweeney. He was discharged.

RAIL ENGINEER ALSO BANKER

When he is not at the throttle, he can be found at his desk in the First National Bank at Derry, of which he is president.

He is the oldest engineer in point of service on the Pittsburgh division, having nearly 51 years to his credit, although he is only 68.

Being a Scotchman, born in the town where Andrew Carnegie first saw the light of day—Dumfermline—he knows how to save money.

He became a fireman on the "Pennsy" October 13, 1879, and was transferred to Derry in 1881, was promoted to engineman September 11, 1882, and worked under Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the "Pennsy," when the general was assistant road foreman of engines at Derry.

Ramsay assisted in the organization of the First National Bank of Derry in 1903 and was chosen a director. The bank was liquidated in 1917 when the First Savings and Trust Company was organized, Ramsay being made chairman of the board and a vice president of the institution. He continued as a director until 1926, when he resigned to become president of the First National Bank of Derry.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Do you think, as a thrift expert does, that the average wage earner should set aside two years of his earnings for the purchase of a home, and do you think it should be bought on the installment plan or not?

BILLY SIEFERT, Bellevue: "In my opinion there can be no more noble idea in a man or woman's mind than that of wanting to own a home. If a house and lot can be bought for two years' salary or wages, then I say go to it. This two-year period, as I understand it, means salary ratio in proportion to the span of life. Instalment buying of homes is about the most plausible way of doing the thing for most people."

Billy Siefert

FRED W. MAYER, room clerk, Mayfair Hotel: "The wage earner or salaried worker should spend at least two years of his life earnings on a home purchase. Of course more than two years would be required for most people because they couldn't possibly do it in that period. The instalment or payment plan is all right. Caution should be used, though. Many people jump into a financial obligation without looking forward to what the future is going to bring."

Fred W. Mayer

MRS. FREDA SPRIEGEL, Shadyside: "I am heartily in favor of that plan. Everyone, regardless of the amount of money one earns, should put aside a definite sum every pay day to buy a home. Building and loan stock is a good buy. In reference to the instalment plan I would say that this is about the only way most people can purchase a house. In purchasing it in this manner they would do well to look ahead and not tie themselves up with a lot of mortgages."

Mrs. Spriegel

A. E. SAMUELS, manager Hotel Mayfair, Downtown: "Every person should try to own his own home, regardless of whether it takes two, three or four years' salary to pay for it. One shouldn't however, attempt to buy on the instalment plan unless they have a substantial amount to pay down. If they don't, the instalments and second mortgages will overwhelm them. Such procedure tends to take the pleasure out of trying ownership."

A. E. Samuels

JONAS GUGGENHEIM, restauranter, Penn avenue: "Yes, every one should own a home. If one has to buy it on the instalment plan, the best procedure about the matter would be to invest in a building and loan association first. It is safe. After buying one shouldn't allow mortgages to pile up. If second and even third mortgages have to be taken out, I think the best policy for financial independence and peace of mind would be to sell the property."

Mr. Guggenheim

IRENE BONASORTE, Hazelwood: "When a man or woman gets a job in this busy world their individual thoughts should be to save as much of their wages as possible. In this way money will accumulate in a few years to buy a home. A lot of people go into this thing blindly—without enough money to make the down payment properly. As a result payments and interest on mortgages overwhelm them. If the proper procedure is watched, everything will be all right."

Episcopalians Urged to Aid Fund for Tribute to First Bishop in America

The Rt. Rev. Frederick L. Deane, lord bishop of Aberdeen and Orkney, in a sermon in Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue, last night, made a plea to Episcopalians of Pittsburgh to aid in a fund being raised for a memorial to Bishop Samuel Seabury, first bishop of the Episcopal Church in America. It will be built in Aberdeen, Scotland.

Bishop Deane, who came to the United States on invitation of the Episcopal clergy, is making a tour of the country.

Samuel Seabury was chosen by the Diocese of Connecticut in 1783 to be the first bishop in the United States and was sent to England for consecration. This was refused him when he declined to take the oath of allegiance to the King. A year and a half later he was elevated to church leadership in Aberdeen.

The memorial will be built on the site of the building in which the consecration took place.

BREAK GROUND FOR CHURCH

Ground was broken yesterday for the new building of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Washington road and Mayfair drive, Mt. Lebanon. Bishop Alexander Mann, of the Episcopal diocese of Pittsburgh, who turned the first spadeful of soil found in sunshine and cloudless skies an augury favorable to the establishment of one of the largest congregations in Pittsburgh territory. More than 500 persons attended the ceremony.

Mt. Lebanon, declared Bishop Mann, is one of the most rapidly-growing communities in Pennsylvania, and is considered a strategic point for the expansion of the activities of the diocese. St. Paul's, Mt. Lebanon, which was established in 1924, holds the charter of old St. Paul's church, Herron Hill, established in 1835, but which was abandoned about 15 years ago. Forty former members of the old congregation attended yesterday's exercises.

The Rev. Warren C. Herrick, rector of St. Paul's, recited a Psalm, and the Rev. Dr. Homer A. Flint, secretary of the diocese, read the lesson. Participating with Bishop Mann, the rector, and Dr. Flint in the breaking of ground, were John A. Lathwood, representing the department of missions; Dudley R. Gibb, senior warden of St. Paul's; Stephen F. Elkins, chairman of the building committee, and J. J. Brown, former senior warden of old St. Paul's, Herron Hill.

Andrew Mulhalland, of 4122 Butler street, who became page one material by taking a trolley car from the Plummer street barns early Saturday morning and joy-riding to Sixth and Wylie avenues, closed the incident today by paying a $25 fine to Magistrate Leo Rothenberg. At the hearing it developed that Mulhalland's wife is in the hospital and two children are ill at home. Officials of the Pittsburgh Railways Company said that considering the man's domestic situation, they did not desire to prosecute him. Mulhalland was arrested on the charge of being a suspicious person.

DORMITORY FOR POOR OPENED

Dormitories of the new Webster avenue branch of the Association for the Improvement of the Poor, at 1001 Webster avenue, were thrown open last night. More than 100 men took advantage of the opportunity to spend the night as guests.

Quarters for both whites and Negroes have been established in the new five-story buildings, which at peak capacity will provide sleeping accomodations for 800 men, according to H. D. Fowler, in charge.

DOUBLE DECK BEDS

Not only have dormitory accomodations with double decker beds, been established, but several score private rooms, with outside exposure, have been provided. The private quarters sell for a 40 cent nightly rate, while the dormitory beds range at 20 and 25 cents for uppers and lowers respectively.

Each dormitory is heated by steam heat with automatic thermostatic control. Bedding is laundered daily at the Association's Duquesne Way plant.

Erected at a cost in excess of $200,000, the building meets a pressing need in the Hill district. It is of concrete, tile, face brick and steel construction, and is fireproof. An auditorium, on the first floor, will be used for motion picture and radio entertainment as well as for assembly purposes. Sleeping quarters for whites and Negroes are ranged on separate floors.

LOCKERS PROVIDED

Lockers are provided for every guest. Shower accomodations are commodious.

On the second floor is located the new "five and ten" restaurant. Finished in tan colored tile and with marble counters and fittings, the restaurant has a seating capacity of 70. The sanitary kitchen is adjacent. No article of food is sold for more than five or ten cents. The restaurant has been in operation several days.

Formal dedication of the building will take place shortly.

Church Aid Will Hold Indoor Picnic

HOLD DRIVERS AFTER FATAL COLLISION

Seek Hit-Runner Who Runs Down Messenger; Four Hurt in Pole Crash

Automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district brought a toll of one dead and 12 injured, 11 of whom were in hospitals today.

Harry Stadelman, 43, of Becks Run road, was killed early yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding collided with another machine at Walters and Anthony street, Mt. Oliver, according to the coroner's report.

A. J. Reckenwald, of 61 Margaret street, and L. A. Nozakowski, of 91 Forty-third street, drivers of the automobiles, were arrested, deputy coroners said. Reckenwald was the driver of the car in which Stadelman was a passenger.

HIT-RUNNER SOUGHT

County detectives and Wilkinsburg police today were searching for a hit-and-run motorist who struck Samuel Realo, 40, of 2033 Wylie avenue, at the William Penn and Lincoln highways, Wilkinsburg, last night. Realo, a Western Union messenger, suffered a probable skull fracture, and was taken to Columbia Hospital. The car which struck the man was a stolen one, police said.

Gabriel Dalonzo, 30; Bennie Semonae, 30, of 49 Chartiers avenue; Sam Kanese, 26, of 49 Chartiers avenue, Rankin, and Antoni Perotta, 29, of 7322 Church avenue, Swissvale, were injured when the automobile in which they were riding sidewiped a pole at Braddock avenue and Forbes street, last night. Passing motorists extricated the victims from the wreckage, and took them to Columbia Hospital.

The car, police said, was driven by Perotta.

WOMAN HURT

Twenty minutes later at the same corner, Mrs. Mary Darb, 50, of 1341 Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, suffered lacerations on the nose when her head struck the windshield of an automobile driven by her sister, Mrs. Louise Beaderman, of the same address according to police. Mrs. Beaderman's machine crashed into the pole in an attempt to avoid hitting another. Mrs. Darb was treated at Columbia Hospital.

W. H. Rosswell, and his wife, of 624 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, were in South Side Hospital with probable fractures of the skull, and J. P. Shanahan, 31, of Bellevue, was in Mercy Hospital, with injuries sustained, when, according to police, Shanahan's automobile struck one driven by Louis Miller, 30, of 416 Bower Hill road, Mt. Lebanon, and the Rosswell automobile in the 2600 block on West Liberty avenue, early yesterday.

LEG AMPUTATED

His left leg amputated after he had been struck by an automobile, Joseph Fenyus, 6, of Elm street, Homeville, was in a serious condition in Homestead Hospital today. Police said the boy ran in front of a machine driven by George Williams, of Laura avenue, Homeville, yesterday. Williams was not arrested.

When a machine in which she was riding collided with another at Eighth avenue and Amity street, Homestead, Mrs. Bella Blinkey, 3., of 58 Darry street, Pittsburgh, suffered bruises and was taken to Homestead Hospital.

Robert Logan, 25, of Monroeville road, Turtle Creek, was arrested by borough police last night, it was reported, for his failure to stop after his automobile collided with a car driven by Dr. E. C. Neibaum, of 821 Wood street, Wilkinsburg, on the Lincoln highway, near Wilkinsburg.

Herman Mertes, 45, of Jacks Run road, Bellevue, suffered a fractured leg when he was struck by an automobile driven by James McDonald, 18, of Franklin street, Wilkinsburg, in Perrysville road, Ross Township, last night, according to police. Mertes was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Jane Edson Engaged To Wed

ALTHOUGH a week from Friday is the date set for the debut of spring, the season is really "out" already, don't you agree? Today is a typical early northern spring day with sunshine and the promise of all sorts of exciting things in the air which has an insidious chill for all the sun-bathed sky.

We'd know spring was near no matter what weather though because of the many notable engagements being announced.

TODAY I can tell you of a betrothal of which I heard a few days ago. Mrs. John Joy Edson, Jr., of East Drive, Sewickley has made known the engagement of her daughter, Jane, to William Dudley Livingston.

Plight Troth

Jane is a granddaughter of John Joy Edson, of Washington, and the daughter of the late John Joy Edson, Jr. She's a graduate of the Master's School at Dobbs Ferry, and made her debut a year ago in June.

Her fiance is the son of the John Griswold Livingstons, of Lawrence, L. I. He prepared for college at St. Paul's School, and is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1925. He's now residing in Pittsburgh.

POPULAR with society women who are music lovers are the morning musicales which have been held for several seasons. This month, on Wednesday, March 19, to be exact, another of the musicales will be held in the home of Mrs. Harry Dangerfield, of South Negley avenue. Helen V. Irwin, dramatic artist, Eelen Glen-Campbell, soprano, and Margaret Burry, harpist, will present a program.

Society Concert

The meeting to have been held last month in the home of Mrs. William Francis Knox, of Robin road, probably will take place the first Wednesday of next month in the home of Mrs. Taylor Allderdice.

MR. AND MRS. BEN P. HARDESTY announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Josephine Roberta Hardesty, to Edmund O. Moses, on Saturday afternoon. The ceremony took place in the Hardesty home in Morewood Gardens, with the Rev. C. Wallace Petty as officiant. The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. W. K. Phillips.

After a brief visit in the south, Mr. and Mrs. Moses will make their home in New York.

MRS. MARGARET GALLAHER, of Aspinwall, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Ina Alice Gallaher, to M. Kevert Mellott, of Pittsburgh, on Wednesday, February 19. The ceremony took place in the William Penn with the Rev. R. A. Jamison, of Apollo, officiating. William Allwein, of Lebanon, and Mrs. Gobin Shindle Smith, of Carrick, sang.

The bride wore coral chiffon with a corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Lillian Osbourn, of Washington and Pittsburgh, was maid of honor and wore toast chiffon and lace with a corsage of sweetheart roses and sweetpeas. Clair E. Ritchey, of Oakmont, was best man.

Following the ceremony a dinner was served and later Mr. and Mrs. Mellott left for a motor trip through the south, and after March 15 will live in Aspinwall.

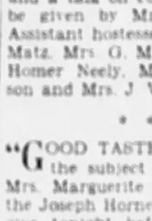
"WHAT BRINGS ADMIRATION?"

Famous screen stars say: "Lovely Skin"

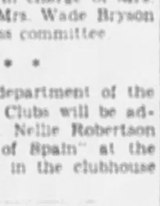
"Nothing attracts people as instantly and surely as smooth lovely skin," say 45 leading Hollywood directors. The famous screen stars agree for they have found that beautiful skin is the first essential for stardom.



BLANCHE SWEET

To pass the pitiless lens of the close-up, a star's skin must be flawlessly smooth. How significant it is then that 9 out of 10 screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap to keep their skin in the perfect condition the close-up demands.

Blanche Sweet's great popularity on the screen is due in part to her exquisite skin. She says: "My first thought is always my skin for the close-up is all-revealing. Lux Toilet Soap leaves my skin velvety smooth."



GRETA NISSEN

Greta Nissen's unbelievably lovely skin is like a white rose in moonlight. She says: "Lux Toilet Soap makes my skin wonderfully soft."

Piquant Vera Reynolds says: "A star has to have the smoothest skin in the world to pass the close-up. Lux Toilet Soap keeps mine like satin."

THE ENSEMBLE INFLUENCE UPON THE LATEST BLOUSES

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 10.—The tailleur like ancient Gaul is divided into three parts. It seems as if it was far back in the dim past when one bought a coat and skirt and the blouse thereof was left to one's own sweet choice, and very often a not so new but favorite bodice was worn with a new suit, and not always to the best advantage. Now the blouse is just as important as the suit and is an integral part of it. Obviously another result of the ensemble influence which has done so much to create the desire to blend every part of the costume so that it merges into a well-defined yet harmonious whole. Suits this year are of the tailored and more elaborate variety, and the tailored suits soften their severity with such delightful touches that they can be worn throughout the day with perfect assurance.

THE use of sheer fabrics for evening frocks is becoming more general for every house is showing models in chiffon, tulle and fine georgette. And the sheer fabrice are shirred, and always gracefully designed. The evening frock sketched is from Molyneux and is of Greek inspiration as are so many creations of this house. It is of beige chiffon, both color and fabric will be of great importance this year. Both the bloused tunic and the skirt are shirred in a widely spaced, irregular design and end in softly pressed pleats. The bodice is bloused at the natural waistline and has a round decolletage at both front and back.

ADMIRAL CARR FOUND DEAD

NEW LONDON, Conn., March 10.—(AP.)—Rear Admiral Clarence Alfred Carr, United States Navy, retired, died during the night in his sleep at his home here. His body was found by his wife.

The rear admiral's death was due to heart disease. He was 73 years old. During the World War he was in charge of the engineering work at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. He retired from the Navy in 1920.

He was born in Crawford County, Pennsylvania, and in 1879 was graduated at Annapolis. In 1898, he was married here to Miss Blanche Lanman, a daughter of the late Rear Admiral Joseph Lanman, of Norwich. Burial will be in Yantic Cemetery here.

Besides his widow, Rear Admiral Carr is survived by four brothers, Ossian Elmer, city manager of Fort Worth, Tex.; Humphrey and Alvah, of Seattle, Wash., and Allen Carr, of Crawford County, Pa., and three sisters, Meda and Mathilda Carr, of Crawford County, and Mrs. Clara Collier, of Cleveland, O.

ADMITS HE HAS ANOTHER WIFE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 10. (AP.)—Confronted with a description furnished by Mesa (Ariz.) officers, R. A. Davis, who a week ago married Miss Alice Cutnecht, of Milwaukee, in Mexico City after a whirlwind courtship, today admitted he is the husband of Mrs. R. A. Davis, of Mesa.

The admission was made to Capt. Lee V. Hunnicutt, commander of Alamo Post, American Legion, here.

The young bride has conferred with a San Antonio attorney with a view to bringing annulment proceedings.

Healthiest!

"My little daughter is just about the healthiest girl I know," says Mrs. L. Frank, 5822 Ludlow St., Philadelphia. "And I want to give credit where it is due.

"Phyllis was constipated several years ago and I gave her California Fig Syrup. It helped her so wonderfully that I have used it ever since for all her upsets or colds. It has kept her strong, energetic, rugged."

Children suffer when bowels aren't regular. Breath becomes fetid; tongue coated; eyes dull. When these symptoms are neglected, biliousness, feverishness, lack of appetite invariably follow.

The first dose of California Fig Syrup relieves these symptoms and activates sluggish bowels. Successive doses help tone and strengthen weak bowels, improve appetite; encourage digestion and assimilation. Try it with a bilious, headachy, constipated child and see how it helps!

The pure vegetable product, endorsed by doctors for 50 years, always bears the name California. So look for it when buying

Invalids and Convalescents

You Need No Longer Take Fishy Liquid Cod Liver Oil to Get Strength-Renewing Vitamins

It is no longer excusable for any person—man, woman or child—to go without cod liver oil's health and building elements because of the disagreeable, fishy taste and odor which cling to every spoonful of the liquid form. Simply take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets instead. By doing so, you will give your system the complete, lasting benefit of cod liver oil's abundant and wonderful vitamins (the "sunshine" vitamin D and the body-building vitamin A), in a form far easier to take, to digest and assimilate. And you will not have to miss the midday dose—easy to carry, easy to take.

But you ask, are the tablets really as beneficial as high grade cod liver oil? The answer is that it is not the fats but the vitamins which make cod liver oil so wonderful for sickly, rundown, underweight men, women and children. Two McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets are equal to one teaspoonful of the pure, vitamin-tested Norwegian cod liver oil from which they are made.

A Real Body Builder

Only cod liver oil from the world's finest sources is used in the making of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets, and the pure, vitamin-rich extract of this oil is their sole ingredient. McCoy's Tablets positively contain no harmful or habit-forming drugs, no inert medicines, no temporary "pick-me-ups." And here is a very important point as far as invalids and convalescents are concerned—McCoy's Tablets contain nothing to disturb the most delicate stomach—no odor, no taste, no greasiness.

For any sick, anemic, rundown or underweight condition for which cod liver oil is known to be beneficial, you will find it just as safe, just as beneficial and far more pleasant to take or give McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets instead. 60 tablets, 60 cents at any drug store. © McC. Lab., Inc., 1929.

CHICKIE

Jake Calls After Chickie's Dad Recovers Money

CHAPTER XXIX.

BARRY helped Chickie into the little roadster, took out a cigaret and lit it, doing everything with a measured calm.

She stole a look at his face and grew miserable seeing the young, full-cut mouth straightened in a stony silence. She reached her hand to his arm. "You're angry, Barry? But listen—"

"No—I'm not angry."

He kept his glance hard before him. She waited with choking heart, frightened to find his mood affecting her in this piercing, desperate way. He said quietly: "If this is your idea of things, Chickie—go to it! Don't let me interfere."

"You're unjust. You're jumping to conclusions!"

"Yes? I am, then. I've jumped to the conclusion that you've been to dinner; that you enjoyed it, that you hoped to get home a little before I arrived. But Jake was in no hurry. He races you here in his limousine."

She sank down in the seat, her strength all at once, dropping in a hot weakness.

He was aware of her—quiet, unresistant. Like this, she had an enormous power over him. The wistful sadness of her profile was before his eyes. It went in like her little warm hand and touched his spirit. He had as often a wish to draw his arm about her, to murmur lightly: "Ah, why so unhappy?" He had a wish to kiss her—make her glad.

This softening of his resentment touched first his mouth. It made his hand gentle again as he took her arm and they walked to the theatre. She smiled at him gratefully, saying with a rush: "Barry—please."

"Well, how would you feel, Chickie, if you saw me running off with some one else—off on a lark?"

"It wasn't a lark. You don't know—". She told him how it happened—why she went—all that Jake promised—how Jonathan rubbed his great hands together, chuckling like a boy in his overpowering relief.

Puzzled About Jake

Her eyes misted, so sweet was his approval. "Not sore a bit, then. Why, what do I care for Jake? Or any one!"

"But me, Chickie? Is that on the level?

"And you know it, Mr. Red. I'm not wise, or I should keep you guessing more—so I'm told by them that know!"

"We need advice from them that know, Chickie! Any old time!"

During the play she slipped her hand into his, moved to tears when he held it with a quick ardent pressure.

Over the club sandwich and coffee they had afterwards he said: "But Jake will expect you to go around with him as before."

"That makes it hard. I don't know what excuse to make or what to tell him."

"You don't have to go out with every man who asks you, do you?"

"No—but, then, I was going out with him so much, and he's been pretty fine to me. Gave me Wildie. Now he does this for Jonathan—"

"Oh—so you think you should go out with him? You should pay him back?"

"Barry—don't. That's not fair. Why, it seems as though I don't do anything but dream of you—"

The blood flew into his cheeks. He grinned, his white, even teeth sparkling. "Say more words like that, sweet one."

"I could think of oceans of them. But, just now, I think you ought to let me tell you about this. What good is it that you're a lawyer—a most brilliant young jurist, as it were—if you can't get you're best friend—"

"You mean 'my steady'?"

Visions Engagement

"All right—if you can't get your steady out of a pinch."

"He asked you to go out with him already?"

"Of course. And I said I had the whole week taken and I was busy. But he just roared and wanted to know if I'd fallen in love or was going to be married. What could I say?"

"What did you say?"

"Nothing. We don't want any one, do we?" She brought the question out shyly. A hundred times, sitting before the bureau, combing her hair, she had thought with vague sweetness: "Are we engaged? I wonder if Barry and I are promised to each other?" She couldn't even think these things without a warm, tremulous flush gliding over her. Now her cheeks stained.

He said, "Well, whose business is it but our own?"

"I know. And, of course, it's a little easier for you. But if I keep refusing Jake and he doesn't come to the house any more Jonathan will ask questions and Jennie will want to know. You could find me a good alibi, I should think."

"Well—you put Jake off two or three times and he won't bother any more. He's like that," Barry smiled. "Jake's a Casanova in his way. What's one unwilling flower to him when the whole garden runs over with roses only too anxious to be plucked?"

He was always making allusions that she didn't understand. But he thought her clever and a wide reader, so she assumed an air of wisdom. Many an evening before coming home from work she sauntered into the library. She pored over the encyclopedia; asked the tall, fairish girl at the desk questions; gathered happy bits of information that she laced about her conversation with airy nonchalance. Tomorrow she would find out about Casanova—maybe ask Janina or Martha Blake or the good old reliable books.

Jake Telephones

Tonight she said with a knowing shrug, "Casanova was a wise old owl, wasn't he?" Then, with an aching sigh, "It's terrible to believe that Jake or men do things like that!"

"Like what?"

"You know, I don't see how they manage to look so tickled to death with life and be so swaggery if they have all those dark, awful things behind them. Do you?"

Her eyes sought his eagerly, wishing him to agree—wishing him to stand forth far apart above those other men. "Do you see that, Barry?"

"Well, that's the way a blessed damozel looks at things."

"You, too, don't you?"

He hunched his shoulders, grinning, his forehead redder than his hair. "Oh, sure! Ever since the fair one came upon the scene, anyway."

"Meaning me?"

"Meaning you."

She laughed, glad as though song rushed goldenly all through her thoughts.

When he kissed her that night his arm about her shoulder, he touched her hair, laughing. "Ah, Chickie, you're so sweet."

Her heart was his. She answered: "Barry, I love you so—oh, so—"

Not until the door closed after him and she was in the kitchen, Wildie coming with a slow, luxurious yawn from his corner near the stove, did she think of Jake. Nothing had been settled. They had lost count of him in the delicious sweetness of their own warm emotions. Now she thought of him distantly as though he were a long way from her.

He phoned the next morning: "What night is a good night for a concert, Chickie?"

"I haven't a single night this week."

"That's all right—you've got seven next week."

"But I haven't—really—"

And there came humming over the wire a rich, soft laugh: "I see the way the wind blows, Chickie, my dear. We'll have to try a new tack. Till then, au revoir!"

A Surprise

A thrill of apprehension caught her. Jake was not dismissed. Jonathan was rugged and domineering, straight as a grand redwood again. A broker had come from the Star Oil Company and bought up his stock. He had his $1,375 in his hands again.

"And that's a great, fine man, that Mr. Munson," he said, shaking his head to Chickie. "There's a prince for you!"

Tuesday when Chickie reached home she found the table in the dining room laid with Jennie's wedding silver; masses of Jennie's flowers in the center. She called out: "Hey! Whose birthday is this?"

Jennie in her gray silk dress, lace at the cuffs, though lace was now quite out of date, opened the door and came pattering over to Chickie. Her face and her shy, gentle eyes beamed with lighted pleasure.

"A surprise for you, Chickie," she whispered like a child in her delight. Jennie took down the best dishes from the little built-in china cabinet, moving with extraordinary care and precision—careful of the lace and the gray silk.

Voices and chuckles; Jonathan's resonant laugh rang out from the kitchen. Chickie pushed the door, motionless with astonishment.

There sat Jonathan, odorous with moth balls—togged out in his Prince Albert. There, opposite him at the small table, the two of them like old cronies swapping tips on oil and other stock, sat Jake.

He rose, triumph flashing on his dark, handsome face. He took Chickie's hand, pressing it between both his own, laughing down at her, saying with a boy's ardor: "Chickie, my dear, we're off to the opery — the whole family of us!"

Jake was the king at the feast. "Best dinner I ever had!" His black eyes praised Jennie. He passed his plate for another slice of her flaky apple pie. She blushed, the knife in her hand trembling.

He offered cigars to Jonathan. And, sitting next to Chickie, he hunched his shoulder down cosily, saying with a rich laugh: "Like the surprise we fixed for you?"

Jonathan reached over and patted her hand. "Kind of took your breath away, eh, Chickie girl?"

Though her lips trembled, she said, with a meaning look at Jake: "Oh, I've breath enough to blow one where I wish to go!"

He answered, challenging: "So have I! As you see, Chickie dear!"

She got up leisurely, defying him with her eyes. But she stood uncertain and almost in tears at the door of her closet. The fear burned like a hot coal in her breast.

Feels Trapped

Jennie came in with her long gloves: "See, dear, I cleaned them for you. Wear the blue georgette. You're so lovely in that. Every one dresses so for the opera. Wear your crystal beads. It's nice you have pretty things." She stooped down for Chickie's slippers, the gray silk drawn tight over her plump arms. She took short breaths, so great was her excitement. "Years ago when Jonathan and I heard Madame Patti sing, I wore yellow satin. It was wonderful. I remember it so well. Hurry, dear—"

Chickie polished her nails with elaborate slowness. Her neck was hot. She said, biting her lips: "You could have telephoned and told me about this, Jennie. I like to know things. I didn't want to go—"

"Didn't want to go?" Jennie's chin dropped. A frightened pallor fell like a gray veil over her flushed face. "You didn't want to go? We thought you'd be surprised."

She looked suddenly so tremulous and crushed, Chickie put down the buffer, laughing: "Ho—Jennie, ole dear—what's the matter with you? I didn't mean it that way. Why—well, you see, I would have bought new gloves. Of course, I want to go—"

But she had a sense of being trapped—an overpowering reluctance to step into Jake's limousine.

Seed Catalogue Pictures, Fay King Finds, Truly Futuristic

By FAY KING

THE best seller right now is the seed catalogue! Everybody is reading it! Publishers who doubt the value of its illustrations should take a lesson from the seed catalogue. What would a seed catalogue be without illustrations?

And the masterpieces that adorn its pages are in no weird fantastic modernistic art. Yet certainly the seed catalogue illustrators are the greatest "futurist" painters there are. It is their beautiful interpretation of the future of the seeds advertised which more than anything else influences and impresses one to invest and plant.

Whether one has a ten acre farm or a ten inch flower pot, just now nothing interests us so much as this yearly guide to gardening, and one longs to invest in rakes, hoes and shovels!

Madge Arranges to Change Places With Katherine

MY father answered the telephone when I had put in my long distance call to summon Katherine to our aid in taking care of Noel. As I had feared, the members of the farm household were all asleep. But my father has a branch telephone upon a stand by his bed and answers all late night calls. I thanked my particular little joss that Mother Graham's slight deafness and her propensity for sound slumber would keep her from hearing the ring of the telephone. Otherwise, I knew she would be out in the hall demanding haughtily, but with real fright, the reason for the late call.

My father's voice was composed, as always, but I hastened to relieve the anxiety which I know is always his at an unexpected summons.

"We are all perfectly well, father," I told him, "except Noel, who has had a slight accident. If possible I want to change places with Katherine for a week or two."

"You mean, come out here for that long?" my father answered, and I thrilled with tenderness at the joy in his voice, not composed now, but distinctly uneven.

"I mean just that, dearest," I told him. "Won't it be glorious? Noel isn't seriously hurt or I wouldn't gloat this way, but I am so happy at the prospect of being at home again. And now, may I talk to Katherine?

"I'll call her at once," he said, and in another minute I heard him talking through the speaking tube which we have had installed in Katherine's room so that either Mother Graham or my father can call her at any time without leaving their rooms.

"Margaret calling," he said, and then returned to me.

"She will come to the upstairs hall phone in a minute or two," he said, "and I will wait here until I hear her voice. I'm sorry to hear about Noel, poor chap, but as long as he isn't seriously hurt I am gloating, too. My darling girl, you have made me very happy. I don't believe I have ever missed you as I have done this fall. I shall count the hours until you come. Ah!" as Katherine's voice sounded a "Lo, Madge!" "Here is Katherine now. Good night, dear heart." and the receiver clicked with his prompt effacement of himself.

Hastily I outlined Noel's need of her and our plan. As Lillian and I had thought, she was enthusiastic at the chance for a real nursing case again.

"Everything here is in splendid shape, everybody well," she said, "so I can come at once if you want me."

"I shall drive out in the morning," I said, "reaching there in time for you to take the afternoon train back. We'll have an emergency nurse sent in for tomorrow."

"I could start on that morning train," Katherine said, "but it would be rather upsetting for Mother Graham. She will need a long explanation, you know."

"Yes, I know," I said. "And as you love me, dear girl, make it a satisfactory one."

"I'll do my best, old dear," she promised. "If there's nothing more on your mind I'm going to leave you flat. It's cold out here."

"Of course. Good night. See you tomorrow."

I hung up the receiver and hurried back to the Underwood apartment, where I found the doctor bending over Noel, whose eyes were open and tense with inquiry. He had regained consciousness, I saw with a little throb of thanksgiving, and I had faith that the efficient medical man at the bedside would keep him from losing it again.

"Everything is all right, my dear fellow," Dr. Wexham said with an admirable bedside manner. "The young lady is safe and here in the room with you, and your injury will not prove serious—if you obey orders strictly. Otherwise I cannot tell you what may be the result. Drink this now and then lie back and relax. Shut your eyes and rest."

He put a glass to Noel's lips, slightly raising the boy's head and shoulders as he did so. Then he laid him back upon the pillow, and, turning, beckoned to Mary with the ghost of a smile quirking his lips.

"If you don't mind sitting beside him and holding his hand," he said, "I think he will have a better chance of going to sleep peacefully."

There was no lack of color in Mary's face as she rose and walked to the chair he indicated. But Noel was past all embarrassment. His eyes held nothing but contentment as his hand went out to hers. Dr. Wexham gave them a quick, searching glance and then beckoned Lillian and me to the other end of the room.

"Mrs. Underwood has told me your plan, Mrs. Graham," he said, "and I fully approve. Have you succeeded?"

"Mrs. Bickett will be here tomorrow evening," I said. "Can you provide us with an emergency nurse then?"

"I'll have one here at 7 in the morning," he promised. "You won't have any trouble tonight. He will sleep all night, I am sure, and Mrs. Underwood tells me her husband was in the ambulance service during the great unpleasantness. He can do anything necessary until the nurse gets here. I'll leave instructions with you for him."

"It won't be necessary," Lillian said. "I hear him at the door now. You can tell him yourself what you wish him to do."

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

THE ONLY harm that comes from the use of face powder is in applying it to a skin surface that is not strictly clean, forcing dust into the pores. It acts as a protection against wind and sun and atmospheric dust. Nearly all powders contain some kind of antiseptic that is beneficial to the skin. Lead and other poisons are never included in the formulas nowadays. Heavy, creamy powders adhere better and give the over-worked powder pad a rest, but they must be put on carefully so that the effect won't be spotty.

There is no beauty defect more disturbing to others than the shrill voice. Correction is a simple matter: the shriller needs only to use less volume and to train her ear to an appreciation of musical tones. One shrieker can keep the nerves of a whole family on edge. It is to be observed, also, that the loud talker seldom says anything that is worth listening to. Individuals who do the most thinking do the least shouting.

The middle-aged woman, cursed with the mealbag figure, must tighten up her sagging tummy muscles. Not only because the tightening will improve her shape, but because it will be beneficial to her inner sides, help the internal organs to function better. A good exercise is to place a heavy book on the abdomen and to inhale deeply, lifting the book with each breath. Exhalation should be prolonged, forcing the air from the lower lobes of the lungs. All bending exercises are recommended.

There is one way and one way only to get footloose from foot ills. That is to have the shoes properly fitted so there is no pressure. Ingrowing nails, corns, calloused spots and bunions are all the result of shoes that do not conform to the shape of the foot.

An Error in Quotation Marks

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I seem to have committed a grave social error during the holiday season, and would be grateful if you would enlighten me on the matter. I have a habit of enclosing my whole name in quotation marks when I sign a card, Christmas, New Year's and so forth. I wasn't aware that it had any particular meaning, but it seems to have caused considerable comment among friends. I happen to be engaged at the present time, and some people draw the conclusion that signing my name in that manner meant that I was already married. Will you please inform me as to the seriousness of my mistake? READER.

THIS is a rather foolish thing for you to do, to enclose your name in quotation marks, but there isn't anything serious about it. As a matter of fact, I should think that what did happen would have happened—that your friends would interpret the quotation marks as meaning "formerly." Make a resolution not to do this again—marks of punctuation, you know, mean definite things!—and explain to your friends that you are "off" quotation marks for the rest of your life, except when they have the significance that you wish them to have!

Flowers for the Bereaved Family

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A friend of my husband's and also my friend passed away. The body was immediately taken to another city for burial. We did not send flowers. Now is it appropriate for us to send a basket of flowers to the mother and daughter on their return to this city, as they are friends of ours also?

MRS. B. M.

THIS would be a very kind and thoughtful thing for you to do, and I am sure that your friends would be deeply touched by your thought of them. I suggest that you do not send a basket of flowers, but, instead, a box of flowers. Spring flowers, for instance. And with the flowers I suggest, too, that you send a note telling of your sympathy and of your friendship, and of your wish to serve, if your friend will permit you to do anything that will make life easier for her.

Formal Accessories

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to be married and would like to know what color tie to wear with a tuxedo. I say black, so we are leaving it to you. M.

YES, you are correct. A black bow tie should be worn with a tuxedo.

The Marry-Go-Round

Hints for the Bridegroom

EVERY young husband has to learn a brand-new signal code and master the domestic sign manual, during the first year of marriage.

No sooner has a bridegroom discovered where to find his razor and the talcum, than he has to start in memorizing his wife's signals, for public use. And, as no two women have the same system of signals, he is always in danger of getting the Stop and Go signs mixed.

For instance, a long, cold, steady, arresting gaze that goes right through a man and buttons up the back may mean "You are making a fool of yourself." Or "Your shirt-front is bulging; pull it down." Or, "Everyone is watching you—and I'm not missing anything!"

A significant lift of the left eyebrow may mean "You are using the wrong fork." Or "You are drinking too much." Or "Why did you pull that one?"

And a veiled glance out of the corners of the eyes may signify, "Let's go home; I'm tired!" Or "Did you SEE that? She's impossible!" Or, "Cut out the blonde and talk to your hostess."

A gentle kick under the table may mean "You're not doing your duty as host." Or "It's time to finish your salad." Or "Watch your step; you're telling too much."

While a loving pinch on the arm man mean, "For the Lord's sake, let them say good-night and GO!" Or "It's your turn to pay; pick up the check."

A flutter of the handkerchief from the corner of the room may be an imperative S. O. S. meaning, "Come and rescue me: I'm being bored to death!"

Or, "This man is getting too clubby. Come and show him who's paying my bills."

Or "Are you going to leave me sitting here in this corner all evening?"

* * *

While a faint but significant frown may mean, "I'm getting nervous; let's get out of this." Or, "Try to STOP me; I dare you to make a scene!" Or, "You've told that one ten times to these people."

And a strained smile may mean, "Yes, isn't he cute? Just wait till I get him home!"

Or "Go on; go on; don't mind me; I'm only your wife!"

Or, "Now, you've spilled the beans! Just as I expected!"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, March 11

THE planetary operations for this day presage a sudden and important change, possibly in connection with new projects or purely personal affairs. Unusual angles may develop, and gain is probable in all matters except employment. Social and romantic affairs thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of sudden change, with new projects, some financial advantage and great social, domestic or romantic interests engaging their attention.

A child born on this day may be talented and accomplished and may have an eventful career.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Gardening as an Aid to Health.

BEFORE long many people will be thinking of their gardening. Fortunate are they who possess gardens.

DR. COPELAND

Within the last few years gardening has taken on an added impetus. During the World War when conservation of food was to the fore, thousands of women and girls took up gardening and many learned to love it.

The Garden Club of America has thrived in numbers during the past 15 years. There is scarcely a village or town that is without its Garden Club, and a good thing it is, too.

There are health, pleasure and recreation all tied up in a garden plot. If the possessor is that happy individual who loves the out-of-doors and Old Mother Earth he is indeed blessed.

Health and much pleasure can be derived from a flower garden, as well as from a vegetable garden. Beauty in nature is some way soul-satisfying. Beauty in flowers is not one of the least of the things which give satisfaction and contentment.

The family that has to depend entirely on the market or the huckster for its vegetable supply does not usually have as much of these vital foods as it should have. Not everybody can have a garden, it is true. But there are many who can have one who never give a thought to all the advantages to be derived from owning a garden.

Nothing can be more desirable than a well-selected variety of vegetables. Just think of all the wonderful vitamins and minerals, so necessary to growth and well-being, you may have stored up in your garden for the entire family for all the summer months.

Take the tomato, for instance. This is probably the richest of all the vegetables in its vitamin and mineral content. It is effective as a blood cleanser. It is richest in the natural acids which keep the stomach and intestines in good condition. It helps to wash away the poisons which may cause disease in the kidneys. It is good for the diabetic and the patient with Bright's disease. Of course, these benefits may be derived from some other vegetables.

Vegetables stand at the head of the foods as regulators. Among other good effects, they give us bulk and roughage so much needed in digestion.

The physical effort you have to put into a garden is good for your health. The farmer finds in his garden relaxation from the heavy work of the farm. Women find it a change and relaxation after household cares. In many a school garden children are learning the art of making things grow.

For the busy man and woman at work in the city, if they can live in a suburb and own a garden, life is made richer and health made stronger by getting out next to the soil every day. For those who love gardening there is nothing more relaxing from tired nerves, and no better exercise than an hour or more in the garden after a hot day in the city.

The White House Gang

ined there would be no punishment.

But there was . . . in the cloakroom . . . yet Q came back, neither effectively punished nor humiliated, but obviously very angry.

The following morning, the White House carriage with the President in it, appeared in front of the school. Many small faces pressed little noses against window panes, to peer at TR as he strode into the building and disappeared. A moment later he was in the classroom doorway, accompanied by a visibly flustered Principal; everyone dropped work, and stared open-mouthed; Q, to whom the visit was entirely a surprise, and, possibly, an unpleasant shock, turned purple, as his father presented Miss Wallace with a large bouquet, saying as he did so:

"Miss Wallace, I come to offer my apology for Quentin's rude and thoughtless behavior of yesterday. He was illustrating to me how accidents could happen, and most inadvertently, I suspect, mentioned the spitball. I understand he did not make an altogether satisfactory apology to you, if he made one at all . . . which he most certainly should have done. And so, the least I could do, I thought, would be to come myself. Of course, even now, it's not satisfactory because—as Quentin must learn—an apology, in order to be really acceptable should be immediately made."

Miss Wallace was quite overcome. Receiving an apology directly from the President of the United States was altogether too much for her and resulted in her almost losing her voice, and being unable properly to answer him.

Boy Commended

The class, sitting still as mice, and quite overawed by TR, suddenly became human again, as he smiled upon them, looking most amazingly like his picture which hung next to that of Washington, up above the blackboard.

Little Walker White's big voice boomed out from the back of the room. "Everybody stand up," he commanded, "for the President . . ."

TR turned to him, said abruptly, "One boy, at least, has his manners with him, today. That was very nice of you, indeed!" He bowed to Miss Wallace, and without a glance or a word to Quentin, hurried away.

"Golly!" said Q to himself, but quite audibly.

Miss Wallace, no mean tactician, suddenly switched the work of the class to mathematics—or was it arithmetic?—in which realm silence and concentration combine to bring order out of confusion.

At this point, Fairfax Wallace, a brown-curled girl with an unusually fine name, which much intrigued us, and who possessed an arithmetical sense far beyond our dreams, was called up. She came up the aisle to exhibit her talent on the blackboard and to shame the rest of us into sadness and eventual decorum. But it was not to be. The girl had sat upon her dress, as all little girls must do; but rarely do dresses fold back, squash flat, and stay that way. . . . Desk-lids started tapping gently, then louder; feet shuffled, and giggling spread, from girls to boys. I happened to look at Quentin, and Q was gazing, with appalled fascination, at the back of the Wallace girl, about to do her problem at the blackboard.

Quentin Angered

The class was ecstatic. Q, however, had turned fiery-red down to his collar, and was trembling with anger. Suddenly he scuttled from his desk, bounded up the aisle, reached the Wallace girl and, with the utmost deftness, jerked down the dress.

Then he faced about, and we saw how indignant and distressed he had become. He said nothing; he just glared. Q had grown white, with what I knew to be the most intense and chivalrous humiliation.

This was one occasion, of which there were several, when the presence of TR, in the person of his deputy Q, seemed to be almost a physical fact, right in the schoolroom. To some of us, familiar in a hazy way with King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table, it was a simple matter to ignore discrepancies of time and place, and to see knightly chivalry in an act such as Q's with the Wallace girl.

Magnolia an Unknown.

RECEIVERS FACTORS IN SLAB SUCCESS

HOW much does a catcher mean to a pitcher in baseball? There are cases in which the answer is "Everything." Some smart, cool, smooth slab workmen of the type of Babe Adams or Remy Kremer, with control of both temperament and the ball, can go right along getting the same good results no matter who may be put behind the bat to receive their deliveries. But there are others not so easily handled. They've got to have certain men back there to assure their being able to pitch a steady, winning stride and to maintain a consistent gait.

Hank DeBerry

Perhaps the best illustration of the latter fact in the big leagues right now is the regular pairing of Dazzy Vance and Hank DeBerry as a battery for the Brooklyn club. DeBerry's name is rarely seen in the box score of a Robin game unless it happens to be Vance's turn to pitch. Hank is always on the job then. Every time Vance goes to the mound DeBerry is back of the plate, and there is no doubt in the mind of any close observer that the manner in which Hank handles that special assignment makes him well worth every cent that it costs to carry him.

TO what extent Vance would continue to succeed as a pitcher without the support of DeBerry is a question. There is no denying Dazzy's ability, of course, yet it is doubtful if he could come even close to being as successful pitching to a different catcher as he is when he has his regular partner as a backstop. Probably there is not another maskman in either major circuit who could get as much out of Vance as does DeBerry.

Long association has made this pair about the smoothest battery combination in baseball. They rival Walter Johnson and Gabby Street and other famous duos of the past. They were working together on the New Orleans club in 1921 and have been doing their act for Brooklyn since 1922. DeBerry has caught in almost every one of the 266 games that Vance has pitched for the Dodgers in eight seasons, and his work has contributed in no small way to Dazzy's success.

THE remarkable degree to which these battery mates have developed team work was demonstrated in the Robins' camp at Clearwater, Fla., a few days ago, when DeBerry made the gathering stare by catching the Dazzler's delivery "without looking."

Dazzy Vance

Holding his gloved hand directly in front of his face, which was turned sidewise, Hank, in a crouched position, bade Vance to cut loose and aim at his mitt. Dazzy took a windup and the ball landed squarely in his partner's glove. Not many other catchers would try to catch the kind of ball Vance throws the way DeBerry did.

BUT that only serves to illustrate how smoothly the two work together. There isn't a time when DeBerry is uncertain as to what Vance is capable of doing. Hank says that in all the time he has been catching Vance he has never been struck on the arms or legs by a ball that Dazzy delivered. He recalls only two occasions on which they got their signals crossed, and each time Vance sent a sharp-breaking curve when DeBerry was set to catch a straight, fast ball. Ed Murphy, who travels with the Robins, recollects that in each instance the ball sped past Hank and struck Umpire Ernest Quigley, with the result that Quigley limped for weeks.

IF Willie Keeler were living and in his prime, what would he hit against the present-day lively ball with his uncanny ability to chop the sphere over the infield and the outfielders forced to play deep on account of the constant danger of long drives? Manager John McGraw, of the Giants, one of Keeler's teammates on the old Baltimore Orioles, guesses that Willie's mark would be close to .500. That's about 150 points better than the average that Babe Ruth will receive salary of $80,000 a year for making during the next two seasons under the terms of the new two-year contract which he signs today. It's the length of Babe's hits, rather than their number, however, that will earn more money for Ruth in two years than Keeler drew down during his lifetime.

In view of the fact that Keeler batted .432 to lead the National League in 1897, McGraw probably isn't far wrong. That mark has been beaten only once in either of the present major leagues, the only higher one on record being Hugh Duffy's .438 in the National in 1894. Tip O'Neil, of the original St. Louis Browns, batted .492 in 1887, but that's out, as basses on balls were counted as hits that year and batters were allowed four strikes instead of only three. The peak in the American League is .420, made by Ty Cobb in 1911 and duplicated by George Sisler in 1922.

"KEELER could bat close to .500 if he could live again and play the game as he did in Baltimore," McGraw says. "The outfielders are compelled to play back so far for fly balls that it would be no trick at all for Willie to choke his bat and drop hit after hit back of the infield.

If a couple of Keelers could be developed for each club the opposing fielders could be crossed time and again. But the present-day player can rarely be taught anything but the slugging game—that of hitting the ball as hard and as far as possible and trusting to luck that it will fall beyond the reach of the outfielders."

FOOTBALL is one trade in which a man is done by the time he has learned it. That is, as far as college playing is concerned, unless he follows up his graduation by entering West Point. A boy may make the varsity team in his sophomore and hold down a regular position, but as a general rule he is still far from being a finished football player. The same goes for his junior year. It takes just about the entire length of his college course, or that part of it which he is privileged to devote to athletics, to make a polished gridiron performer of him, and then it's time to let him go and start in developing somebody else to fill his place.

Frank Cavanaugh

THAT'S one of the reasons given by Maj. Frank Cavanaugh, Fordham coach, as to why spring practice has become a necessary part of the collegiate football system. The early drills now being held have other projects, of course, but Cavanaugh says that that without them it would be a hard matter to complete the making of a real football player in four years, counting his freshman season.

"If they can't learn the game in four seasons, we have to resort to spring training to help along," says the Fordham mentor. "It isn't that the players are dull. It's just that football is a tough game to learn. They really can't get going properly until their senior year, and then they are through. All the best football players are out of college.

"YOU can't teach a team all there is to know within the few short weeks of the regular season. There is too much to learn. Now, this spring practice not only helps to freshen the memories of the players, but it gives the coach an opportunity to drill the squad in some of the fundamentals.

"There is also a psychological effect. After the winter let-down, spring training serves to remind the players of the things they ought to do on the football field. They regain the feel of the ball, and it revives their interest in the game. Everybody gets pepped up over

GAMES THIS WEEK.

Tonight—Aliquippa vs. New Kensington.
March 11—Monessen vs. Uniontown.
March 13—Duquesne vs. Scott, North Braddock.
March 14—Aliquippa - New Kensington winner vs. Monessen-Uniontown winner.
March 16—Final game.

Aliquippa and New Kensington return their high school basketball warriors to the Pitt Stadium tonight, there to battle in a second round game of the annual W. P. I. A. L. title elimination tourney. The second round competition was inaugurated Saturday night when New Castle advanced into the quarter - finals by eliminating Waynesburg.

Carl Glock

The Aliquippians scored a 29-20 win over stubborn Ambridge in a first round encounter a week ago Saturd. New Kensington erased the name of McKees Rocks from the tourney list last week, scoring a more decisive triumph than did the Harding passers. Carl Glock's team, cleverly coached and with a good record, figure to give Harding a test tonight.

Coach Lippe, of Harding, making his second successive bid for league honors, hopes to get his team past the second round tonight with more success than attended his efforts a year ago. After coming through the first round successfully, Harding bowed to Bellevue in a second round game.

Tomorrow night, the lower bracket will complete its second round play, Monessen and Uniontown hooking up in what promises to be a classic battle. Both were comparatively easy victors in the first round, Monessen especially displaying power on the attack.

ALL-STARS NAMED

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., March 10.—Now that the annual Allegheny-Kiski Valley tournament is over for another year, fans are sitting back talking about its star performers. On every hand is some sort of all-star selection, and, in order to get as close a guess as possible as to merits of the various players, scribes at the tourney took a poll of coaches' opinions, these mentors including Treadwell, of Franklin; McClurg, of Oakmont; Dunn, of Parnassus; Graham, of Blairsville, and Easterday, of Kittanning. The average of the opinions follows in these all-star choices of the 1930 event:

First team—E. Snyder, (F.), Armstrong; T. Hilliard, (F.), Kittanning; Anderson, (C.), Reynoldsville; A. Factor, (G.), Har-Brack; Lauchlin, (G.), New Kensington.

Second team — Klingensmith, (F.), Leechburg; Dowling, (F.), Reynoldsville; Mulvey, (C.), Har-Brack; F. Factor, (G.), Har-Brack; Hill, (G.), Leechburg.

W. VA. SCHOOLS QUALIFY

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., March 10.—(AP.)—Eighteen West Virginia high school basketball teams emerged from an original starting list of about 300 to become champions of 18 sectional tournaments Saturday night.

During the next two weeks these 18 teams will be busy preparing themselves for the state tournament, which will be held here March 20 and 21.

The 1930 sectional champions and the tournaments in which they participated are:

At Beckley, Oak Hill; at Switchback, Elkhorn; at Charleston, Charleston; at Montgomery, Montgomery; at Logan, Williamson; at Keystone, Keystone; at Bluefield, Bluefield; at Parkersburg, Parkersburg; at Huntington, Ceredo Kenova; at Wheeling, Wheeling; at Clarksburg, Washington Irving; at Salisbury; at Pennsboro, Cairo; at Kingwood, Rowlesburg; at Elkins, Elkins; at Farmington, Hundred; at Fairmont, Shinnston; at Somerville, Macfolds (New Martinsville), and at Keyser, Keyser.

In eight of the 18 sections home town teams were successful in their championship efforts. In the others, local hopes went down in defeat somewhere along the line. In none of the sections where redrawing was needed to complete brackets did the redrawn teams reach the final games.

Only one final game showed an extra period. It was that in which Ceredo-Kenova defeated Huntington by picking up three points in the post-game period and making the score 21-19.

MRS. HANLEY ACCEPTS

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 10.—(AP.)—Mrs. Stewart Hanley, of Detroit, several times Detroit district golf champion and Michigan state titleholder, has announced she has accepted the invitation of Miss Glenna Collett, National champion, to go abroad with a team of American women golfers for a series of International matches with English players.

REGULARS SHUT OUT YANS, 4-0; PIE STARS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, March 10.—On top of two delightful ball games, Manager Jewel Ens and his Pirates today breathed optimism and in general showed a frolicsome spirit. The Pirate skipper thus stated there would be no more scraps until Wednesday, but in the meantime he intends to put his boys through four strenuous workouts.

Pie Traynor

The two games in the verdant ball orchard found the Regulars and Yanigans at a deadlock. The first team yesterday delivered a neat spanking to the kids for their disrespectfulness of the previous afternoon. Larry French, Lil Stoner and Heine Meine held the Hooligans to two widely-scattered hits and there was no scoring on the part of the Yans. The final count was 4 to 0.

Princeton Books Columbia After 27-Year Lapse

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—After a 27-year lapse, Princeton and Columbia will resume football relations in 1932.

Announcement of a home-and-home series for 1932 and 1933 between the two universities has been made by Reynolds Benson, graduate manager of athletics at Columbia. Princeton will play at Baker Field here October 8, 1932, and will act as host to Columbia at Palmer Stadium, October 14, 1933.

Princeton and Columbia first met in football on November 14, 1874, Princeton winning, 6 to 0. Games were played in 1875-76-77-78-78-81-82-89-90-99 and 1900-02-05. Of the 13 games played Princeton won 12.

BARNARD SEES GREAT YEAR

TAMPA, Fla., March 10.—(AP.)—E. S. Barnard, president of the American League, after a visit to several Florida training camps, finds no fault with the baseball prospect and that of his league in particular.

"I believe we will have an exciting race in the American League," he said. "Certainly two clubs, and doubtless others, have been improved over last year and there should be some great competition. I am convinced that the Detroit and Chicago clubs will be stronger.

"If these two clubs have been strengthened as I believe they have, the indications point to some worthwhile competition.

"The number of young players of ability coming up in the last two years has been impressive. We are returning to normal conditions in the game. The quality of play will be steadily improved as a result of the arrival of these younger players who themselves will become better qualified as they gain experience.

"During the post-war depression—and I am speaking now of the playing end of the game—the crop of young players

RUTH SIGNS CONTRACT

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 10.—(AP.)—Babe Ruth today signed his contract and the New York Yankees took a two-year lease on his services at $80,000 annually.

The Bambino signed on the dotted line for a raise of $10,000 over his salary for the past three years and will continue as the highest paid performer in the national pastime.

The formal signing took place this morning in Col. Jacob Ruppert's suite before a battery of cameras and the "war" correspondents following the Yankee spring training tour. Ruth announced Saturday that he would accept Ruppert's terms after stating the previous day that he would hold out for $85,000 a year.

BUCS TO MEET MACKS HERE

Sam Watters, secretary of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today announced the booking of an exhibition game with the World Champion Philadelphia Athletics at Forbes Field, Monday, June 2. The contest will enable both clubs to break up long jumps, inasmuch as the Pirates will stop off here from Chicago prior to opening an eastern trip in Brooklyn, while the Athletics will stop off here on their way from Washington to St. Louis to open a western tour.

The visit of the Athletics is not their first in Pittsburgh, the Mackmen having played the Pirates at Forbes Field several years ago. The contract for the game, according to the Pirate officials, calls for the White Elephants to use their regular lineup.

INDIANAPOLIS WINS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 10.—(AP.)—The Big Four A. A. of Indianapolis won the New York Central Lines annual basketball tournament Saturday night by defeating the Michigan Central team of Detroit in the final game, 31 to 29. In the final of the girls' tournament, the New York Central Lines West of Cleveland defeated the Big Four, also of Cleveland, 12 to 9.

ENS POPULAR WITH BUCS

By Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, March 10.—"Yes, boy— we got a couple of more good days after those two games we'll be pretty close to form," exclaimed Jewel Ens exultingly as he came in through the sunshine yesterday after the second clash of the two squads.

Right here might be a pretty fair place to say something about Ens—what he has accomplished, how he is regarded by the 40-odd athletes in the Pirate camp, et cetera.

The opening paragraph is supposed to carry the punch, according to some forms of journalism, but the English have a way of letting the story tell itself, and if you are interested in one of the most promising of big-league pilots you will read some of this.

ENS PRAISED

"I have not been in baseball many years, but I have tried to be awake and I think Jewel is the greatest manager, and one of the finest fellows I ever met in the sport," said a comparative recruit yesterday as several Pirates were pinning roses on the new boss.

The youngster reflected the feelings of the entire squad toward the manager. Ens, by the way, seems to be patterned after Joe McCarthy, the boss of the Cubs. Both mix with their men always but woe be to him who tries to slip something over that has a sting.

Ens' keen wit stands in his stead in his present position. As a lieutenant to several Pirate pilots Jewel had the same humor, but he used diplomacy in his speech. In other words he played an obscure role; as quickly as he was handed his portfolio, he began to operate like "nobody's business." His speech on habits and training delivered to his players here was sound. He is not going to demand perfection in 25 ball players any more than a captain would hold out for 100 per cent character in a company of soldiers. But Jewel intends to be a disciplinarian.

ROOKIE DROPPED

Ens seems to have scored a bullseye in his remarks on the drinking question. He says he notes with considerable interest that the government has not been able to stop drinking, and he admits he is not stronger than

PITT, TITANS LEAD DISTRICT FLOOR RACE

W. VA.'S WIN HURTS HOPES OF PANTHERS

By JESS CARVER

The college basketball situation in the dearly beloved tri-state district, acute enough last week, is the dickens of a sight cuter today. West Virginia saw to that Saturday night by knocking off the proud Pitt Panthers and putting 'em in a position in which they can hardly claim the technical, or mathematical championship of the district without either of shame a slight blush or the presumption thereof.

Charley Hyatt

The trouble with Pitt's annual claim to the title is that the Panthers do not play enough of the local teams. They go through a more rugged and far more representative schedule than any of the others, and while they wind up usually with a good claim to national laurels, they fail to stand any too strong hereabouts, unless, of course, they are unbeaten.

TITAN RECORD GOOD

Westminster with a record of 14 triumphs out of 16 games played, including wins over every team in the section with the exception of Pitt, has a percentage of .875. Pitt, if it takes Wash-Jeff and St. Vincent's this week, will have a mark of eight won and one lost, which figures out to be .888. Now what are you going to do about that?

Where Westminster took 'em all on, confining its schedule to this locality, Pitt met only five sectional rivals, West Virginia, Wash-Jeff, St. Vincent's, Carnegie Tech and Grove City.

Well, if you think this correspondent is going to argue over the matter, how you're mistaken! As far as I'm concerned, I nominate Westminster, because the Titans played a stronger district schedule.

BRAVO, W. VA.!

As long as someone had to take Pitt, there is no one more deserving of the honor than Coach Francis Stadsvold, of the Mountaineers, or the West Virginia team itself. West Virginia gave Pitt a ball game here in the Stadium in the first meeting between the rivals, and Saturday must have played as a team inspired.

The defense Coach Stadsvold set for the Panthers here was a formidable one. It gave Pitt trouble during the first half, and the offense was just as tough, matching the Panthers point for point during the first half.

The disappointment of the Panthers must be keen, but after all, there isn't a whole lot in this life besides disappointments. We get to enjoy them after a time; you get used to it all and go back to playing pinochle.

Tonight, the hard working Panthers play an extra-schedule game, meeting St. Vincent's in the Stadium after the W. P. I. A. L. elimination contest between Aliquippa and New Kensington.

The Tipoff

The time is at hand for the selecting of all-star basketball teams. The time also is at hand for irate subscribers to rip their favorite sport authority apart via the anonymous letter route.

Topping the list of eligible young men for this season's ranking are Hyatt, Sabatine and Lee Cohen, of Pitt; Glenn, Burling and Cubbon, of West Virginia; O'Donovan and Rice, of Westminster; Montgomery and Salmons, of Geneva; Benedict, Lubic and Stephens, of Duquesne; Ryan, Grove City; Bair, Allegheny; Wardle, Thiel; Neuss, Carnegie; White, Waynesburg; Lewis, Wash-Jeff, and Finding and Telfair, Bethany.

This fellow Corcoran, crack forward of the St. Stanislaus High team, which competed in the second annual state Catholic High tourney at Duquesne last week, was the outstanding player of the tourney, and so covet a scholastic honor as has shown locally for some time.

And the college that gets Irwin, star of the champion Altoona Tys, gets an ace. Irwin led his team to a fine triumph over the Duke Preps in the tournament final. He is not quite as fetched a player as Corcoran, but the difference is almost negligible.

Abe Wardle, Thiel guard, was having an

Sport Vignettes

It is apparent, now that it is all settled, that the Babe Ruth-Yankees controversy was not very serious at any stage .... It has been smoothed over for a matter of a mere $80,000 per season for two seasons .... Tut, tut! Only a drop in the bucket .... Back in 1915, when he hit four home runs, the Babe's pay check was $2,500 per, and he got it whether he earned it or not .... In 1916, he made three homers and drew down $3,000, and a year later he hit two homers and received $3,500 .... He was a pitcher then .... He made 11 homers in 1918, when his pay was $6,500 and he first began to step out as a clouter in 1919, when he hit 29 homers and dragged down $10,000 .... This showing netted him a $20,000 pay-check in 1920, and he responded with 54 homers and was well on his way to immortal baseball fame .... The next two seasons saw him receive $35,000 per year and the next three $52,000 .... For the past three seasons he has been getting $70,000, so that his new contract, which he will sign today, calls for a $10,000 boost for two years .... His biggest year as a home run hitter was 1927, when he lined out 60 round-trippers to break his own record of 59, set in 1921 .... Last year, he hit 46 homers, after getting 54 the year before .... His leanest season in recent years was in 1925, when he slumped and turned in only 25 homers .... On March 28, in Madison Square Garden, New York, Al Singer, leading contender for the lightweight title, will meet Ignacio Fernandez, the Filipino, who last May halted his march toward the top by knocking him out in three rounds for a big upset of the dope .... Singer is slated to meet Sammy Mandell for the world title in an open-air bout in New York in July .... Mickey Duris and Johnny Chiodo, who clash in a "natural" bout in Johnstown, Tuesday night of next week, formerly were stablemates under the management of Bernard Conway in the Flood City, but they are hot rivals now .... This will be Chiodo's first bout since last summer, when he underwent an operation for appendicitis .... A pound of flesh often raises considerable havoc in the boxing game .... For instance, Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, tried to make a match between Billy Jones, local Negro star, and Chuck Burns, of Akron, for his arena next Thursday night, but Burns insisted on the weight being 178 pounds, give or take a pound, which really meant 179 .... Jones, who at first had demanded 173 pounds, agreed to 178 flat, but wouldn't concede another pound .... Burns later capitulated at 178, but Jones meanwhile had accepted a bout elsewhere and no longer was available .... McGirr hopes to get them together for a later date.—HARRY KECK.

LOCAL AMATEUR BOXERS SEEK TITLES

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A team of eight local amateur boxers will vie for honors in the National A. A. U. junior championship tournament at Cincinnati tonight and tomorrow night and six others will represent this city in other classes of the same competition at Grand Rapids, Mich., Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Between Rounds

Young Terry, of Trenton, N. J., and Johnny Cassisi, of Scranton, Pa., will box at the Scranton armory, March 21.

Marty Mazzeo, of Cleveland, cousin of Peter and Vito Mazzeo, former Olympic stars, has been signed as Johnny Dundee's opponent in the second bout at Duquesne Garden Wednesday night, completing the card. Harry Williams and George Papika, heavies, meet in the main bout and Andy Andruzzi boxes Johnny Smarkey in the other 10-rounder of the double wind-up card. Peaches Gallagher and Mike Hogan will open the show, and the second bout are repeat numbers.

Bunny Buttlach, manager of Buck McTiernan, George Papika, Bobby Burns and Peaches Gallagher, has been reinstated by the boxing commission. He was banned some three months ago for bringing into the ring at the Motor Temple to help carry McTiernan to his corner after the latter was knocked out by Mikey Bolman.

Allen Beatty has been slated as the opponent of Mickey Solomon in the windup at McKeesport Thursday night. Dominick Frolo meets Billy Holt, of Canton, O., in the semi-final.

Archie Bell, New York veteran, has been signed as Jackie Rodgers' opponent in the main bout of the ringering show at Motor Square Garden two weeks from tonight.

LOCALS FAIL IN A. B. C.

CLEVELAND, March 10.—Two Western Pennsylvania teams, rolling in the annual tournament of the American Bowling Congress here last night, failed to qualify in the prize money, but they were right on the border line. The Muck Bros. No. 2, of Braddock, shot 2,729, and the Koppel Companies, of Beaver Falls, hit 2,712. The latter team made a brilliant comeback after starting with 810, by hitting 928 and 874.

The bid of Ellwood City pinsters for money in the team event went awry when the boys opened with a lowly 796. Cabl was the only man able to muster a sizeable count. The scores:

DOUBLES LEADERS CHANGE

Detroit and Indianapolis pinsters carried off the lion's share of honors yesterday. Freddie Gardella and Walter Hosbach of Detroit annexed first place in the doubles event through a score of 1,218, while second place was garnered by the veteran Jess Pritchett and Fred Schleimer, of Indianapolis, they totaling 1,210. Pritchett tied for thirteenth place in the singles with a 623, and led in the all-events with a nine-game total of 1,834.

The doubles leaders were changed all the way down the line, but there was none who could do better than edge into fifth spot among the singles leaders. The 681, set by Henry Mueck, of Toledo, the previous day stands.

Yesterday's best individual effort was a 643 by Al Larson, of Chicago. His games were 220, 204 and 219. Third place in the two-man event was gained by Wilcox and Welty, of Lorain, O., through a 1,190.

with sufficient ability to command the attention of major league scouts was reduced to a minimum. If it is not yet a bumper crop, nevertheless it is growing steadily, and the results are already apparent.

"From the standpoint of prospective attendance, my observations have been highly satisfactory. Interest in baseball everywhere seems to be enthusiastic, and I expect a splendid season in every respect."

TIGERS SWAMP BRAVES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 10.—(AP.)—A disconsolate tribe of Braves was back in their wigwam today thinking over the six home runs the Detroit Tigers stole off Socks Seibold and Johnny Cooney in their 14 to 5 victory yesterday at Tampa. A short fence in a Tom Thumb ball park enabled ordinary flies to clear the barrier and jitters to make four bases. Three were hit off both Cooney and Seibold.

RED SOX WIN

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 10.—(AP.)—The Red Sox got off on their right foot in spring exhibition games with hitting and scoring aplenty and effective pitching against the United States Naval Air Base team here. Manager Heinie Wagner had every infielder and outfielder at his disposal to work on the game yesterday. Eighteen hits were good for 16 runs and the opposition got only seven hits off Ruffing.

NATS SET FOR GRIND

BILOXI, Miss., March 10.—(AP.)—Real baseball, with nothing barred, is the assignment of the Washington Nationals for the rest of the season. The preliminaries are all over, Manager Walter Johnson indicated as the week opened, except for the newcomers. The pitchers were allowed to release some of their speed, when Bluett fans turned out in force to see the Nationals go through their first Sunday drill, which Johnson agreed was the most impressive performance yet made.

WHITE SOX SHOW UP

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 10.—(AP.)—The surprising Chicago White Sox, up on the New York Giants in their exhibition series, today went back to training business with renewed vigor. The pitchers working for the Sox were not quite quite so good yesterday, but the hitting, especially by Irving Jeffries, Jim Moore and Carl Reynolds, was more than satisfying to Manager Donie Bush.

CUBS WIN SLUGFEST

AVALON, Catalina Island, Cal., March 10.—(AP.)—The young aspirants for pilfering honors with the National League Champion Chicago Cubs today were down for more and better work, following what occurred yesterday. The Cubs defeated the Los Angeles Pacific Coast Leaguers yesterday, 17 to 12, but the Angels larruped Moore, Lon Warneke, Malcolm Moss and Leon Nelson for 18 hits.

FONSECA IMPROVES

NEW ORLEANS, March 10.—(AP.)—The last of Manager Roger Peckinpaugh's immediate worries was over today with information that Lew Fonseca, the Cleveland Indians' star first baseman, is rapidly regaining his health, impaired by an attack of scarlet fever. General Manager Billy Evans wired from a health resort at Palm Springs, Cal., that Fonseca "at worst should be ready two weeks after season opens" and that "personally, I am highly pleased with his condition."

RED VETS ON MOUND

ORLANDO, Fla., March 10.—(AP.)—Veteran hurlers of the Cincinnati Reds today had their first opportunity to work on the mound as the Redlegs went into their second week of training. And with their arrival the batters had a chance to display over some speed and curves, neither of which had been in evidence thus far. Manager Dan Howley said it was too early to say what his starting lineup would be, but indicated he was well pleased with the general progress of the past week.

Bill Tilden Beats Brugnon in Final

MENTONE, France, March 10.—(AP.)—In one of the poorest final matches ever seen on the Rivera, Big Bill Tilden, of Philadelphia, yesterday won the singles title of the Mentone Tennis tournament from Jacques Brugnon, veteran French internationalist, in five sets. The scores were 10-8, 7-5, 3-6, 4-6, 6-1.

In the final of the doubles, Tilden and Wilbur F. Coen defeated Tamio Abe and Carl Aeschliman, 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

Grid Schedules Scored as Too Long

URBANA, Ill., March 10.—(INS.)—Dr. David Kinley, retiring president of the University of Illinois, assails the eight-game football season as being too strenuous in his annual report made public here today.

Dr. Kinley asserts that the eight games prove too much of a strain on varsity squad members. He suggests a remedy in dropping off the last week of the season.

...the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency... join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

The law says "No" to the spitter! But we all know there still exist hundreds of dirty places where the cigar-maker rolls the leaves with filthy fingers ... and seals the ends with spit! In fact, more than half of all cigars made in this country are still made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof... immaculate... foil-wrapped... Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said: "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

LOSERS SHOW GREAT FORM IN DEFEAT

By TOM BIRKS.

The Washington County all-star soccer club arrived at Thoms Run yesterday afternoon with a sweet looking club, they played beautiful soccer against the Chartiers Valley all-stars, but the latter aggregation had the punch and kicked in with a 6-to-2 victory.

It has been proved many times that the go-ahead brand of soccer displayed by teams around the Millers Run district can usually bustle and defeat any scientific soccer it meets, and this was demonstrated to a queen's taste yesterday. The Washington County team, especially the forwards, was great, but woefully weak around goal.

The interval found the Chartiers selection on the right end of a 2-goals-to-1 score, but Washington easily was the best club. One end of the field was very muddy, but this had little to do with t[illegible] ot, ome.

Washington's defense went with a bang in the second half, and then Mitchell, Chappell, Urbanic and Innocenti found the range of Johnson's charge, and the visiting custodian was kept busy picking the ball out of the net.

The Chartiers boys displayed a mean punch in this second period, and the Luxbacher-Mattong combination had a grueling time keeping down the score. Bobby Charles played outside left for Washington and he will be remembered by old timers as starring on the Cokeburg team as partner to Johnny Jaap. Charles is a veteran now, but displays plenty of the cunning that marked his ball running of eight years ago. The lineup:

Chartiers A-8—6.		Wash. Co.—2.
Fritch	G.	Johnson
Cycle	R.B.	Luxbacher
Cioh	L.B.	Mattong
Breithau	R.H.	Pinoli
Mangus	C.H.	Guagni
Preuh	L.H.	Higgins
Mitchell	O.R.	Arisa
Innocenti	I.L.	McCartney
Chappell	C.	Cox
Urbahic	I.R.	Zampini
Cherokee	O.L.	Charles

Goals—Chappell 2, Innocenti, Mitchell 2, Urbanic, Cox, Charles. Referee—O'Connor.

GALLATIN VICTOR

Gallatin's eleven smothered Harwick under a 10-1 score in the only local soccer tilt played yesterday. The lineup:

Gallatin—10.		Harwick—1.
Banik	G.	Pavlick
Murphy	R.B.	Brown
Perovish	L.B.	Namestka
Paton	R.H.	White
Sickles	C.H.	Sienski
Paterlini	L.H.	Gudish
Ross	O.R.	Bond
Grill	I.R.	Maine
F. Berdik	C.	Bordell
Rengel	I.L.	Gardner
J. Rengel	O.L.	A. Bordell

Score at half time—3-0. Referee—Pohto. Time of halves—45 minutes. Goals—Rengel 2, Berdik 2, Grill 2, Sickles, Paton, Paterlini, A. Bordell, Ross.

the sport and the prospects of the team for the season to come. It is good for the general spirit of the college."

THE name of Lou Magnolia may be a big one in boxing circles in this country, where the New York referee has won a place on the list with George Siler, Eddie Graney, Harry Ertle, Tim Hurst, John Kelly, Jim Dougherty, Jack Welch, Ed Smith and other famous ring officials of the past, but until the recent Jack Sharkey-Phil Scott affair in Miami it didn't mean a thing in England. Over there they hadn't even heard of him. At least, Jimmy Wilde hadn't, and inasmuch as Wilde held the world flyweight championship until Pancho Villa toppled him in seven rounds in 1923, and is now writing boxing for the "News of the World" in London, he is supposed to be reasonably well posted on the fight game and its celebrities. There has just come to hand a copy of an issue published shortly before the Miami fiasco, in which Wilde wrote as follows: "A friend in Florida writes to tell me that all sorts of advertising stunts are being broadcast to attract a huge crowd. Scott has become a favorite with the holiday makers. I am not surprised, because our champion is really a reserved type. He believes in letting his manager do the talking, while he realizes that his job is to fight. The referee for the contest is one Lou Magnolia. His name and reputation as third man in the ring are quite unknown to me."

FAVORITES COP AT MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., March 10.—(AP.)—Favorites in the first day of play in the $5,000 international four-ball match classic stroked their way to easy victory over Miami Country Club course yesterday as 16 two-men teams won their 36-hole matches.

Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, winners of the 1928 event, and runners-up for 1929, had an easy time as they chalked up a 7-and-6 win over Jack Thompson, Youngstown, O., and Johnny Connell, Chicago.

Horton Smith and Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., held their seeded position in the lower bracket with a 3-and-2 victory over Wilfred Reid, Detroit, and Charley Murray, from Toronto, Ontario.

Denny Shute, Columbus, O., and Tony Manero, Elmsford, N. Y., won an overwhelming 7-and-5 defeat over Mike Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., and Herman Barron, Portchester.

Other victors in the upper bracket were:

Frank Walsh, Chicago, and Al Watrous, Detroit, scored 6 and 5 victory over Ray McAuliffe, Bridgeburg, Ont., and Ed Stokes, Cleveland.

Fred Miley, Fort Pierce Fla., and Bob Threlkeld, Portland, Ind., lost 4 and 3 to Cyril Walker, Saddle River, N. J., and Clarence Ginther, Nora Baton, Fla.

Jack Collins, Dayton, and Eddie Williams, Cleveland, won 6 and 5 from Steve Zappo, Springfield, Mass., and Al Ciuci, Pinebluff, N. C.

Additional lower bracket results were: Leonard Schmutz, Lima, O., and Clarence Hackney, Atlantic City, won 5 and 3, from Jim Hines, Winstead, N. Y., and Norman Sommers, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Harry Hampton, Chicago, and Neil McIntire, Indianapolis, won 3 and 2, from Phil Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., and Art Straub, Maplewood, N. J.

George Bowden, Cincinnati, and Jimmy Watson, Hollywood, lost 5 and 3, to Johnny Golden, Paterson, N. J., and Billy Burke, Greenwich, Conn.

Larry Montes, Manila, P. I., and Lou Waldron, Boston, were defeated 4 and 3, by Harry Cooper, Los Angeles and Whitey Cox, Brooklyn.

Al Espinosa, Chicago, and Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. J., won 4 and 3, from Tom Barkets, Akron, O., and Eddie Gayer, Chicago.

Bezdek to Coach Lions in Baseball

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 10.—Hugo Bezdek, director of physical education, today issued a call for candidates to report for the last Penn State athletic team that he will direct as active coach. A notice posted on the gymnasium bulletin board this morning ordered all prospective baseball candidates to report in uniform this afternoon. Pitchers and catchers have been working out indoors for several weeks, but the full squad has not reported as yet.

Coaching of the Lion ball team this season will round out 25 years of athletic coaching for Bezdek, who is to devote his full time to the newly created School of Physical Education and Athletics after July 1. It will be the ninth Penn State ball team that he has coached.

Illini May Win Big Ten Meet On Foul

MINNEAPOLIS, March 10.—(AP.)—Possibility that Illinois may be declared the winner of the Western Conference indoor track meet instead of Wisconsin, was seen in reports that a statement that a foul had been committed in one event had been mailed to Referee Rawson at Des Moines.

The two-day meet was concluded here Saturday night with Wisconsin declared the winner with 21 points. Illinois was second with 18.

Henke, of Wisconsin, is reported to have committed a foul in the relay race. According to Sherman W. Finger, track coach at Minnesota, the inspector on the course at the time reported an infraction of the rules to the chief inspector, who in turn notified the referee. The latter is reported to have ruled that there was no cause for disqualification.

VANITIES WIN OHIO TITLE

CLEVELAND, March 10.—Pittsburgh Goldenson Vanities won the girls' intercity tournament by winning two games in the final rounds at the Central Armory here last night. The Vanities will be awarded the Blepp-Coombs trophy. They defeated the Rudolph-Schwartz lassies, 17 to 10, and then walloped the Erie General Electrics, 32 to 26.

The second game was by far the best girls' game played in Cleveland this season. The capacity crowd of nearly 5,000 was kept in continual uproar. Not until the final minutes when Louise Cantwell broke loose for four consecutive field goals was the issue decided. This Cantwell girl also starred in the first game. The lineups:

Vanities—32.		Erie—26.
L. Cantwell	F.	Sullivan
Good	F.	Martin
Meier	C.	Smith
Dantella	G.	Daniels
E. Cantwell	G.	Wilkie

Byrd Beats Ruth For Yankee Golf Title

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 10.—(AP.)—Sam Byrd, Yankee outfielder, does not receive a salary of $80,000 nor any amount approaching that impressive figure, but he can beat Babe Ruth playing golf. Byrd and Ruth met yesterday in a 36-hole match to decide the golf championship of the baseball club, and Byrd won, 4 and 3.

Ruth, however, held the brilliant Byrd even on the first 18 holes. Byrd rallied in the afternoon and produced a sensational medal score of [illegible]

BUCS RESUME HARD WORK

Yanigans' shortage of blows should go to the sharpshooters, however. The base hit output was curtailed, owing to the venturesome antics and apparently fine condition of that perennial rookie of the sport—Pie Traynor.

Pie knocked off something like three feature numbers, his two dizzy efforts in the ninth knocking the natives right out of their seats in the little wooden stands. The Somerville greyhound played in such a manner as to indicate that Stuart Clarke was threatening his hold on the hot-corner job. His circus play on Flagstead's hot liner in the final inning was the best thrill of the pleasant afternoon. Pie was moving toward short when Flaggie combed one the other way. The beloved captain was all bent up like a corkscrew as he threw in his reverse to get in front of the rocket.

Gus Suhr won the plaudits of his Coast friends in the stands when he smacked the ball to the centerfield fence for a homer. The youthful Roy Frazier, who has been emulating Speaker in the center plot, came within an ace of spearing the drive. Joe Devine asserted that his phenom could go as far as Lloyd Waner for a batted ball and the other Buccos are beginning to believe that Joe was not romancing after seeing Roy in two games.

Jess Petty, Steve Swetonic and Glenn Spencer were on the mound for the Yanigans. The well-conditioned Silver Fox allowed only one hit in his tenure. The regulars scored three of their tallies off Swetonic, but the support accorded North Side Steve was hardly what is expected in the big show. Spencer finished in good order, he being scored on once.

RECORD CROWD EXPECTED AT PRO BATTLE

By JULIUS LEVIN

A record crowd for profesional basketball is expected to turn out next Thursday night at the Duquesne University gym for the American League contest between the Cleveland Rosenblums, champions of the world, and the Paterson Crescents of New Jersey.

The American League battle, brought to Pittsburgh through the efforts of John J. Freund, Jr., well-known local promoter, is the first of its kind presented in this city and has stirred up considerable interest among the basketball enthusiasts of the tri-state district.

The game takes on more color due to the fact that the Rosies are eager to clinch both halves of the American League season and must win Thursday's contest to improve their chances. The Rosies captured the first half title, but face a stiff battle to repeat in the second round. That Paterson shapes up as a real opponent for the Clevelanders was demonstrated Saturday night when the Crescents defeated the Rosies by a 29-16 score.

Freund reports a brisk demand for tickets from all sections of the tri-state district, many coaches of high school and college teams having made reservations for the game. Tickets have been placed on sale in Homestead, McKeesport, Monessen and other prominent basketball centers. Fans desiring to make reservations are asked to call Freund at Lafayette 4297.

Three high-class preliminary games will precede the pro league contest. The Irene Kaufmann Settlement House passers, champions of the Central League, meet the Monessen Knights of Pythias in one, two Trinity Cathedral midget quintets, the Tritans and Trimmers, clash in another, and St. Veronica's High, of Ambridge, plays the local Central Catholic High freshmen in a third.

Mexico Authorizes Air Line to Resume

MEXICO CITY, March 10.—(AP.)—The ministry of communications has instructed the governor of the northern district of Lower California to permit the T. A. T. Maddux airlines to resume their Ti Juana and Agua Caliente passenger service, which had recently been ordered suspended as unauthorized.

The ministry's announcement said that the representative of the company here had deposited a guarantee for the concession, and that the company now was authorized to operate this line.

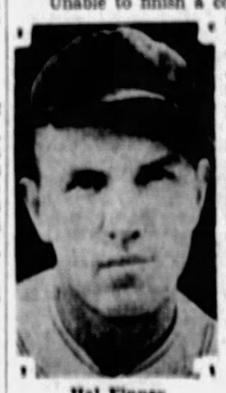
Facts and Fancies About Our New Bucs

NO. 8—HAL FINNEY, CATCHER

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 10.—If you went from one end of the Pirate roster to the other you would not find a more serious-minded man or boy than Hal Finney, the Alabama catcher, who came to the big leagues direct from a little Class D circuit—the Georgia-Alabama League.

Unable to finish a college course owing to a lack of funds, Hal struck out to help himself and his people. In his high school days he discovered he was good enough to sparkle on the ball team of the school and later he was able to contribute to the support of a big household by playing ball in a semi-pro league.

If you were ever kicked by a mule and knocked clean across your workroom you might have an idea of the knocks that young Finney took in his 'teens, and these same blows of fate have made him an appreciative lad who thinks baseball is just about the greatest thing in the world.



Hal Finney

"When I reported to the Pirates last fall in Cincinnati, I was in a dream," said this quaint youth. "I had been reading about the Waner boys, Pie Traynor and a dozen others and here I was in the same dining room and on the same Pullman cars with them. I swear I didn't come to for a couple of days. But it is all clearing up now and I like it all the better."

Part of Hal's task around his dad's cotton plantation was to shoe the mules and it was while engaged in this perilous work that he was knocked for a goal. He still bears a scar on his face which reminds him of the force of a kick of a certain donkey that had just been fitted up with a fresh pair of shoes.

Finney is poor, but full of pride. He uses no liquor nor tobacco, his wholesomeness [illegible] ng him stand out in the big squad.

"All I want [illegible] in this world in the next 10 or 15 years is to play ball and mak[illegible] enough money to insure my mother and father a happy home and an education for the younger ones at home," says Hal.

Finney is a sturdy youth of 170 pounds. He likes to catch every day and on account of his good habits and desire he should be heard from. He batted almost .340 last season.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Progress Slow But Betterment Is Expected

Wall Street Banking Upon Better Second and Third Quarters

By B. C. FORBES

MARCH promises to end somewhat better than it began although thus far disappointingly little progress has been made businesswise.

The stock market has moved up a little since the month began. So have funds.

THE most disconcerting development of the week was the extent and magnitude of the Communists demonstrations. Their effect may prove beneficial by arousing American industry to the urgent necessity for giving more thoughtful attention to the whole problem of unemployment brought about by our swiftly-moving economic revolution. As repeatedly emphasized in this column, unemployment was spreading long before the stock panic. Yet neither industry nor the government could be induced to regard it as the gravest of all economic problems confronting the nation. Admittedly low prices for farm products are disturbing, but they are less fundamental than the evils enwrapped in the failure of our modernized economic system to afford an adequate volume of employment.

Perhaps Thursday's almost-nation-wide protests may convince our foremost men of affairs that their achievements in the direction of gigantic mergers and the rapid adoption of labor-saving methods have begotten human problems which cannot be much longer ignored without inviting unpleasant consequences. The Reds need occasion no great worry, but unemployment most assuredly should.

MONETARY developments overshadowed industrial or commercial developments last week. They were all in the right direction.

The most significant was the reduction in the Bank of England rate from 4½ to 4 per cent. This, combined with still further easiness in domestic money rates, foreshadows the lowering of the New York official 4 per cent rate, probably this week.

Wall Street call loans ended at 3½ per cent and supplies were unofficially available at 3 per cent—contrasted with 9 per cent a year ago. Time money is now available at 4¼ to 4½ per cent. Commercial paper is at 4½ to 4¾ per cent. Bankers' acceptances have been reduced to 3⅜ per cent for short terms and to 3½ per cent for longer maturities.

Although brokers' loans increased $94,000,000, the reserve carried by the 12 reserve banks stans (at 79.8 per cent) no less than 10 per cent above the ratio of a year ago. Washington authorities are now eager to make money readily available throughout the country at low rates in order to make it easy to borrow for construction and other business purposes.

One visible effect of cheaper money last week was the rise in government bond quotations to new levels for the year. Although the heaviest income tax payments of the year fall due next Saturday, it is unlikely that the money market will be appreciably disturbed.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S week-end optimistic statements concerning dwindling unemployment were heartily welcome, the more so because the week's budget of business news was not particularly encouraging.

Railway car loadings continue to show marked contraction compared with a year ago. So do bank clearings, even after making allowance for the sharp contraction in stock speculation. Retail trade reports were only so-so. The steel industry about held its own in activity, but the price tone was weakish. Nothing of importance came from the motor industry. Some little progress was reported in bringing oil production into line with consumption.

THE stock market's action suggests that it expects the second and third quarters of the year to be better than the first quarter.

It is not regrettable, rather is it healthy, that the movement in stocks is not one-sided. Bears are vigorously fighting the upward movement. They bring about brief reactions, but the main movement continues forward. Very gradually the public is re-entering the market in a timid way. This buying is likely to broaden somewhat if the market maintains a normal course. Public utilities are especially well-regarded for the longer future.

Large-scale merger developments are likely to have an influence shortly on a goodly number of stocks. The disposition in high financial circles is to hasten the consummation of planned consolidations before public sentiment and political hostility lead to fresh legislative curbs. That is the direction in which the wind is beginning to blow.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was slow today at the wholesale produce markets in Pittsburgh. There were small changes in quotations.

The poultry markets noted fair demand for supply, holding with few changes occurring in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets reported steady demand and supplies adequate. There was a slight drop in the quotations while butter prices showed a steady tone.

Car lot supplies were nominal with 36 cars on track. Arrivals included 21 cars of apples, 12 cabbage, 1 carrots, 4 celery, 3 flowers, 2 cheese, 1 cucumber, 2 eggs, 1 lettuce, 12 grapefruit, 1 kale, 1 onions, 14 lettuce, 13 onions, 23 oranges, 2 peats, 11 potatoes, 1 radish, 8 spinach, 1 straw, 2 turnips, 10 sweet potatoes and 12 tomatoes.

Pilot Radio Head Says Outlook Good

NEW YORK, March 10.—The preliminary figures of the Pilot Radio and Tube Corporation indicate about $2 net per share on the 200,000 shares of Class A stock outstanding on May 31, 1929, according to Isidor Goldberg, president.

Additional stock was issued during the latter half of the year to acquire the Detroit Radio Products Corporation and the Twin Coupler Company, the benefits of which will be made more evident during the ensuing year, said Mr. Goldberg.

Sales of the company for the first two months of this year show a considerable increase and give every indication of a banner year, he added.

Donora Firm Gets Big Mill Contract

DONORA, Pa., March 10.—Officials of the American Steel and Wire Company announced the awarding of contracts and for excavating and placing concrete for the foundation of two rod mill buildings, a billet storage building, scale pit, and sewer from the pit to the river. The work was awarded to the Donora Construction Company.

The company gave preference to a local firm, with a view of relieving the unemployment situation.

J. I. Case Seeking Moline Control

NEW YORK, March 10—Recent activity in Minneapolis Moline shares has been accompanied by rumors that control of the company was sought by J. I. Case. Interests sponsoring Moline say that such action seems improbable, and feel that recent buying of the latter stock has been based on its speculative appeal as a low-priced issue in the thriving agricultural machinery business.

Crandall, McKenzie Earned $2.38 in 1929

Crandall, McKenzie & Henderson, Inc., reports net income of $118,823 for the year ended December 31, 1929, after all charges, depreciation and federal taxes, equal to $2.38 a share on 50,000 shares. No comparison for 1928 is available, as no figures of the predecessor companies were reported.

Westinghouse Unit Gets Big Contract

An order for 41 elevators to be installed in the new 45-story Starrett Building in Cincinnati has been received by the Westinghouse Elevator Company, a subsidiary of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. The elevators will cost about $1,000,000.

Homestake Mining Earns $4.16 Share

NEW YORK, March 10—Homestake Mining Company reports year ended December 31, net income of $1,044,070 after depreciation and depletion charges, etc., equal to $4.16 a share on 251,160 capital shares against $1,473,547 or $5.85 a share in 1928 year.

VALLEY STEEL MILLS SLACKEN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 10.—While secondary steel companies in this district are advancing their production, the primary industry is on a declining basis. Schedules announced for the week show an average of 60 per cent for the district compared with 70 per cent last week and a 75 per cent average in February. The slack is due to slower buying by the automobile industry.

An indication of the decline is found in the reduced rate of steel making with 29 open hearth furnaces melting against 33 last week and 41 two weeks ago. Bessemer departments are maintained at 70 per cent.

Both Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Republic Steel average 70 per cent or less.

Independent tinplate capacity is active at close to a capacity basis for the coming week, while pipe mills are at 60 per cent.

NEW U. S. ISSUE SNAPPED UP

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(INS.)—Unemployment and business lassitude have not resulted in any shortage of cash in United States, judging from the ease with which the treasury was able to float its $450,000,000 issue of 3¼ per cent certificates.

Officials today were tabulating the results and found the issue was heavily oversubscribed.

By this issue the treasury on March 15 will be able to replace with 3¼ per cent securities a block of $404,209,500 in 5½ per cent certificates. In June a block of $549,707,500 in 4⅞ per cent certificates will be retired and will be replaced with those bearing a much lower interest rate, unless there is a radical change in market conditions.

These two issues represented the highest interest rate paid by the government since the reconstruction period.

Bank Clearings Reflect General Condition Of Business

WEEKLY reports on bank clearances have long been regarded as a most reliable barometer of general business conditions. The showing of these figures, presently as compared with the corresponding period last year, is for that reason more interesting than usual. Clearings as shown at principal cities of the country reveal rather clearly the trend of things. Decreases from a year ago are naturally quite pronounced at such cities as New York, Chicago and Los Angeles in consequence of the decided curtailment in speculative activities. At Pittsburgh, however, the high rate of recovery in the steel business is evidenced from the fact that clearances are only about 8 per cent under a year ago, while at Detroit the slack in motor industry is reflected in a drop of about 20 per cent in clearances, as against the 1929 pace at this time.

The speculative element is evidently taking more kindly to the general array of petroleum company shares. Perhaps this trend is influenced by the decidedly good showing of earnings made by the various leaders in the industry which have thus far reported for 1929. The shares of these companies have for the most part scored good recovery from the low levels of last year. In the meantime, however, the rank and file of the lower priced issues have been disposed to lag behind. Indications that the trend toward reduced refinery runs is becoming general undoubtedly helps to crystalize speculative sentiment in their favor. At any rate, cheap oil shares were popular mediums of speculation during Saturday's session, led by Mexican Seaboard, in which the initial transaction involved 22,000 shares at 26, up almost 4 points to a new peak for the year.

A FURTHER improvement of the already excellent service of the New Haven on the run from New York to Boston will be made during the month, when the new 4¾-hour train will be placed in operation. The most modern equipment available has been purchased for this train, which has been named the "Yankee Clipper." The passenger service of this carrier on the run between the two cities always has been a source of profitable revenue to the company. The building up of this has been reflected in improved earnings during recent years and in the resumption of dividends on the common stock.

While it is reported that when the Alleghany Corporation files its report with the New York Stock Exchange in connection with the listing of additional shares that control of Missouri-Pacific by the Van Sweringens will be revealed, Chairman Williams of the board of the road has declined to make any comment concerning the acquisition of holdings in his company by the Alleghany Corporation or the Van Sweringens. The latter have for a long time been known to own a substantial block of "Mop" stock, but it was generally believed that the purchase was made for investment rather than to obtain control of the road.

ONE of the features for some time has been Vanadium. The stock has moved ahead rather steadily. Interruptions because of profit taking have developed but as soon as the supply has become exhausted the stock has continued its upward movement. Buying has been based on the fact that a contract has been let for construction of a plant to handle titanium. For a long time there have been discussions of probable large profits from titanium, and these discussions have given the stock a speculative appeal recently.

Wall Street has heard that one of the important speculative traders has become prominent in the market for Worthington Pump, which would account for the increased activity and strength in the stock recently. It is said this operator is directing an operation for the account of a new group formed a few days ago. Aside from this fact there has been a demand for the stock from other interests who contend the company has prospects of getting large orders as result of expanding natural gas activities. Company makes various products for this industry.

Beverage Company Merger Is Dropped

NEW YORK, March 10.—Plans for merging the White Rock Mineral Springs Company with the Canada Dry Ginger Ale organization have been terminated, at least for the time being, it was reported in Wall street today. Directors of the White Rock Company, it was understood, have failed to reach an agreement on Canada Dry's offer of one share of Canada Dry stock for each 1½ shares of White Rock. It was said the negotiations may be resumed later.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—The convalescent bond market was able to hold its recent gains today as investment funds continued to seek employment in high grade coupon-bearing securities. Dealers, encouraged by the buoyancy of prices, were more optimistic than they had been for some time.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

BROAD BUYING LIFTS STOCKS TO '30 HIGHS

Movement Starts With Amusement Shares and Spreads to Broad List

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—The stock market moved into new high ground for the year today in a broad buying movement which started with the amusement shares and quickly spread to the steel, office appliance, building material, merchandising, food, tobacco, oil and motor issues. Although the gains were unevenly distributed, more than three score issues were elevated to new peak prices for the year on advances ranging from 1 to nearly 12 points.

Some irregularity developed during the morning when selling pressure was renewed against Simmons Company, which broke to a new low, and several of the public utility stocks, which declined 1 to nearly 3 points. Trading was dull on the decline, and offerings quickly dried up. Lowering of the call money rate from 4 to 3½ per cent, coupled with the announcement of an increase of 11,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation last month, stimulated the afternoon recovery.

STEELS ADVANCE

U. S. Steel common, after yielding fractionally to 180⅜, ran up to 183½. Youngstown Sheet and Tube, which is engaged in merger negotiations with Bethlehem Steel, ran up 8 points to a new high at 150, with buying stimulated by unconfirmed rumors of competitive buying as a result of the reluctance of the Eaton interests to abandon their plan to include that company in the new Republic Steel merger. Vanadium was marked up nearly 5 points to a new high.

Wall Street was inclined to doubt rumors of a huge merger of amusement companies, which accompanied the rise in the stocks, because of reported government opposition. Shubert Theaters, which was mentioned in a proposed hook-up with the Erlanger interests, ran up 6 points to a new top at 18⅜. Pathe A, Keith-Albee preferred, Consolidated Film preferred and Radio-Keith-Orpheum advanced 3 to 5½ points to new peak prices. Radio Corporation common, Warner Brothers Pictures and Paramount-Famous-Lasky also reached new high ground.

LONG LIST RISES

J. I. Case soared nearly 12 points to a new top at 294¾. Peoples Gas, Hershey Chocolate preferred, Eastman Kodak, Southern Railway, Mobile and Ohio, Allis Chalmers, Underwood Elliott Fisher and Worthington Pump reached new high ground on gains of 4 to 7 points. Celotex was run up 4¼ points to a new high at 60 on the announcement that a vice president of the General Motors Corporation had been elected to the board. The company recently has been negotiating with General Motors for a large contract for insulating material for Frigidaires.

Gimbel Bros., which is again the subject of a department store merger rumor, moved up more than 2 points to a new high at 17¾. Mexican Seaboard was heavily bought on reports of important developments in its California properties, crossing 28 to a new peak.

COPPER BUYING MODERATE

NEW YORK, Mar 10—Although a slight spurt in the foreign demand for copper occurred in the latter part of last week, buying generally has been only in moderate volume. Domestic consumers are continuing to confine purchases to immediate needs, on the belief that refined stocks will increase further in March. However, advices from Connecticut report some improvement in activity of brass mills and other fabricators there, and producers continue to hold steady at 18 cents for Electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut valley.

The tin market was weak with the selling schedule the lowest in years. Continued weakness at London and a tendency to ignore the lowering of the Bank of England rediscount rate, were main factors. Demand here was good on the decline.

Lead prices were reduced again as a result of the weakness in the English markets and prices here were the lowest since August 1922. Domestic demand was moderate.

The zinc market was dull and easier. February statistical position was unfavorable with increases reported in stocks.

CEMENT TARIFF AIDS INDUSTRY

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 10.—Establishment of a duty on cement by the Senate will benefit the midwest cement industry and will extend markets to the East, advises L. A. Beghley, president of the Bessemer Limestone and Cement Company.

The tariff voted by the Senate is 24 cents a barrel. Mr. Beghley states that much Belgian cement has been shipped into this country along the Atlantic seaboard at 30 to 50 cents a barrel below the lowest American price. Buffalo, N. Y.; Detroit, Mich., and Port Huron, Mich., will all benefit by the tariff.

MAGMA COPPER EARNINGS UP

NEW YORK, March 8.—The year of 1929 was the most profitable one in the history of the Magma Copper Company and stockholders have shared in the increased earnings by receiving the highest dividend returns in any annual period. Magma in its development work carried on in the past year discovered further high grade ore and added it to its reserves.

The annual report of Magma, which will be made public in a month, is expected to reveal net income after all charges, depreciation and estimated taxes, but before depletion, equivalent to between $7.50 and $8 a share on the 468,155 shares of no par value capital stock outstanding. In the year ended December 31, 1928, when the best previous annual earnings were enjoyed, net income aggregated $1,952,495, after all charges, depreciation, taxes, but before depletion, which was equal to $4.78 a share.

During the nine months to September 30, the corporation reported net income after all charges, depreciation, but before Federal taxes and depletion of $28,992,575, which was equivalent to $6.35 a share on the capital stock outstanding.

Freight Increase On Pipe Protested

SCOTTDALE, Pa., March 10.—Council has forwarded a petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission asking that the freight rate increase effective March 20 which will affect the local plant of the United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company be suspended pending a hearing. It is feared the increase may cause the plant to quit operations inasmuch as Southern manufacturers would be able to undersell the company in many markets.

The Mt. Pleasant Rotary Club has sent a similar petition.

Dealers Puzzled By Used Car Problem

LOS ANGELES, March 10.—Used-car problem is the greatest one in the automobile business today and auto manufacturers have only themselves to blame for it in the opinion of C. W. Nash, president of Nash Motor Company, now in Los Angeles.

"Too many of the manufacturers," Mr. Nash said, "force their cars on their dealers and thereby force sales. They will now have to give up pushing out so many new cars. The industry must realize that people can use their cars a little longer."

No radical innovations in the automobile are in sight, he said. Car manufacturers are now concentrating more on comfort and individual needs.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP.)—The curb market sagged moderately under rather active selling soon after the opening today, but turned abruptly upward as the liquidation dried up around midday, and several shares reached further peak levels for the year.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

DAILY TRUE STORY

Slow Poke Sam

EVEN as a kid they called Sammy Martin "Slow-poke Sam."

He wasn't so different from the other boys, but at an examination, for instance, he would be the last to complete his papers.

Sam was a good ballplayer. His chums would wait outside because they needed him, but a dozen times some one would say "Aw why don't Slow-Poke Sam get a hustle on him for once?"

However, take the examination papers. Sam's usually ranked to the top or close to it.

When he started in with the Tri-State Real Estate Corporation and developed an ability as a salesman it would take him longer to show a prospective customers three new houses in some of the company's many developments than it took his fellow salesmen to show a dozen places.

They called him "Slow-poke Sam" in the company.

When General Manager Barton spoke of this to Higgins, the astute president suggesting that only "live wires" were needed Higgins proved his ability as a reader of character and of a man's value by saying to Barton:

"They may call him 'Slow-poke' but I notice that he lands his man more times than the other boys, take Nixon, for example, he's a hustler, a high-pressure man, but Sam Martin brings in more names down on the dotted line."

Clever Salesman

Higgins mentioned it to Barton. Barton didn't like it at all. He declared that he would "show up" Sam Martin before he was through with him.

He started by giving Sam some of the toughest propositions.

Sam didn't make as many sales but those he did make were of property considered to be practically a loss, so that above his drawing account his commissions were big.

Now and then Sam would be driving some prospects out to this or that development. He would drive slowly along the ridge where the attractive views were. Other salesmen would scoot out at top speed, open up a new house, lead his prospective customers through the place and try to close before Sam got his people out. Sam took his time.

Higgins said to him once, when he had increased his drawing account, "You seem to get them, Martin."

"Well, sir, if I get time to size them up and if I find they seem to be in earnest instead of just looking around, I usually interest them. It takes a little time."

There was the Maxon Meadows thing.

The boys sure laughed at Sam when they learned he had bought that piece of property that was partly under water every spring.

On one of their largest developments they built a branch office like a Swiss chalet.

The place caught fire one day. Barton happened to be there. He took the books and the cash from the safe and dashed out.

Others came running out.

The place was going to be a total loss. They began to get frantic about Sam. President Higgins, who happened to be over in that section, drove up. Manager Barton was thinking that at last he would be rid of Slow-poke Sam. Barton was stubborn and had a streak of meanness in him. He hated to see Sam prosper and to have Higgins show such friendliness for him.

Saves Blue Prints

Then just as Barton was telling Higgins that probably Sam was suffocated from the smoke, Sam came out through the flaming doorway with a leap.

He had a big bundle in his arms and the outside wrappings were charred. He peeled them off and tossed them away.

"My God, he saved some worthless blueprints; can you tie that!" Barton yelled.

Sam handed the big roll to Barton.

"These are the new development plans—we had three architects working months on them—we haven't had them duplicated yet and they cost us eight thousand," he said, and then he added, "How much did you save from the safe?"

"Three hundreds," the field treasurer said.

"Give me the plans, Barton," Higgins said, and he took them tenderly. The local firemen arrived in time to save the foundation. The new land office was going up on the site within a week.

The following spring when this big corporation was running a development out from a suburb across a pleasant ride that had once been a truck farm they had to drive by Maxon Meadows, the "property" Sam had invested in.

It looked like an inland sea!

"Hi, Slow-poke" Barton called to Sam one day as they were on the ridge and could look down on the flooded meadow, "you better get a submarine ready to take customers down to see your lots!"

"Well, there are two kinds of suckers," Sam said.

Barton glared at him but didn't seem to know what to reply.

Prospects for Airport

There was considerable talk of an airport being established in the outskirts of the city.

"I think I'll look into it," Sam said.

"By the time you get around to do that they'll have a fleet of trans-ocean air liners moored there," Barton said.

He loved to hear the "yes" men in the office chuckle when he took a slam at Sam.

It was about this time that Lucy Anstruther came into the interior decorations department. Lucy was an authority on the modernistic stuff. She was also the most beautiful girl ever on the company payroll, and many scores of beauties had worked there.

Sam used to secretly watch Lucy and now and then he would get a little moon-eyed.

The plans for an airport were talked "up" more freely. President Higgins hoped they'd be established over between his Maplewood and High Ridge developments—he figured that it would attract wealthy men who were beginning to use airplanes in business more and more.

Sam didn't say a word about it.

That is, he didn't say anything about it in the office. It happened that one of his outside friends was in the flying game, but on the ground. He designed parts of airplanes and was in constant demand by many of the big fellows in the game.

Jealous of Sam

Barton often met Sam and Peter at the Commercial Club, where they dined together or played billiards. Barton, in his lordly way, would sometimes nod at Sam and again purposely ignore him. Sam's commissions the past year had been a little more than Barton's big salary. Higgins had mentioned it to Barton and that made Barton all the more determined to get rid of Sam some sweet day.

So when the airport topic came up at the office one day Sam said to Barton, "That chap you see me with is in the know," and he told him about Peter.

"What does he know?" Barton asked.

"Where the airport is going to be located," Sam answered, "but he can't tell—he's too honorable. Wish I knew."

No more was said.

Sam and Lucy were still merely friendly. This day he went in to her desk and asked her if she had a mother. She said that she had.

"Good," said Sam. "I lost mine years ago. Suppose you take me home and introduce me to your mother—and if she doesnt throw me out, suppose both of you drive out to dinner with me?"

"Sam, you are awfully queer at times," said Lucy.

"I'm always sane with you and about you—what do you say?"

Lucy said "yes." Her mother didn't throw Sam out, she was inclined to rave over him. For several weeks Sam and Lucy and her mother were often together.

Peter, the aviation expert, got to going to the Commercial Club without Sam. Barton promptly got acquainted with him and tried to pump him. Peter admitted that he knew where the airport would be established but that his lips were sealed.

Sells Property

The third evening Barton met him Peter played a game of billiards with him and then left his coat hanging over a chair as he went to the wash room. The coat fell so that a paper in the inside pocket showed the typed inscription on the outside fold:

"Plans for site of Eagle Airport."

Peter was gone fully fifteen minutes.

The very next day a stranger hunted up Sam and wanted to buy his meadow property. Sam put exactly twenty times what he paid for it as its present value. A week later the stranger had bought it.

A month later it was announced that the airport would be located between Maplewood and High Ridge, which was some twenty-four miles from Maxon Meadows.

Manager Barton went all to pieces!

He, through the stranger, had bought Sam's meadow property, because the paper in Peter's coat had a nice little plan for the airdrome there. When Barton went to him about it Peter laughed.

The next day Barton, decidedly ugly, went for Sam about something.

"Don't buy property because some slow-poke gets a friend to plant a phony plan in his pocket," Sam advised; and then he added, "but let's have no hard feelings, Barton—I'm inviting all the office to my wedding reception next week—when Lucy becomes Mrs. Slow-poke Sam Martin!"

SOMBER NOTE SOUNDED IN NEW SPRING FASHIONS

Taft's Supreme Court Work Fine Achievement

When William Howard Taft was first nominated for the presidency in 1908, a friend asked him what was the heaviest responsibility which the next president would probably be called upon to discharge. "The responsibility of appointing a majority of the Supreme Court," unhesitatingly replied Mr. Taft.

When he was nearing the end of his four years in the White House, the twenty-seventh president of the United States was asked which one among all the opportunities encountered in his exalted office he most highly prized.

"The opportunity of appointing a majority of the Supreme Court, including the ninth chief justice," unhesitatingly replied Mr. Taft.

Not only did he discharge this tremendous responsibility with diligence and distinction, but he lived to become the tenth chief justice and to give the last nine years of his life to the administration of its duties—the only Amerian privileged to serve the nation both as president and chief justice.

To the presidency Mr. Taft brought a training and experience in public office enjoyed by few of his predecessors in the presidency. He served his native county as assistant prosecuting attorney, and his native state as a superior judge. From solicitor general of the United States he was promoted to a judgeship on the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. He made an excellent record as the first governor of the Philippines and his record as secretary of war enhanced his reputation as an able administrator.

But in the White House he found himself burdened with the duties of an elective office and almost all of his public experience had been in appointive offices. And as a candidate for re-election he went down to overwhelming defeat.

But Mr. Taft possessed what Roosevelt rightly called a "sweet and fine nature," that even defeat could neither warp nor sour. He showed himself to be the best of losers and instead of setting out to make a fortune cheerfully took up the teaching of law at Yale.

His appointment to be chief justice of the United States won countrywide commendation. And under his leadership the great tribunal has not only reorganized its procedure and caught up with its work, but its members have learned to differ without quarrelling and the record of unanimous decisions has been greater than for many years.

In the household of the nation, Taft the man, won a place that will always be his, genial nature, his liking for his fellow man, his keen enjoyment of the close contact with the mass of the people, which his extensive traveling up and down the country enabled him to maintain, made him one of the most widely known and best beloved public servants of his generation.

Mr. Taft faced death as he faced life—cheerfully, serenely and with a good conscience. He will be missed by millions of his countrymen and his magnanimity in victory and his cheerfulness in defeat, his lack of malice and his devotion to duty will make his many great achievements remembered long after his failures are forgotten.

Judicial Tyranny Dealt A Well-Deserved Blow

Judicial tyranny has been dealt a well deserved blow and a judicial despot subjected to a well deserved rebuke by the Appellate Court of Cuyahoga County, in the state of Ohio.

In a unanimous decision just handed down by that tribunal, the despotic action of Judge Frederick P. Walther, of the Court of Common Pleas, in punishing with a fine and imprisonment two editors of a Cleveland newspaper which carried an editorial criticizing one of his injunctions has been reversed, the editors purged of contempt and the irate Judge publicly condemned.

Upon the ground that all gambling is forbidden by the laws of the state of Ohio, its sense of duty to the public prompted a Cleveland newspaper to carry an editorial criticizing a so-called injunction issued by Judge Walther. He tried in this way to restrain the sheriff from interfering with the so-called "contribution" system of gambling at a Cleveland race track last July.

In spite of the fact that the editorial criticism was addressed to a case that was no longer pending, both the editor of that newspaper and its chief editorial writer were haled before the judge who found them guilty of contempt and sentenced each to pay a fine of $500 and serve 30 days in jail.

Now on appeal the Cuyahoga County Appellate Court, in an opinion by Presiding Judge Willis Vickery, in reversing the action of the lower court, delivers this timely warning:

"WE LIVE IN AN AGE OF PITILESS PUBLICITY. WE LIVE IN AN AGE WHEN FREEDOM OF SPEECH AND FREEDOM OF PRESS ARE PARAMOUNT ISSUES. PEOPLE SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO SAY WHAT THEY PLEASE AND NEWSPAPERS SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO PRINT WHAT THEY PLEASE, ALWAYS MAKING THEMSELVES LIABLE UNDER THE LAW OF SLANDER, AND USUALLY THIS IS PENALTY ENOUGH TO KEEP PERSONS FROM TRANSCENDING THE BOUNDS OF DECENCY AND PROPER CRITICISM."

This opinion further expsesses the belief that by the contempt proceedings, Judge Walther sought "to wreak vengeance upon the newspapermen because they had cared to criticize him in his official capacity."

Even if the evidence warranted conviction for contempt, the Appellate Court rules that the 30-day sentence exceeded the proper punishment, and finds not only that the defendants were denied a fair trial, but also that Judge Walther was guilty of indiscretion in hearing the case himself and erred in the judgment which he rendered.

In company with newspapers North, South, East and West, the Hearst newspapers unsparingly denounced the action of Judge Walther as soon as it became known.

And all that the press of the country said in criticism of this judicial tyrant has now been vindicated and reinforced by the reversal and the rebuke which he has received from his superiors on the bench.

But if the Appellate Court of Cuyahoga County had been composed of judicial tyrants of the type of Judge Walther, the two Cleveland editors whom he endeavored to railroad to jail would now be serving the sentences which he imposed.

It is fortunate for those editors and for freedom of speech

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Tossing Pebbles

THE Napoleonic necklace is stewing up economical curiosity among the diamond dowagers of the sparkling metropolis.

"Bugs" Baer

This necklace is worth $400,000 in its stocking feet.

Archduchess Maria of Austria gave it to a boy friend to peddle in America. He sold it for 60 grand and gave Maria only seven thousand coupons for her share.

They used to call that the well-known works when we went to school.

Archduchess Maria let loose a conservatory of musical squawks when she discovered that she had been given a round hair clipping for fifty-thousand popular dollars.

Napoleon had a peculiar method of shopping. Whenever Mrs. Napoleon wanted diamonds Nap waddled forth and started a war. This system is still being used with success.

Nap never trimmed a gasoline station but he might have if he hadn't stepped into one of the Duke of Wellington's office hours.

That gang war is now history. They measured Nap for an island and the necklace went to Vienna. Over a hundred years later it pops up in New York, a town where they throw away pearls just to get the oysters.

You cannot play bean-bag with such a valuable noose of diamonds. Such a string of iridescent goiters would make its wearer stand out like Gibraltar at low tide.

The salesman who sold that bridle for sixty thousand bills is guilty of tapping a sap and bobbing a trust. If the Archduchess Maria isn't dizzy it isn't because she hasn't been given the run-around.

When you get into a street car or train we want you to look at your neighbor's necks. Somebody is wearing that magnificent yard of reading lamps.

Maria has reached that advanced age where she is in her second kindergarten. She should know better than to play cards with strangers.

We hope the glistening doodabs are back on Maria's Christmas tree before the peace ambassadors hear about it and make more trouble.

We would also like to meet the salesman who soaked the archduchess over $50,000 worth of expenses on a $60,000 sale. That certainly makes him the boy marble champion of the world.

THE RIGHT OF FREE SPEECH

By Herbert Kaufman

THE jack o'lantern which Communist funds lit Thursday didn't do the job. America isn't frightened by pumpkin heads, and won't be intimidated by international blackmailers.

Russia can't COLLECT NUISANCE value from this country. We quit paying TRIBUTE when Decatur's guns forever notified Europe that we mean to mind our own business without foreign interference.

We are no more afraid of Russian anarchy than of Barbary piracy. We refused to be MOSCOWED into diplomatic relationship with a self-declared enemy of every fundamental principle, for which democracy has fought and good faith has endured sacrifice.

We will not break official bread with a state which has set up a guillotine for God, law and contract.

And we cannot permit the renegade representatives of that state the right to disturb the balance under which we choose to conduct our affairs.

When we cease to examine the decision of executive and legislative bodies, we shall deserve all the autocracy we have invited.

BUT nothing in our codes or traditions extends the privilege of such criticism to NON-CITIZENS or to the avowed delegates of outlaw powers.

While there exists millions of unnaturalized and illiterate persons in these United States, both beyond the reach of our language and valid interpretation of the American spirit, unbridled debate will expose us to all the perils of exploited, inflamed and inimical ignorance.

While millions of our population remain non-English speaking, or continue unable to read understandingly a Federal document or a presidential message—and are therefore resourceless to sift the lies and detect the fallacies in corruptive and traitorous propaganda—we must, in self-defense, and pending the absorption and Americanization of such susceptible groups, protect THEM and OURSELVES from foes WITHIN and WITHOUT.

FREE speech for AMERICANS and free speech IN America are not the same thing. Liberty is not muzzled when conspiracy is gagged.

We seek our superiority—we welcome and encourage it—how ELSE may we discourage the sloth, the slacker and the don't-give-a-dammer?

Accident will now and then combine circumstances to lift an individual higher than he deserves, but in the long run, merit, and merit ALONE, marks the score, hereabouts.

The greatest menace, with which progress deals, springs from the discontent deliberately spread by sophists and demagogues. Ohe unhappiest phase of civilizations bent upon preserving economic justice is the misconstruction of "EQUALITY."

It does not mean that any social order can overturn the order of NATURE which, in every manifestation, insists that the strong must rise to their appointed places, the weak must serve under those who have proved a greater fitness to command and control.

DEMOCRACY may only cast down the walls of UNJUSTIFIED privilege—kick away the props of inherited prestige, allow each man to stand for what he is, and take title to whatever his CAPACITIES can reach.

But no system will ever be successfully conceived, under which inferiority shall exercise decisive opinion and cancel the law of competition, which has prevailed since human beings first manifested prowess and demanded a proportionate return of recognition and reward for UNAVERAGE effort.

All that any doctrine of EQUAL RIGHTS can hope to accomplish is, that the most DESERVING shall be elevated to where they DEMONSTRABLY belong.

Education and the removal of general handicaps will do much to enlarge fields of opportunity, but they cannot provide SUBSTITUTES for congenital INITIATIVE or DETERMINATION.

We are still convinced of man's inherent obligation to vindicate his ability in OPEN COMPETITION, and of his IRREVOCABLE license to possess and RETAIN whatever he may fairly earn.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD ∴

By Elsie Robinson

SNICKER if you must! But, after you're through snickering, think this letter over. There's more to it than chiffon.

Dear Miss Robinson:

Why should my friends laugh because my husband prefers to wear silk underwear? Even before we were married he had gotten into the habit of using women things, because he liked the feel of silk. It certainly seems all right to me. It makes his things easier to wash and I can buy them when I do mine. But my friends all laugh at us because of it and make my life miserable. Why shouldn't men prefer silk to cotton as well as women?

MRS. D. B.

Teddies for Freddies! And Mrs. D. B. hasn't a monopoly on them. Cast an eye at the haberdasheries as you go home tonight. Pink and blue striped "shorts" that would be a chorine's delight—transparent vests—embroidered house robes—trick net socks—pajamas that would set a Bathing Beauty chittering with envy.

Teddies for Freddies.....that isn't just a fashion note. That's truth. That's the low-down on males. For ages we have said that men and women were different... that men were rough and rambunctious, and women were delicate and refined. So, grandpa wore—and acted—red flannel. And grandma wore—and acted—organdie. But it was all nonsense. Just an act. An act that flopped as soon as the economic barriers went down and women began grabbing jobs and hanging up swimming records. That was a mad day for Freddie! But presently he began to see that quality had its points. He could be natural—for the first time in history.

For the truth is, there's no such thing as man nature or woman nature. There's only human nature, and that's always scrambled. No man is 100 per cent male. No woman is 100 per cent female. The lad with the buckskin exterior may have chiffon insides. And the lady with the velvet surface quite frequently is lined with corrugated iron. But that doesn't mean that they aren't regular humans.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

AND so, on a note of uncertainty, we close our account of the known forms of life. There are living things, as we have found, that are out of reach of microscopes, at least when we use ordinary light; they are almost entirely mysterious as far as our present-day knowledge is concerned.

H. G. Wells

How far we shall be able to investigate them depends on the methods that we are able to devise. There is no need for us to despair.

Bragg, by passing X-rays through crystals has been able to find out how their very atoms are arranged—it is as if he could see them.

It may be that biologists also will arrive at roundabout but nevertheless reliable ways of exploring the anatomy and physiology of these specks of life and so "by indirections find directions out."

BOOK II.
Chapter Seven.
IS OUR KNOWLEDGE OF THE FORMS OF LIFE COMPLETE?

1. Sea Serpents and Living Dinosaurs.

BEFORE we leave this survey of the forms and phyla of life, we may perhaps give a little space to the question how far this survey may be considered comprehensive.

Apart from that, is it possible that a number still live undiscovered in remote and shadowy and inaccessible corners? The exploration of the land surface of our globe is proceeding more and more rapidly, but there are still places, barren heights and luxuriant jungles, where the describing and classifying white man has hardly penetrated.

And in the sea there are vast regions that have been barely sampled by the drift-net, the trawl, and the dredge.

There is a possibility of strange things in the sea. The discovery of living creatures in the extreme depths of the ocean is very recent.

It was held as recently as 1840 that there was no life, animal and vegetable, deeper than three hundred fathoms. But since then there have been a number of successful experiments in deep-sea collecting.

The three-and-a-half years' expedition of the British ship Challenger (1872-6) is the classic piece of ocean exploration; it laid the foundations of the science of oceanography which many other expeditions have since expanded and elaborated.

In the first excitement of the discovery of living things even in the deepest abyss it was thought that we should find new phyla altogether, new plans of animal organization, and that in these deep, secluded places some of the ancestral forms of life might have been preserved from great antiquity.

The intensive researches that have since taken place have made such hopes untenable. The creatures that come up from abysmal depths are weird indeed, but they are not fundamentally different from those that live in more accessible places.

They are grotesque distortions of the fishes, crabs, sea-cucumbers, and so on that we already know. They are not in any sense primitive; they are, on the contrary, highly specialized. Indeed, it is becoming more and more evident that the abyss is a region as different from the original home of living things as dry land.

There is no light in the abyss and therefore there are no plants; the creatures that inhabit it live on each other or on the corpses that float down from higher layers, from which it follows that they cannot have been the first forms of life.

They are a comparatively recent evolution, members of the phyla that were already established above adapting themselves to that new and at first quiet inhospitable environment.

On land, it is equally improbable that we shall discover anything strikingly new. There are jungles that have hitherto proved too lush and too pestilential to be systematically explored, and here it may be that unknown creatures lurk.

There was a time when tropical forest and jungle occupied much more of the surface of the world than they do now, and were inhabited, as the fossils tell us, by curious mammals that are for the most part long extinct. Here and there a relic of that forest age still survives.

The oldest hotel in town is the Cosmopolitan, which, like a cameo on a new French frock, is on Chambers street, a little west of City Hall Square. As the Girard House it opened in 1850 and has endured. One of its legends concerns the spectacular Coal Oil Johnny. He became incensed one day at the slight of a smart alec clerk and bought the inn for 24 hours just to give him the bounce.

The famous old Brevoort was opened about five years later and is the second oldest hostelry in the metropolis. For years it stood, its tiny office gay with bright backed French feuilletons, as the keystone to Greenwich Village's Bohemia—the haunt of writers, poets and artists.

The proprietor met patrons with a carpet kissing bow at the entrance. A concierge stood on his platform and the bartenders spoke only French. There were dark drinking rooms dotted with tables for cubito and dominoes against a background of vaguely disturbing panelings. A great spot!

The Brevoort was the inspiration of innumerable chapters in popular novels of its day. But a made over Brevoort has supplanted the old. Historic steps worn thin by the great made way for a modern entrance. A single automatic elevator ballooned into a brace of spacious lifts. There is a bath in every room.

The Grenoble, which has passed to the wreckers, for many years stood in the somnolent gloom of its antiquity—the third oldest hotel in town. It had a steady patronage of literary folk from the old world. Rudyard Kipling stopped there on his American visit and for days the world awaited bulletins from his bedside during a tussle with pneumonia.

Two other hotels surviving the winking eye of time are The Chelsea and Murray Hill. They express a sober piety—like monks illuminating a missal in a jazz hall—among the braggy-fronted thicket of hotels all about them.

The Broadway Central is also remindful of a mauve decade. Old timers still stop in to see the famous stairway upon which Jim Fisk was pistoled to death by Ed Stokes. Until a few years ago, chairs were at the curb on pleasant days for loungers. The hotel was, too, for many months the haunt of Leo Bernstein, a journalist of the East Side. He foregathered there with his fire brand friend Herman Trotsky, who later became known to the world as Leon Trotsky, the famous Russian revolutionist.

It was, however, the "Amen Corner" in the old Fifth Avenue which became the most extravagantly publicized hotel lobby rendezvous in the world. It was there tight-lipped Boss Platt met with his cohorts and clipped out his orders that changed so many political fates.

and freedom of press that there is no Judge Walther on the Appellate Court of Cuyahoga County.

But there are judicial tyrants all over this country and not all of them disgrace the state courts. Now and then a despotic judge brings the federal judiciary into disrepute by citing for contempt those who dare to criticize decisions which they sincerely believe to be unjust and deserving of criticism.

THAT IS WHY THE POWER OF A JUDGE TO PUNISH FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT SHOULD BE STRICTLY LIMITED TO ACTS COMMITTED WITHIN THE PRESENCE OF THE COURT AND ALL OTHER CASES OF CONTEMPT RESERVED FOR TRIAL BY JURY.

If CONGRESS will blaze the way for this reform by thus limiting the power of federal judges in contempt cases, public sentiment will not be slow in compelling the SEVERAL STATES to subject their judges to the same salutary limitation.
